Supposing when Germany pounced upon little Belgium ravaging her and leaving her half dead, Britain had selfishly asked the question whether it would be more to her advantage to keep peace with the stronger nation, or hasten to give aid to the "one which fell amongst thieves." Of course there was no pause for such questioning, and coming to the rescue in the spirit of the Samaritan, who had no hesitation in helping one whose race he had been taught to regard with hatred and enmity, civilization was saved.

Neighborliness is spontaneous, and is no respecter of persons; it cannot be legislated into individual, or nation, but is the gift of God. The water which flows from a spring does not congeal in winter, and those sentiments of true neighborliness which flow from the heart, cannot be frozen by adversity. No person lives unto himself, and just as truly no organization, and no nation, can live unto themselves—they cannot afford to "gather up their skirts and pass by on the other side." The chief function of Oddfellowship, or any other organization, is not merely to benefit its own members, but to contribute its share to the welfare of others, this being the final fruitage of its reason for existence.

"He had compassion on him"—that is a strong, positive word; repeatedly it was seen acted out in the late war when men risked their lives to bring in from "No Man's Land," not merely members of the allied armies but of the enemy's ranks as well, the Victoria Cross being more than once won by just acts of bravery. And surgeons and nurses gave equal care to each, nationality making no difference, need being the one appeal to which they responded. In the Kingdom there is no such word as "enemy," plain dealing for deceitful unrighteousness, and acts of kindness for injustice and cruelty, is our Master's injunction, and example. To see another in need, or to hear of other's needs, should at once enlist our help and sympathy no matter what our personal feeling may be in the circumstances.

Philanthropy.

Exploiting another's necessity for personal gain, as is done by combines, is contrary to the spirit of true neighborliness as taught by God's Word. External conditions, wealth, blue blood, are not conducive to the practice of neighborliness; we cannot have the latter in its purest essence without loyalty to God in heart and life first. Philanthropy is a daughter of the church in whatever form it is found, but because there has been misunderstanding as to the functions of the church some have knocked and criticized unjustly. Really the various "Big Brother" movements, and all commendable fraternal organizations grew out of the Christian church which is "the mother of them all." The aspiration for education was cradled in the church, and when the Red Cross, the Y.M.C.A., or kindred societies want money to whom do they go but to the members of the Christian church? Speaking directly to the Order before him, Mr. Tucker said, "Your organization is a daughter of the Christian church, and is proving a blessing, but do not expect the church to do your work; she has done her job when she has given you the inspiration for your task. The hub of the wheel to you is the man in need, and the standard of judgment, and future destiny of humanity, are based upon true neighborliness. The rich man lost Paradise because he lacked this virtue toward Lazarus, and in the Parable of the Last Judgment Christ utters His final decree upon the basis, "Inasmuch as ye did," or "Inasmuch as ye did it not". "He that saveth life shall lose it, but he that loseth his life for My sake, and the gospel shall find it." Oddfellowship has a great opportunity in this day, working in co-operation with the Christian church ,or inculcating this spirit, leading humanity into newness of purpose until the whole race becomes one family, and "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven," will become an actual reality.

Following the sermon Miss Ethel Richardson sang in splendid voice, "King David's Lament". The congregation remained seated while the visiting brethern passed out of the church, and upon the return to the Lodge room, the usuall votes of thanks, especially to Rev. Mr. Tucker for his very fine discourse, were passed.

But the Car Was Gone

Perhaps no man is ever so keenly appreciative of the value of automobile theft insurance as the car owner who leaves a business appointment or a social call, to find his car gone from its parking place. Then the owner is either hopelessly at sea or with a sigh of relief he realizes that he has a theft insurance policy.

"There Were Many Things Which I Could Not Eat"

Mrs. H. Robert Wells, English Harbour, Trinity Bay, Nfld., writes:

"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia—so much so that there were a great many things I could not eat at all on account of the distressed feeling afterwards. I used many different remedies, but they did me little good. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and was surprised at the relief this combined treatment gave me in such a short time."

Nearly Choked.

On Saturday afternoon the small son of Mr. Harry Preston had the misfortune to swallow an oat ann which caused the little fellow to nearly choke. Dr. Hamilton was called, but was unable to locate the trouble, and had the child removed to Peterborough, where, after some X-ray examination and treatment, the cause of the trouble was removed and the latest report was the child was resting nicely.

Ladies' Aid.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church held their annual meeting at the home of Mrs. P. C. Brown. The officers were all present, and Mrs. Brown, first vice-president, presided at the meeting, which opened with a hymn and prayer. Very gratifying reports were made of last year's work. A new furnace is to be installed in the parsonage. The debt against the lighting system of the church was cleared off, and t was decided to hold their annual garden party on July 4. Rev. Board of Managers.

The annual meeting of the board of managers of the Methodist Sunday School was held in the Schoolroom on Monday evening, when Rev. J. E. Beckel occupied the chair. Reports from the secretary, treasurer, librarian, superintendent and presidents of the different classes were most satisfactory. An increase was noticed in almost every department of the work. The missionary objective of $50.00 was increased over last year by over $8. The election of the officers by ballot resulted as follows: Superintendent—Mr. A. Monk. Assistant—Mr. John Porteous. Secretary—Miss Violet Jackson. Assistant—Frank Bigelow. Treasurer—Mr. Ed. Bray. Librarian — Miss Hazel Steer. Assistant — Leslie Challice. Organist — Mrs. Otto Spencer. Assistant—Mrs. A. Thorndyke. Mother's Day.

It was decided at this meeting to observe Mother's Day with a proper programme, and a committee, consisting of Mrs. A. Monk, Mrs. Otto Spencer, Mr. W. A. Jakeman, and Mr. Ed. Bray was appointed to prepare and arrange the programme for this Sunday. A committee of the teachers and the superintendent was appointed to arrange for the programme for the spring rally day on May 27.

The meeting was closed by a short prayer, and the benediction pronounced by Mr. Monk.

SUNDAY'S SERMONS MARK ST. CHURCH.

"Beauty, Harmony and Peace" Thoughtfully Discussed By Rev. G. E. Ross.

"Beauty, Harmony and Peace," was the subject of the evening sermon Sunday, and was taken from Solomon's Song, 11., 12, "The flowers appear in the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land." The following is an outline of the discourse.

Somewhere behind the book is the mind of the author, and the invisible artist stands in silence behind his picture or statue. The pen or brush or chisel, were guided by some directing genius. From the "Tramps' Convention" to the Government of an empire, and from the "News Boys' Club" to the "League of Nations"; all organizations, institutions, and systems have, and must have, some recognized head.

Within His Own Universe

From the movement of atoms all the way up to the majestic swing of the planets, God is manifesting Himself. He also expresses Himself in the spirit of man. But while we cannot comprehend God to the full, and while He may not be demonstrated, yet we cannot do without Him. The being of God is not apart from His will, and His will does not exist outside of a world of space and time and conscious beings. How thrilling and purifying and ennobling, then, is the thought that God is right in our world. God can never be more real or active than He is in the immediate circle of our conscious life. The Divine is in the midst of His people, and not far away in some transcendental world. God and heaven and angels, and our dear departed loved ones, are just as surely within the universe as the sun is within the circle of our experience.

How Beautiful Is God!

These were the words of a dying Christian, as the tide of life ebbed from his veins. The God of beauty expresses Himself in the magnificence of His works. From the blue-bell in the valley to the giant cedar on the mountain, God expresses His character in all created things. "Flowers are lovely, love is flower-like," sings the poet, and he sings a beautiful truth. Flowers express the most tender emotions that stir the human soul. They are the angels of the grass. Their beauty reflects God's image. Man may kill the flower, but all the scientists on earth cannot make it live once it is dead; and man may kill the beauty of his own life and character and all the moralists of the world cannot restore the spiritual life destroyed. You may talk of religious education until you are dead, but without the living breath of God, the lost image of the Divine, which sin has ruined, will remain defaced. Let us remember, then, that the shining heavens, the shimmering sea, the rolling forest-clad hills, and the flower-spangled valley at our feet, all conspire to reflect the beauty of God their Maker. Who shall deny that the tempie of old, in all its matchless glory of gold and precious stones and fabrics magnificent, did not reflect the beauty of the God who designed them. And who shall fail to see the beauty of God's glory flashing out through the human vase of the divine Christ, on the Mount of Transfiguration. Yes, all the beauties of the glorious God were reflected in the face and character of Jesus Christ. Think, my brother, that the Eternal Deity may use both you—and me as a human medium for divine self-expression. No wonder Peter wanted to remain on that hill-top forever; the beauty of the Divine manifestation intoxicated his whole being. Oh, how we're longing for the thrill of spiritual power.

The Centre of Harmony

Not only does God express Himself in the beauty of the visible universe, but He is the centre of universal harmony. Then we find no discords in the music of the skies, for the morning stars sing together, and there is no jar. Nor are there any discordant vibrations in the natural world about us. From the hum of the summer bee to the swelling carol of the skylark, and from the droning of the insect, to the matchless song of the nightingale, al, is harmony. What a strange peace comes over the soul as we gaze up into God's great "Star Chamber." The peace of eternal harmonies dwells there. Far above the din and clash and turmoil of earth's care and sorrow and sin, roll and shine in silent harmony, a thousand million suns. And the peace of God is there. Yes, whether in the heavens or the earth or the sea, all that God has made works in harmony with His will but man, and all earth's discordant notes are due to his rebellion. Sin is the cause of the "Lost Chord."

Tune the Soul

We cannot separate harmony from peace. The world is out of joint because it is out of harmony with God. If nations tune to the harp of God they tune to the lyre of each other. "Cast out the scorner and contention will cease," says the Word of God. Why? Because he breaks the harmony and mars the common peace. If a hundred violins tune to one common centre of harmony, it will be found that all the violins are in tune with each other. If we tune our soul to the divine harp, we shall all be harmonious in our musical production, and there will be no discord. If we tune to God's lyre the harmony is love and joy and peace. If the individual member of any society be in tune with the Divine, how shall he work against the interests of his brother? You get each member of the home, or the church, or society in tune with God, and peace is the never-failing result.

What, then, is the remedy for the present discontent, and unrest, and fraud, and selfishness? Get men in tune with the Eternal Centre of Harmony. Thousands of men have entered the Church unconverted, not bad men by any means, but they are out of tune with God, and are unhappy. Let Jesus' fingers tune their soul harp.

RAINFALL HELPS FARMERS IN WEST

Seeding Operations Are Being Speeded Up and An Increased Acreage is Certain.

EDMONTON, May 2.—(Canadian Press).—Farmers in Central and Northern Alberta are overjoyed with the rainfall on Sunday and Monday, and there has been a resultant speeding up of seeding operations, reports from various parts of the districts showing from 75 to 80 per cent. complete.

An increased acreage of wheat is certain, as many grain growers have determined to seed more on account of the two days' moisture falling at the time it was greatly required.

Last week several points reported dry areas, and a fear that acreage might be less, particularly oats. One reason for the absence of moisture was that the snowfall had been light and the ground had soon dried out. But with the downpour of rain and blanket of snow of a fairly general scale, a new spirit of optimism has been created.

The first grain reported above the ground was at Camrose, where Rubey wheat was showing. From Rimbey, on the Lacombe and South-Western railway line, comes the report that fall rye is over three inches high.

There was an extensive acreage summer fallowed last year, and this is being sown first. The moisture had been well conserved and was sufficient to germinate the grain.

Less oats will likey be sown, possibly because many farmers have not been in a position to buy seed. It is likely, however, that soldier settlers will be leading oat growers, for around fifty per cent. of their lands will be seeded with this grain.

FRANCE WILL REJECT GERMAN PROPOSITION

PARIS, May 2—(Canadian Press)—New German propositions for reparations settlement are so far from acceptable to France that flat rejection of them is regarded by persons close to Premier Poincare as inevitable. This rejection it is stated, will probably be followed by an extension of occupation on right bank of Rhine.

The PRIDE of PALOMAR

By Peter B. Kyne

"Nor can I. But there's a reason—perhaps two reasons. Territorially, this power site is the natural property of but two power corporations—the Central California and the South Coast. The South Coast is the second largest corporation of its kind in the state; the Central California is the fifth. Why go gunning for a dickey bird when you can tie up to an eagle?"

They were both silent, pondering the question. Then said Bill Conway, "Well, son, if I had as much curiosity regarding the reason for this situation as you have, I'd most certainly spend some money to find out."

"I have the money and I am prepared to spend it. How would you start, Bill?"

"Well, I'd buy a couple of shares of stock in the Central California Power Company as a starter. Then I would descend upon the main office of the company, exhibit my stock and claim my stockholder's right to look over the list of stockholders and bondholders of record; also, the board of directors and the minutes of the previous meetings. You may not find John Parker's name listed either as stockholder, bondholder or director, but you might find the First National Bank of El Toro, represented by the cashier or the first vice-president of that institution. Also, if I were you, I'd just naturally hop the rattler for San Francisco, hie myself to some stockhold stockbroker's office to buy this stock, and while buying it look over the daily reports of the stock market for the past few years and see if the figures suggested anything to me."

"Anything else?"

"Thus endeth the first lesson, Miguel. At that it's only a vague suspicion. Get out of my way, boy. I'm going out to build a dam and you're not ready to stop me—yet."

"Bill, I'm serious about this. I want you to cease operations."

Bill Conway turned upon him almost angrily. "What for?" he demanded.

"I own the Rancho Palomar. I forbid it. I have a good and sufficient reason."

"But, son, I can finance the confounded dam. I have it financed already."

"So have I—if I cared to accept favors."

Bill Conway approached and took his young friend by each shoulder. "Son," he pleaded, "please let me build this dam. I was never so plumb interested in any job before. I'll take a chance. I know what I'm going to do and how I'm going to do it, and you aren't going to be obligated the leona little bit. Isn't John Parker stuck for it all, in the long run? Why, I've got that hombre by the short hair."

"I know, but long before you can collect from him you'll be financially embarrassed."

"Don't worry. I've been a miser all my life and I've got a lot of money hid out. Please, son, quit interfering with me. You asked me to help you out; I accepted and I'm going to go through until stopped by legal procedure. And if you have the law on me I'll never speak to you again."

"Your attitude doesn't fit in with my plans, Bill Conway."

"Yours don't fit in with mine. Besides, I'm older than you and if there was one thing your father taught you it was respect for your elders. Two heads are better than one. You crack right along and try to save your ranch in your way and I'll crack right along and try to save it my way. You pay your way and I'll pay mine. That's fair, isn't it?"

"Yes, but——"

"Fiddlesticks; on your way. You're wasting your breath arguing with me."

Don Mike knew it. "Well, let me have a set of the plans," he concluded sulkily.

Bill Conway handed him out a roll of blue-prints and Farrel mounted Panchito and returned to the hacienda. The blue-prints he hid in the barn before presenting himself at the house. He knew his absence from the breakfast-table would not be commented upon, because for a week, during the round-up of the cattle, he and Pablo and the latter's male relatives who helped in the riding, had left the hacienda at daylight after partaking of a four o'clock breakfast.

CHAPTER XXIX.

We've been waiting for you, Miguel, to motor with us to El Toro," Kay greeted him as he entered the patio.

"So sorry to have delayed you, Kay. I'm ready to start now, if you are."

"Father and mother are coming also. Where have you been? I asked Pablo, but he didn't know."

"I've been over to Bill Conway's camp to tell him to quit work on that dam."

The girl slightly paled and a look of apprehension crept into her eyes. "And—and—he's—ceasing operations?" she almost quavered.

"He is not. He defied me, confound him, and in the end I had to let him have his way."

El Mono, the butler, interrupted them by appearing on the porch to announce that William waited in the car without. Mrs. Parker presently appeared, followed by her husband, and the four entered the waiting car. Don Mike, satisfied that his old riding breeches and coat were clean and presentable, had not bothered to change his clothes, an evidence of the democracy of his ranchero caste, which was not lost upon his guests.

"I know another route to El Toro," he confided to the Parkers as the car sped down the valley. "It's about twelve miles out of our way, but it is an inspiring drive. The road runs along the side of the high hills, with a parallel range of mountains to the east and the low foothills and flat farming lands sloping gradually west to the Pacific Ocean. At one point we can look down into La Questa Valley and it's beautiful.

"Let us try that route, by all means," John Parker suggested. "I have been curious to see La Questa Valley and observe the agricultural methods of the Japanese farmers there."

"I am desirous of seeing it again for the same reason, sir," Farrel replied. "Five years ago there wasn't a Jap in that valley and now I understand it is a little Japan."

"I understand," Kay struck in demurely. "that La Questa Valley suffered a slight loss of population a few weeks ago."

ARE WAGING WAR ON BOOTLEGGERS.

Hundreds of Arrests and Much Liquor Seized By Pennsylvania Police.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 2. —(United Press).—Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania is satisfied with the progress he is making to dry up his State.

Four months ago, on taking office, Pinchot announced he will enforce the prohibition laws so rigidly that bootlegging and general violation of the dry act would be made too hard and too expensive. He has been making it very expensive for the bootleggers, likewise very hard. Many hundreds of arrests have been made, and vast quantities of liquor confiscated, under his regime.

Arrests and confiscations will increase until the violators are driven out of the State or forced to obey the law, Pinchot stated.

If Pennsylvania is not yet quite dry it is at least a great deal dryer than it was.

Pinchot's first move was to commandeer the services of the State Police, a semi-military body of nearly four hundred mounted troopers famous for their discipline and efficiency. As nominal commander of these troopers Governor Pinchot detailed almost every available man to the duty of breaking up moonshining and bootlegging. No single week has passed since the initiation of this campaign that has not shown a record of over a hundred arrests and the seizure of enormous quantities of illicit liquor.

Enacted New Law.

Though starting the drive under existing laws, Pinchot drafted a State enforcement act somewhat more drastic than the Volstead Act and submitted this to the Legislature. The Legislature was disposed to balk, but with the prestige of a new Governor with considerable patronage to bestow Pinchot insisted and the general assembly passed the act. Now the added authority of the State law behind it, the bootlegger drive is going on with new impetus.

It is too early to forecast the ultimate result of Pinchot's venture, It is being watched with intense interest because it is the first time the Governor of a big eastern State has set out on so intensive an enforcement program. The Pinchot campaign is not spectacular or spasmodic. Though no public official is more aware of the value of publicity, Pinchot has never referred specifically to his State Police drive in any public manner. It is simply a hard business-like attempt to enforce the law, relentlessly but with ostentation.

There can be no question that the State Police campaign has made bootlegging more hazardous in the State. Pinchot's own way of putting it is, "We're going to make it cost too much to be a bootlegger in Pennsylvania." State Police work is especially noticeable in breaking up the transportation of liquor, either over the highways or by railroad. They seem to have a genius for locating liquor en route.

But whether or not Pennsylvania is to become permanently dry is still a question which it will take months more of Governor Pinchot's campaign to decide.

Want Ad Tips by John T. Bartlett

TESTIMONIALS IN WANT ADS

The power of testimonials is universal. Anyone who has ever, when applying for a position, carried them—testimonials from former employers concerning his character and qualifications—knows the sense of confidence these pieces of paper gave him. All of us have bought many things on the recommendation of others—spoken or written testimonials. Testimonials are great devices to make sales quickly.

There is plenty of opportunity in Want Ads for testimonials. Whatever you are offering for sale, you will likely be a stranged to most those who read your Want Ad They will welcome like thirsty folks anything smacking of impartial evidence in your measure.

Is your article all you claim it to be? Are you a good person to do business with? A testimonial will answer the question conclusively.

A testimonial is simply something favorable, said by a customer, which you quote with permission. Some of your good customers will be glad to give permission to quote. It is not necessary to state their names. The testimonials usually should be much shorter than those commonly much shorteor than those commonly found in display advertisements, being made one or two sentence affairs, like these:

"'Gave absolute satisfaction during two years' employment; conscientious, energetic," says Mr. B., former employer. 'We found him a hustler, popular with associates,' says Mr. L., Wichita. 'Knows his trade from A to Z' J. L. Co., City."

"'I like the Idlecreet hotel better every time I stop at it,' says Mr. Bean. 'A real spirit of service permeates this hotel,' declares . Sammons, commercial traveler."

"'I raised four tons of hay to the acre on your farm,' says Jones, former tenant. Banker J. T. T. writes: 'I know your farm to be one of the best in Spruce county."

See if you can't incorporate a testimonial in your next Want Ad. They're powerful things for results.

WHAT IS THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS?

Lord Cecil Answers Ten Questions to Enlighten Readers.

NEW YORK, May 2—Will the United States join the League of Nations? What would we gain by joining. What is the League of Nations.

Lord Robert says he came here, not to try to talk the United States into joining the league, but to tell the American people what the league has accomplished and what it hopes to do to end warfare.

Protagonists and antagonists of the League of Nations are interested in what Lord Roberts says. Nearly everyone has a question to ask—many of them elementary questions.

To get informative answers to such queries the EXAMINER, through NEA Service, prepared a list of 10 representative questions and submitted them to Lord Robert. Here are his answers, personally authorized:

1. Q. How many nations are now members of the League of Nations? Which ones are not members?

A. There are now 52 nations who members of the league. The 52 include Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, who were all opposed to the allies during the great war. The principal countries, recognized as members of the community of states, which have not yet joined the league are the United States of America, Germany, Russia, Turkey, and Mexico. Of these, Turkey has announced her intention of applying for membership in the league as soon as she has made peace with Greece and the allies. Great Britain, France and Italy have promised to support her.

2. Q. Is the league mechanism now efficient for world functioning?

A. The machinery of the league has been used successfully in finding solutions for a considerable number of problems of general world importance. As organs for joint consultation and co-operation, the council and the assembly have been much more successful than anyone had hoped they could be in the early stages of their development. The principal reason for this, in my view, is that the whole of the proceedings of the assembly and of its committees are held in public and that full publicity is given, in various ways, to the work of the council.

3. Q. What notable cases has the league adjudicated?

A. The principal cases of international disputes so far dealt with by the league are as follows: The dispute concerning the Aland Islands between Sweden and Finland; the dispute between Poland and Lithuania concerning Vilna; the dispute between Germany and Poland concerning Upper Silesia; and the dispute between Serbia and Albania concerning their mutual frontier. In all these cases, war was stopped or prevented and in three of them a final solution which received the full consent of the parties was found.

4. Q. Why, since the league was expected to end wars, have there been so many wars since the adoption of the covenant?

A. It is true, that when the league came into being there were still a number of wars going on. All these wars, in one way or another, were continuations of the great World War. No new war has broken out since the covenant came into force. There are no wars at present going on and peace is everywhere re-established, except between Turkey and Greece.

5. Q. Will American soldiers be called into outside quarrels in order to enforce league discipline?

A. No soldiers belonging to any state member of the league would ever be called to take part in any quarrel except with that state's consent.

6. Q. Do you mean literally (as stated yin your speech before the Woman's ProLeague Council in New York, April 4) that the league does not, and will not, rely on force? Will public opinion be the only weapon "with teeth"?

A. I mean that the league does not seek to arrive at the solution of the problems with which it deals by means of force, and that it will not endeavor to enforce the acceptance of its recommendations on any country by any form of armed or other forceful intervention. It is by the power of public opinion and persuasion that the league has secured and will secure the agreement and co-operation of its members. The covenant contains provisions for countering aggressive attack; that is to say, for neutralizing the wrongful use of force by an individual state. This seems to me a necessary provision if war is to be effectively outlawed. No member of the league is obliged to participate in this co-operation for preventing aggression, except by joining in the economic pressure exerted by blockade; and then only if in its opinion the blockaded state has resorted to war in breach of its covenants.

7. Q. What is the answer to an American objection that the British empire has more votes than any other one nation, the United States for example?

A. The British dominions and the British empire do not utilize their six votes in the assembly as a unified group. On the contrary, the dominions frequently vote against the mother country. On one occasion I heard an eloquent speech in the assembly by an Indian delegate denouncing the policy of the government of South Africa. I think this fact shows that it is necessary to give such highly diverse self-governing groups as the British dominions a separate voice in the affairs of the league. Since unanimity is necessary for all important international decisions, no country in the league can belong without its consent.

8. Q. What guaranty does the league offer against secret treaties, present and future, interfering with the efficiency of the league?

A. Under the covenant, no treaty is binding between the states which make it until it has been registered by the secretariat of the league and published. I think it quite probable that if a country endeavored to make secret treaties of military alliance without informing its people, the people might claim that these treaties were invalid when the government endeavored to force them into war.

9. Q. Would American membership in the league affect our immigration laws, particularly the exclusion policy against certain races and the denial of them of citizenship?

A. Certainly not.

10. Q. What are the great world problems the league can solve, besides ending warfare—such as intercommunication, disease epidemics, social conditions, etc.?

A. One of the purposes of the league is to promote international co-operation in every sphere in which there are genuine common interests to be served. For this purpose, the league has held conferences and organized committees for preparing draft conventions concerning freedom of transit on international rivers, railways, etc.; for the improvement of all labor conditions in less advanced countries through the International Labor Organization; for the prevention of all epidemic disease by special campaign and by organized co-operation of the different national health services; for the suppression of the traffic in women and children; for the suppression of the illicit traffic in dangerous drugs; for the promotion of business interests by common policies concerning arbitration clauses in commercial contracts; for unification of legislation on bills of exchange; for removal of inequitable customs, formalities, etc., (but of course, leaving customs and tariffs entirely at the discretion of each nation to decide for itself).

SECRECY IS MAINTAINED REGARDING GERMAN NOTE

BERLIN, May 2. — (Canadian Press).—Chancellor Cuno and Foreign Minister Rosenburg were closeted with Reichstag leaders for four hours yesterday and later discussed forthcoming reparations proposals with premiers of German States. None of participants, however, would discuss conference or contents of note which is expected to be delivered to allies to-day, although impression is that Germany will offer thirty billion gold marks supported by guarantees.

WINS DANCE RECORD AND BRIDE TOO

DETROIT, Mich., May 2—When Barney Allen, former sailor and pugilist, won the Detroit dance marathon with a record of 96½ hours' continuous dancing, he won a bride as well.

Miss Olive Carr, "just a friend," was Barney's first partner. She danced with him 43½ hours. As they neared the end of the 35th hour Barney popped the question.

"You bet!" said Miss Carr, as she did a fancy glide.

Allen kept on dancing until he collapsed on the floor and was put to bed by physicians.

Perfect Physically

The doctor who supervised the contest described Allen as a nearly perfect physical specimen. Throughout the contest his pulse and respiration remained normal and it was not until after his 85th hour that signs of fatigue were visible to spectators.

Allen did more real dancing in the contest than any of the other contestants, none of whom reached 60 hours on the floor. He frequently varied the monotonous stepping of the marathon by doing fancy glides and turns.

As soon as Allen wakes up he'll sign a $5000-a-year contract with a theatrical producer, which Miss Carr opines, will make a pretty good start for a young couple.

PRACTICAL JOKER IS AGAIN RUNNING LOOSE

Some maliciously inclined person or an irresponsible practical joker last night at 9.35 turned in an alarm to the fire hall from box 12 at the corner of Brock and Rubidge streets.

The entire apparatus turned out, as is usual in answering box alarms leaving the remainder of the city for the time unprotected. A sudden blaze coming from any of a dozen possible quarters might have taken toll of life and property while the fire fighting apparatus was answering the call sent in by this perverted mind.

Chief Gimblett points out that a city by law provides a heavy penalty for turning in a false alarm.

ADVENTURE

never come down. In the big cities, of course, they went up. A full meal in the country costs 2,000 marks. On the train a ham sandwich costs 3,000 marks.

Last week, investigating the actual living conditions, I talked to, among others, a small factory owner, several workmen, a hotelkeeper and a high school professor.

The factory owner said: "We have enough coal and coke for a few weeks longer, but are short on all raw materials. We cannot pay the prices they ask now. We sold to exporters. They got the dollar prices. We didn't. We can buy coal from Czecho-Slovakia, where they have German mines they got under the peace treaty, but they want pay in Czech money, which is at par, and we can't afford to pay. We are starting to lay off workmen, and as they have nothing saved there is liable to be trouble."

A workman said: "I cannot keep my family on the money that I am making now. I have mortgaged my house to the bank and the bank charges me 40 per cent. interest on the loan. You see, workmen who have plenty of money to spend, but they are the young men who are living at home. They get their board and room free and their laundry. Maybe they pay a little something on their board. They are the men you see around the wine and beerstubes. Maybe their father has some property in the country, a farm, then they are all right. All the farmers have money."

The hotelkeeper said: "All summer the hotel was full. We had a good season. I worked all summer in the high season from six o'clock in the morning until midnight. Every room was crowded. We had people sleeping in the billiard room on cots. It was the best year we ever had. In October the mark started to fall, and in December all the money we had taken in all summer was not enough to buy our preserves and jelly for next season. I have a little capital in Switzerland, otherwise we would have had to close. Every other summer hotel in this town has closed for good. The proprietor of the big hotel on the hill there committed suicide last week."

The high school professor said: "I get 200,000 marks a month. That sounds like a good salary. But there is no way I can increase it. One egg costs 4,000 marks. A shirt costs 85,000 marks. We are living now: our family of four, on two meals a day. We are very lucky to have that. I owe the bank money.

"People here in town cannot change their marks into dollars, and Swiss francs so as to have them when the mark falls again, as it will as soon as they settle this Ruhr affair. The banks will not give out any dollars or Swiss or Dutch money. They hang on to all they can get. The people can't do anything.

"The merchants have no confidence in the money, and will not bring their prices down. The wealthy people are the farmers who got the high prices for their crops which were marketed just after the mark fell last fall, and the big manufacturers. The big manufacturers sell abroad for foreign money, and pay their labor in marks. And the banks. The banks are like the Government. They get good money for bad, and hang on to the good money."

The school teacher was a tall, thin man with thin, nervous hands. For pleasure he played the flute. I had heard him playing as I came to his door. His two children did not look undernourished, but he and his frayed looking wife did.

"But how will it all come out?" I asked him.

"We can only trust in God," he said. Then he smiled. "We used to trust in God and the Government, we Germans. Now I no longer trust the Government."

"I heard you playing very beautifully on the flute when I came to the door," I said rising to go.

"You know the flute? You like the flute? I will play for you."

"If it would not be asking too much."

So we sat in the dusk in the ugly little parlor and the schoolmaster played very beautifully on the flute. Outside people were going by in the main street of the town. The children came in silently and sat down. After a time the schoolmaster stopped and stood up very embarrassedly.

"It is a very nice instrument, the flute," he said.

THE BRITISH TRADES SHOWING IMPROVEMENT

LONDON, May 2 (Canadian Press). — Despite the disputes brewing in industrial shipping and railway world, British trade generally keeps improving, says the monthly summary of business conditions in the United Kingdom, issued by the American Chamber of Commerce.

Shipbuilding, iron and steel industries are flourishing, and the end of April saw record coal shipments, while manufacturers of motor cycles are booking record orders.

On the other hand, depression in the cotton industry continues, and the shoe trade is also slack.

CLOVER CROPS ARE COMING ALONG FINE

Peterborough Farmers Say the Land is in Excellent Condition.

From the majority of the farmers in this district comes an optimistic forecast for the coming season, and they are of the opinion generally that the fall wheat and clover crops are coming along in good shape.

The ground is in splendid condition, they say. The fairly long fall allowed most of the land workers to get their plowing pretty well finished up, and the somewhat late start of this spring had its compensation in the fine condition of the soil for seeding.

The district farmers are divided also, on the question of this year's reported late start.

Morley Smithson of Otonabee, who has kept records of commencement of seeding operations since 1896, a period covering more than a quarter of a century, claims that the average date in that time was April 22nd. Last year's commencement on April 24th, made this season's record only two days late. H. A. Quinn of Douro, however, reports an earlier start than usual for this spring, in his district, and H. G. Webber of North Monaghan, considers the later seeding is fully compensated for by the excellent ground conditions and favorable weather prospects.

The soil, which was dry last fall, was sucked of surplus snow moisture this spring by the frosts and high winds, and the brief warm days which baked a crust over the surface. With danger to the fall wheat and clover crops now practically passed, and ordinarily favorable weather looked for, the rural workers anticipate a successful season.

To Develop Gold Mining In Canada

Gold mining development in Canada will within the next few weeks assume proportions hitherto unexampled for variety and intensity. Many properties which have for some time lain dormant, awaiting the advent of more favourable working conditions as well as the provision of the necessary hydro-electric power will soon become scenes of great activity and the forward movement will be well on its way, constituting the most notable programme on record to wrest from Mother Earth the riches which are known to await the application of pick and drill.

Of the numerous mineralized districts to which this applies, Matachewan will be in the foremost rank and the biggest undertaking will be in the hands of Matachewan Canadian Gold, Ltd. This Company is a merger of Matachewan Gold Mines, Limited, Matachewan Rand Gold Mines, Limited, and the Clemens Robb Group of claims, which unites properties representing approximately 840 acres of the district with a consolidated capitalization of $5,000,000.

Considerable development work has already been done on the property, but it has been held back awaiting the completion of the new power plant of the Great Northern Power Co. at Indian Chutes, with which it signed a contract some time ago. Already $400,000 to $500,000 has been spent in prospecting and the programme which is to be immediately commenced will bring the total up to approximately $1,000,000. More diamond drilling has already been done than on any other property outside of the big producers of the Porcupine camp, so that it is by no means a prospect but one of the most advanced of the non-producing properties of the North Country. The new work to be started can be considered one of the biggest items of the season's campaign of development.

Drifting will be started from the main shaft and sinking on the second shaft, which is now down about 35 feet, continued. These two shafts will be connected up by lateral work and a new main working shaft sunk in the centre of the property, having in view the easy handling of the ore bodies opened up. A 10-drill compressor, hoist, motors and other machinery recently were ordered and are now on the ground. It is anticipated that six months work will open up additional ore to the extent of $2,000,000, and enable the Company to commence the erection of a 300-ton mill. Mr. Joseph S. Qualey, the Managing-Director, states that basing his conclusions on the reports of the engineers who have examined the property, it is apparent that 150,000 to 200,000 tons of $11.00 ore can be blocked out before the end of the present year.

It is expected that this Company will shortly make an issue of treasury stock to finance the new programme, and it is anticipated that when it is completed there will remain in the treasury over $1,000,000 of the capital stock.

The directorate of Matachewan Canadian Gold, Ltd., consists of a number of well known Canadian and American business men whose success in different enterprises is an assurance that the same business acumen will be applied to the management of this Company, as made for success in their own undertakings. It is composed as foulows:

President—Hon. Senator G. B. Robertson, P.C., LL.D., former Minister of Labor, Ottawa; Vice-president of the order of Railway Telegraphers.

Vice-President—Hon. Senator J. A. McDonald, president Amherst Pianos, Ltd.; Vice-president, Atlantic Underwear Co., Limited.

Managing Director—Jos. S. Qualey, Mine operator, New York.

Secretary—Russell E. Evans, Toronto

Directors Hon. Rodolph Monty, P. C., K.C., ex-secretary of State for Canada, member of law firm of Monty, Duranleau, Ross & Angers, Montreal. M. A. Clarke, Clarke, Hook & Co., Halifax, N.S.; vice-president of N. S. Trust Co. C. F. Navin, secretary, Detroit Baseball Co., Detroit. Hugh H. Sutherland, general manager, Great Northern Power Company, Limited. W. J. Boland, MacDonall and Boland, solicitors, Toronto. Henry S. Thompson, vice-president, Globe and Rutgers Insurance Co., N. Y. B. H. Hopkins, oil operator, New York.

Financial News and Views

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — = New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices.

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 2. — (Special.)— After a strong opening in which many stocks opened up a point above the previous close the New York Stock Exchange experienced another sinking spell, U. S. Steel making a new low for move, down to 102 3-8, other leading issues dropping with it. Oils were further unsettled by new cuts of 10 cents a barrel in mid-continental crude. Many traders were inclined to feel that a rise now is in prospect because of the drastic shaking out of the past few days. They believe that weak accounts have been swept away, leaving the market in a strong technical position.

Evidence of an improved condition throughout the market, seen in Tuesday's late trading was rather strengthened by the action of the general list in the early trading. Over night news had little bearing on the situation affecting stock values. Hence attention of the speculative community was foisted upon the markets internal position. What appeared to be going on there was a continuation of the transfer of stocks from weak to strong hands. Influential buying absorbed the holding thrown overboard for lack of sufficient margins. Coverings of short contracts also proceeded on an active scale, lifting favorites above previous closing prices. Heavy liquidation of impaired accounts again took place in the first hour and new lows on the move were reached by many representative issues, including United States Steel which dropped to 102 3-8, but buying was definitely superior to selling for stocks began to display a decided rallying trend by 11 a.m., under the lead of Consolidated Gas, which made a new high on the move at 67 1-4 in the face of selling in many sections of the list.

This exhibition of confidence encourages constructive sentiment and a number of industrials such as California Petroleum, Studebaker, American Can and Baldwin not only regained morning losses, but advanced above the previous close.

The opinion of the constructive element of the street is that selling of oil has been overdone. . . . . .

While California's increased production may be the cause of the slump in oil shares, there is no getting around the fact that consumption continues to establish new high records. As one banker put it, "One year they talk of oil famine and the next of over production." . . . . .

GOOD MANNERS

A man pays all fares and fees for for a woman he is escorting. But when, by chance, a man meets a woman he knows on the street car together, the former is under no obligation to pay both fares, nor should a woman expect it. Some men do insist on doing so, and in that case the woma should yield gracefully but the better form is otherwise.

LIFE FOR LIFE

thought to murder on that same September day.

Hope flickered low and died in the death cell shortly before six o'clock last evening, when Mary Florence Lassandra heard from the faltering lips of Father Fidelis that the last word had been said at Ottawa, and the wrod was death.

Clemency Refused.

It was late in the afternoon when Sheriff Rae had a message relayed by telephone to him from Edmonton stating that the decision of the Federal Cabinet had been against intervention in the death sentence.

The statement given by the young woman to the public through the lips of her aged mother at Fernie, had failed to stay the hand of justice.

Her belated appeal that she had been used as an attempted catspaw for the rich employer of her husband, that she had been persuaded to say she had fired the shot that actually killed Constable Lawson last September at Coleman on the understanding that "they never hanged women in Canada any more," had fallen on deaf ears at Ottawa.

Their case heard thrice by Courts of Appeal, thrice reviewed by the Federal Cabinet stood as it did on the night the foreman of the jury in Calgary pronounced the fatal word "guilty."

Hope Deferred.

Exhausted by a week as of hope deferred, weak with long days and nights of contemplating the fate before her, Florence Lassandra took the news of the last decision of the Federal Cabinet with little visible show of emotion.

Her father confessor has been with her many hours during the past weeks as she lay in the death cell.

A fortnight ago, while awaiting the verdict ofthe Supreme Court at Ottawa, the woman came close to utter collapre. She lay for hours on her cot, moaning and rocking restlessly.

Lately she had become calmer. Apparently she had accepted her fate and faced the slowly opening portals of eternity. She sought the solace that Father Fidelis offered her of a hope in the life hereafter.

The Man Morose.

Picariello has been morose and truculent throughout. He to the very last was not resigned to his fate.

Perhaps he had expected his fortune of a quarter of a million dollars to exempt him from paying the penalty of his hastily-gotten revenge.

Much of his money, amassed, it is said, through his bootlegging operations, has been spent in the various mesh of the original dross within her peers at the trial in Calgary, at which he was convicted.

Picariello, since the verdict of the Supreme Court at Ottawa, had no hope of reprieve. It was on the woman that the anguish of hope, dashed again and again to the ground, had the greatest play, and the first of the ordeal consumed much of th original dross within her native nature.

The Preparations.

Preparations for the double execution were completed at the Fort Jail just as darkness closed in on the house of doom last evening.

Officers of the Provincial Police, the Sheriff, the Warden, the coroner, and the jail physician were in conference in the warden's office late in the afternoon and again in the evening.

The Deputy-Minister of Public Works paid a personal visit to the jail during the afternoon to see that the gruesome structure of rough boarding was complete.

During the morning sacks of wet sand, approximately the weight of the condemned couple, were tested on the new hempen ropes in order that their breaking point might be carefully avoided.

The hangmen examined all the appliances of death duringthe afternoon, and pronounced them sufficient for their ghastly task.

Last Friday McKinley Cameron, who defended the couple, paid long visits to each. It was during this visit, with her mother present, and before several jail officials, that Florence Lassandra made the statement that was wired by Attorney-General Brownlee to the Minister of Justice, and that reached the public through Fernie on Tuesday morning.

The last word has been said on the Picariello-Lassandra case, the last gesture made. The law has balanced the ledger, the man and the woman have paid for blood with blood.

AMERICANS RIDING PROSPERITY TO HARE SAYS FORD

Henry Ford, speaking of business conditions and prospects in the United States, said that, while fundamentals were sound, some people were riding prosperity too hard. Unless the business interests came to their senses and quit the mad scramble for materials and men, he was not so sure that present prosperity could be retained. Business had regained a healthy start, but a few unwise moves could throw it off the track again. "These suddenly rising prices of materials are unnecessary," he declared. "I am surprised that many manufacturers have not taken a wiser course. The raw material men see the overeagerness of certain manufacturers to do two years' business in one, and they trade on this eagerness. Paying skyrocketing prices does not add one single pound of steel, lumber or other goods to the world's supply; it only increases the risk that a manufacturer will accumulate more inventory than he needs. Paying higher wages, temporarily, than a plant can pay permanently does not increase production or do anybody much good. Oftener it results in decreased production and is harmful to the men. Under stimulus of unnaturally high wages, workingmen are induced to assume responsibilities which they cannot carry out in normal times, or when wages are reduced or when the men are laid off, and so the whole failure backs up until it overflows business men in every line. The demand for manufactured articles is strong. There are enough men and materials available to provide every legitimate demand. But if manufacturers treat the present condition as exceptional and try to cash in on it all at once, they make thing exceptional. The upward trend of prices automatically decreases buying power, and I wonder that more manufacturers do not see this."

AN ATTEMPT TO ARRAY LABOR AGAINST CAPITAL

OTTAWA, May 2. — (Canadian Press). —Rev. S. J. Farmer told the local auxiliary of the Canadian Bible Society yesterday that one of the society's agents had gathered literature in the foreign section of Winnipeg, which gave evidence of having been printed in Moscow, Chicago and Toronto. Its purpose, he said, seemed to be to eliminate the idea of "God out of the minds of the people and to array labor against capital."

DEPUTY MINISTER SAYS PATRONAGE GOOD PLAN

OTTAWA, May 2. — (Canadian Press).—J. B. Hunter, deputy minister of Public Works, declared before the special committee on agriculture this morning that he would go back to the "Old system". What was the matter with patronage, he asked, it was good way. Asked if he agreed that patronage was the bulwark of democracy he answered, "I am not framing any catch phrases for head lines in newspapers."

The nightgown used to be simply hemmed with a hand-run seam or even hemstitched, but today it is scalloped, embroidered or trimmed with rows of filet Irish or Val. lace. It is quite as ornate as the lingerie frock.

MAROONED IN U.S. GIRL NURSE'S FATE.

Trying For Fifteen Years to Get a Ship to Take Her Home.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 2—Emma McCoy, nurse here, is marooned on the continent of North America, in the midst of civilization!

For 15 years she's been trying to get a ship to rescue her and take her home—but no ship will stop there.

So, as far as returning to home and country are concerned, Miss McCoy is just as bad off as Robinson Crusoe, though she lives in a modern city, moves about freely and associates with everyday people.

Here's her romantic story:

Miss McCoy was born on Pitcairn Island, one of those lava foundations in the southwest Pacific. Her father is president there. He rules the 170 other citizens.

Isolated Isle

Pitcairn is 3000 miles from any regular port of call and ships rarely go there. The island was settled in 1789 by mutineers from a British ship.

When Miss McCoy was a little girl a disease ravaged the island which could have been halted had any of the settlers had medical knowledge.

So as Miss McCoy grew older, she decided to come to America and learn nursing. She got to Samoa in a little skiff which went to the bottom as soon as it reached the harbor.

Thence she proceeded to San Francisco. She studied nursing in Battle Creek, Mich., then came here to practice. But she couldn't get back to Pitcairn.

Now comes a press dispatch announcing the Australian ship, Enunda, has stopped at Pitcairn on its way to New York and is bringing Miss McCoy a box sent by the islanders.

She's hoping the Enunda will stop at the island on its way back. If it does, she'll be among the passengers.

a grant of $65 from the Strathcona Trust to be distributed among six of the city schools for physical training, and another grant of $50 a year for each cadet corps from the Ontario Government. The uniforms cost approximately $2 each, and the board was advised that an advance of $75 to each of the corps in question would, with what money they have in hand from previous grants, render the purchase of uniforms possible. This money advanced would be paid back after the cadets' inspection on May 15, from grants to follow that inspection.

On motion of Mr. Worth, the request was granted.

Other Business.

Grants of $25.00 were voted to each of the schools for sports.

A request from the Home and School Association of the Prince of Wales School for an electric cooking plate in the small room on the kindergarten flat was allowed.

The Property Committee were empowered to act on a petition that shrubs be planted in the grounds of the Queen Mary School. In this connection Mr. Wearing spoke strongly for beautifying the school grounds, and although, as he asserted, this will be his last year on the Board—for a while at least—he placed on record his advocacy that such a policy be continuously exercised.

On the motion by Messrs. Denne and Wearing, a letter of condolence with Mrs. Huffman in her recent bereavement by the death of her husband will be forwarded.

Janitor Appointed.

Moved by R. Denne, seconded by Dr. Neal, that the salary of the late Mr. C. L. Huffman be paid in full for the month of April.

That Mr. W. Evans, who has been assistant janitor at the Prince of Wales School, be appointed to succeed the late Mr. Huffman as janitor, salary to be according to schedule, and to date from the 1st of May, under the usual contract.

That Mr. Cloke, who has been assisting Mr. Evans, be paid at the rate of $78.00 per month from the 11th of April, and that he be engaged on a monthly basis from the 1st of May at this rate.

This resolution carried.

To Invite Tenders.

Moved by J. A. McKone, seconded by E. B. Fowler, that the Supervision Committee be authorised to advertise for tenders for the text books and supplies required for the ensuing year, with power to award the contract.

Tenders for Fuel.

Moved by R. Denne, seconded by Dr. Neal, that the Property Committee be authorised to advertise for tenders for the fuel required for the ensuing year, with power to award the contract.

There were present: Chairman A. A. Fowler, Roland Denne, Dr. F. C. Neal, J. W. Worth, Jos. Wearing, J. A. McKone, Mrs. W. R. Morris, and E. B. Fowler.

Leo Dandurand Has Signed Bob Boucher.

MONTREAL, May 2.—(Canadian Press.) —The Montreal Star yesterday had the following:

Leo Dandurand, managing director of the Canadiens' Hockey Club, of the National League, yesterday stole a march on two of his rival teams in the circuit, when he signed up "Bob" 'Boucher, another member of the famous Ottawa hockey family, for next season.

"Bob" Boucher, a brother of Frank, George and "Billy," is only twenty years of age. Last year, he played with the Iroquois Falls team of the N.O.H.A. He had offers before this to take the professional plunge, but although refusing them, he has at last decided to leave the amateur ranks and place himself on the roster of the Montreal Canadiens. Reports indicate that he has the earmarks of a stellar forward when he gets going in pro company.

DEMPSEY OUT OF RING FOR 2 YEARS

Students of Scrapology Think That Jack's Lay-Off May Have Hurt Him.

NEW YORK, May 2.—As Dempsey begins to think of heading east followers of the fight game who are interested in physical form are not so sure that when the time comes for him to do battle he will be the man he was. This because of his two years absence from the ring.

A fighter can't let that amount of time elapse between battles and expect to retain all his speed and stamina. Dempsey is generally looked upon as a superman and he may be an exception to the general rule.

But there are some keen judges of pugilists who will wait before forming an opinion.

Against a man such as Jess Willard, Jack's problem would not be so great, aside from being able to take such hard wallops as Jess will surely bestow upon him. For Jess has not fought in four years. But a lot of youngsters are now coming up and the more experience of actual ring fighting that Dempsey has under his belt the better will be his chances of retaining his title.

There are some who believe that Dempsey's prospects of beating Tommy Gibbons would involve his ability to take a sock on the jaw and survive it as he did when he met Carpentier. The belief in this respect is Tommy can reach Jack's jaw forcefully, at the same time protecting his own jaw for a considerable length of time Maybe so. But when you come right down to it Gibbons has not been so active himself of late.

Since he fought his unsatisfactory battle against Bartley Madden and Harry Greb, the St. Paul fighter has been pretty much in seclusion and certainly fans who saw those two bouts are not in a mood to hand him so terribly much.

CORINTHIANS NOT TO TOUR THIS YEAR

Do Not Wish to Follow Programme Mapped Out By the D. F. A.

An Old County team will tour Canada this season and it may not be the Corinthians. There has been a hitch in the negotiations with the famous English amateur club. Corinthians want to come, but they desire to say in which centres in Canada they shall play and they have no desire to go west of Winnipeg. If they do come they will require to follow the D.F.A. whose tour will include games as far west as Vancouver and rightly so, because soccer lovers in the west have as much right to share in the good things as those in the east. An alleged "kick" from Hamilton registered in ignorance of the facts was out of place, seeing that the Ambitious City refused to put up the guarantee asked, while cities in the west were prepared to table a cheque right away. Negotiations with Corinthians have not been broken off and if a satisfactory settlement is reached, the amateurs will sail early in July. Over a dozen Old Country teams desire to tour the Dominion and, in the west and across the border the name of Liverpool is mentioned as one. Failing the amateurs, could the D.F.A. make a better choice than Bolton Wanderers winners of the English Cup.

Cobalt Fears Lack of Strong Opposition.

Al. Miller, the big southpaw of the Cobalt team who is ranked with the best in Ontario, blew into Toronto yesterday morning on the way to his home in Wilkesbarre, Penn. He received a wire in the mining town that his father was ill. He brings word that he has a son, a second "Al" Miller. Cobalt has had a great team of ballplayers working in the silver mines all winter and were looking forward to a bumper season in the north country. Miller thinks that because Haileybury cannot gather a team that Cobalt will suffer for want of competition.

Players and Officials Face Suspension.

TORONTO, May 2.—All the Toronto soccer players who played in Montreal on Saturday have been ordered to attend next week's meeting of the directors of the T. and D.F.A. to explain why they played that exhibition game contrary to orders. The two Toronto officials of the intercity league, Vice-President J. Davidson and Secretary John Innes, will also be asked to attend.

The trouble arises over the refusal of some of the members of the I.C.L. to recognize the authority of the local association over its own players, and it is about time that the matter was straightened out and that the lines of authority of both bodies clearly defined. The local clubs of the intercity league, affiliated with the T. and D.F.A. agree to abide by their laws and the game of Saturday was certainly an infraction of one of these laws.

The intercity league commission are holding a meeting on Thursday night in Hamilton, when it is hoped that something will be done to avoid all this squabbling. The two Toronto representatives of the commission are Beeston and McLean, but on Thursday they will have the support of President Tom Holland and Vice-Presidents Fred Wainwright and H. S. Collins of the T. and D.F.A. who will go along to help towards some working agreement. The T. and D.F.A. will ask the Hamilton association to have three representatives at the meeting.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, the general and the diplomat, and a lot of the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a successful football or track team.

Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men.

Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything.

Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not only for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of its disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations.

It is the first of all the First Aid requisites in use in all of the leading athletic clubs.

And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always keep it in the home where you can "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1.25 at your druggist.

EXIT "PERFECT 36;" ENTER THE "JAZZ 34"

NEW YORK, May 1. — (United Press).—The "perfect 36" is a thing of the past.

The "perfect 34" is here.

All on account of the American flapper.

American fashion designers have practically abandoned the "perfect 36" styles, which was based on the measurements on the Venus De Milo. The "jazz" age has produced a taller, less rounded, athletic type.

The American "Venus De Milo" is 5 feet 7 inches in height, has a 34-inch bust, 23-inch waist and 34-inch hips. Her ankle measures 8 inches. Her weight is 110 pounds.

The "perfect 36" is five feet four inches in height, with a 36-inch bust.

J. R. Bolton, fashion expert of New York, believes the new American type is an improvement.

CHANGE IN NEWSPAPER OWNERSHIP.

An important change in Eastern Ontario newspaper ownership took place this week when The Trenton Courier-Advocate was transferred from Clarence G. Young and Vance A. Stalla to Arthur R. Alloway, formerly of The Oshawa Reformer. The Courier-Advocate is an amalgamation of the two old established Trenton newspapers effected January 1st of this year. The Courier was founded in 1866 and The Advocate in 1879. Trenton has a population of over 6,000 and is strategically located on the Bay of Quinte at the mouth of the Trent Canal System. Mr. Alloway recently purchased the two newspapers at Stirling, which is sixteen miles from Trenton, and has amalgamated them. He has obtained an Ontario charter under the name of Trent Valley Newspapers Ltd., which will cover the operations of both businesses. Mr. L. B. Calnan, son of the well-known publisher of the Picton Gazette, is in charge at Stirling.

"Robin Hood" is coming to Peterborough for One Week, beginning Monday, May 7th. Of course, it will be shown at the Capitol where the foremost attractions are presented.

This gorgeous spectacle has been booked by The Famous Players Canadian Corporation, at an exhibition price that would almost stagger those unfamiliar with the buying of motion pictures for Peterborough.

In the larger cities of the United States, "Robin Hood" is now being shown in the so-called legitimate theatres at admission prices of $2.00 and more for all seats.

The Capitol Management have advanced admission prices on very rare occasions, but in order to secure this magnificent production and to give the public a chance to see it at reasonable prices, instead of paying $2.00, Mr. Fairbanks has agreed to allow us to present it at the following prices:

EVENING & Saturday Matinee	35c, Balcony	50c, Orchestra	65c, Chairs	25c Children
MATINEE Monday to Friday	35c Adults	25c Children	ALL TAX INCLUDED
Children's Matinee Wednesday 4.15 p.m. Saturday 10.00 a.m.			15c Children	35c Adults

The Management of the Capitol desires to announce that "Robin Hood" will be the most important offering of the current season—and probably the finest entertainment to be presented in Peterborough for years to come, unless some new discovery in the amusement world makes possible a greater attraction.

LEASIDE EXPECT TO WIN SATURDAY

Durant Crew Hope to Tak Pete's Scalps in Opening Game of the Season.

Few exhibition games in Peterboro have aroused so much interest as Saturdays clash at Riverside Park between the Leaside team and Jake Soloman's Petes. The fans are hungry for a ball game and anxious to see the 1923 Peterboro team in action, and this coupled with the drawing power of the Leaside team, who can always be counted upon to provide warm opposition, accounts for the early excitement over Saturday's battle. The game is regarded as a test of the respective strength of the eastern and western sections of the Central League, and on that account the result will be watched with interest all over the circuit. Leaside have been working out a little longer than the Petes, and will have the edge in condition as well as the very important advantage of using an infield that was intact all last year and that should show increased cleverness in its second year as a unit. In spite of those conditions however Manager Soloman hopes to make a good showing against the invaders, and will use all his squad in an effort to bring home the bacon.

The game will be in charge of Umpire Alex. Kay, and will get under way at 3 o'clock sharp. There will be no opening ceremonies, the usual fuss and feathers being disferred until the official Central Ontario League opening here on Saturday, May 26th.

Saturday's game promises to be a nice lively tussle as the Leaside team are coming down determined to grab up a victory. They were defeated here three times last year, but this is another season and they consider that their team is 50 per cent stronger than last year.

THE LINDSAY C.N.R. TEAM HERE TO-NIGHT

The local Canadian National soft ball team clash with the Lindsay C. N. R. team in an exhibition game at the armouries to-night at 6 o'clock, that should provide a lot of interest and excitement. The Peterboro railroaders invaded Lindsay a short time ago and won out by a small margin, and their Lindsay comrades hope to get revenge this evening.

PLANNING THREE DAY SESSION ON ARMISTICE

In the hopes of making the celebration of November 11, the biggest and best commemoration of Armistice Day that has been seen since the fateful day in 1918 that saw the close of hostilities on the Western front, the local Great War Veterans Association is already discussing plans for the event. At the regular meeting of the organization held last evening it was decided to see if it would not be possible to have the soldier organizations in the towns and villages surrounding join with Peterboro in putting on a huge reunion of all returned men on that date. November 11 falls on a Sunday this year so that the actual celebration of the event would have to be held on Monday.

This would mean that the commemoration of Armistice Day would be extended over three days. The tentative plans suggested at the meeting call for the annual poppy day on Saturday, November 10. The usual church parade with a special speaker on Sunday followed by a complete day and night of celebrations on Monday.

A committee was appointed to work out the details of the plan. The committee is composed of the following members; Oscar Keller, chairman; J. Cooper, Ian Murray, Harold Burrowe and Claire Stuart.

WHAT NEWSPAPERS DO.

When you are born
The newspapers starts in Relates about your excellence
And tells about your sweetness
It follows you to school,
And prints the honor roll
If your name is found there,
It tells of your graduation,
And speaks of the excellence
Of your magnificient essay;
It tells of your college career
And then dilates much about
The choice of your location
Then it gives a nice notice
About your marriage
And praises the blushing bride
Till her kinsfolk don't know her,
Then, in due course of events,
It tells about the bouncing baby
That comes into the family—
There by beginning its life work
All over and over again.
The newspaper does all this
And it does also much more.
It tells of the progress
Made by town and county
And boosts all enterprises;
Gives free advertising
Worth thousands of dollars
To its home town.
There are heaps of things
That all good newspapers do
For which they cannot be paid.
That is why every citizen
Should do his best
To support the newspaper
In very possible way
And all the time.
Yassum.
I thank you.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN AT THE CAPITOL

It is with great pleasure and satisfaction that the Capitol Theatre management announces the engagement of Charlie Chaplin in "The Pilgrim." This is the picture the world has heard so much about—the one everybody talked about, wondered about, and wanted to see.

"The Pilgrim" is Chaplin's last million dollar four reel picture and when you see it you will realize just what it has cost so much to produce. It is nothing short of a screen classic and it hits the high spots of fun every minute the four reels are on the screen.

Charlie in this picture is a fugitive from justice, who appropriates a minister's raiment and on donning it is not only pursued by an eloping couple who desire to be married but is also forced to take charge of a church.

According to pre-view reports the comedian has not included one unnecessary foot of film in "The Pilgrim." Starting with a close-up of a handbill offering a reward for an escaped convict illustrated by a portrait of Charlie in prison garb, all through the series of thrilling, humorous and even pathetic situations in which he finds himself, the interest is to be sustained by an ever mounting story which finally ends in a great emotional climax.

The cast selected to support Charlie Chaplin, includes the popular Edna Puryiance, who has been with the great comedian ever since the earliest days of his motion picture career.

Others in the cast are: Kitty Bradbury, Mack Swain, Loyal Underwood, Mae Wells Sidney Chaplin, and best of all the four-year-old child actor, Dinky Dean, Chaplin's latest find, who will probably eclipse even the famous Jackie Coogan.

"The Pilgrim" comes to the Capitol Theatre Thursday for a three day run, along with another feature, Dorothy Dalton's latest, "Dark Secrets."

"ROBIN HOOD"

To be taken back eight hundred years, and witness, as through a veil, those who lived and had their being in the moated castles of England, the forests and glades filled with marching men and knights in armour, to see the famous highwayman whose romantic career has become an integral part of history, and get a glimpse of the chivalry of ancient day, is something that is made possible by the gigantic production that comes to the Capitol Theatre Monday next, for the entire week. Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood" is a drawing card, not merely because of the spectacular character of its scenes and the historical accuracy with which the doings of the olden days are reproduced, but because it is a human story, one that makes its appeal to the emotions and gives an insight into the lives of those who eight centuries ago shaped the destinies of England. A million dollars have been spent on "Robin Hood" thousands of people appear in the crusading scenes, realism appears at every turn, and the magnificence of the settings are by the Capitol Orcehstra will be programme, and enabe the changtakes jus tover two hours to show said to be a revelation of the pitch to which the moving picture art has been brought. All the noted characters of historic fact and fancy are woven into the story of "Robin Hood" and everywhere it has been shown it has drawn forth the highest praise on both sides of the Atlantic. There will be an effective stage setting at the Capitol Theatre for the picture, with castle turrets and portcullis, and the presentation will commence at 2.30 matinees and 8.00 o'clock at night, so that as it takes just over two hours to show the public will be able to judge the best time so as to see the full picture. A news review to break the programme, and enable the changing of the audience, will be the only other offering on the screen. Specially selected and appropriate music by the Capitol Orchestra will be played during the showing of the picture.

"Ugliness Is a Sin; Beauty a Virtue"

BY MARIAN HALE.

"A woman at 20 should be laying the foundations for beauty at 50," says Madame Helene Rubinstein, the famous international beauty expert. "It's easy enough to hold on to prolong one's youthful loveliness, but almost impossible to recreate it, once it has departed."

"If in her youth a girl will learn the scientific care of her complexion and figure she can keep away the wrinkles, skin blemishes and avoirdupois that conspire to lure away her loveliness," she continues.

"A woman need not look more than an interesting thirty until she is fifty if she will give herself daily, faithful care. Fat and forty need never occur.

"Ugliness is a sin because it is unnecessary. Beauty is a virtue because it is natural and is everywoman's right. Not to crave beauty is unnatural. Not to acquire it is stupid."

Madame Robinstein speaks with authority. She is the dean of all beauty doctors and for more than a quarter of a century she has been listening to womens prayers—"Make me beautiful."

She has studied medicine as well as beauty culture with Europe's most famous specialists. She has travelled in all parts of the world and learned from women of all climes. She maintains beauty salons in London, Paris, Australia and Indig as well as in New York.

Her European clients have included many members of nobility. The unfortunate Russian empress and the queen of Rumania and other first ladies have taken treatments from her.

Her clients in this country are not all drawn from the social register and the Who's Who of the stage, although she draws heavily from both, but include many business and profesional women who look to her to stave off the evidences of physical age and its suggestion of waning powers.

Her treatments are scientific applications of common sense and technical knowledge. She doesn't believe in beauty lotions that cover up defects but rather in a program that brings to light every blemish and corrects it so that concealment is unnecessary.

Beginning to-morrow, Madame Rubinstein begins in the Examiner a course of 10 lessons in beauty culture which will enable you to keep your years at bay. She will take up the complexion first and tell you how to correct the most common ills and give yourself beauty treatments at home. Don't miss them.

How to Look Beautiful

We all have heard many times that there is nothing more beautiful than a natural complexion, and yet — when you come right down to it, is that a fact?

Who is more attractive—the woman who only uses soap and water, until her face has a real shine to it, or the woman who skillfully uses the cold cream jar instead of the soap and water, then the other little artifices, to finish the picture?

Ask any man!

Ask the children, even the tiny ones, whether they like mother better when she is all dressed up or when she is in her bungalow apron.

The youngsters will give us the correct answer, and that is that mother looks best when she is at her best, and no woman is ever at her best when she is ill-kept.

Hair curlers have a place—but not where anyone can see them. You must use them, if you will have the soft fluffiness that nature has robbed us of, as the years go by, but if you do use them do not allow anyone to know that you do.

Instead, wear them under a pretty colored boudoir cap, with a soft line around the face — something that will improve your appearance as you wear it

And when the work is over, instead of neglecting herself and scrimping at her own expense, let mother pay a little attention to herself, while she still has a chance to keep young.

A stitch in time will save nine wrinkles.

The stitch is not costly; everyone can afford the little delicacies that add so much to us, and oh—how much more attractive they make you.

And do you not owe it to your family and yourself to be attractive?

WORK STARTED ON NEW ST. MARTIN'S

And Floating Bridge to Ennismore is Still Closed Since Ice Parted It.

Farmers of Ennismore Township are wondering how long the floating bridge is to remain broken and closed to the public. The outgoing of the ice loosened links of it near the aprons, and no one, they say, has yet shown any disposition to repair the structure. Farmers who have to make the long trip around the lake are looking for action without any prolonged delay.

Richard Sheehy and Sons have begun preparations for the construction of the new St. Martin's Church. A building to provide the workmen with boarding and living quarters has been put up, and other preliminaries are practically completed. It is expected that the main construction will be started shortly.

COMMUNIST SCHOOLS STRUGGLING CONCERNS

LONDON, May 2. — (Canadian Press Cable.)— The Archbishop of York declares that excessive importance has been attached to so-called Communist schools.

All evidence in the matter shows that the schools of such a character which are really subversive of religions and social order are negligible, he stated, and Communist schools in large towns are very small, struggling and obscure organizations.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HAD A MEETING LAST EVENING

The Anglican Sunday School Workers' Association of Peterboro met last evening in St. Luke's Sunday School-room, with a good attendance of the Sunday School workers in the four Anglican Churches of the city. The president, B. B. Morden, occupied the chair. Arrangements were made for the holding of a picnic under the auspices of the Association to South Beach on July 19.

Following the business session, an interesting address on Sunday School work and teaching was given by Rev. C. E. Clarke, of Campbellford. Mrs. H. E. Connolly gave a reading, and Wilfred Reid a vocal solo.

Refreshments were served by the Sunday School teachers of St. Luke's Church.

A vote of thanks to Rev. Rural Dean Clarke was moved by Miss Gladys Collinson, of St. John's Church, seconded by Mr. A. Breadman, of St. George's.

ISRAEL PAYNE VS. HESTER PAYNE

Finding by Judge Huycke Will Be Appealed to Higher Court.

Notice of appeal to a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario was given to-day by Joseph Wearing and A. E. Dixon on behalf of Israel Payne against Hester Payne, on the following among other grounds:

That the learned judge erred in finding that there was a contract between the plaintiff and the defendant which was broken by the plaintiff on or about the 4th day of April, 1921 in refusing longer to reside with the defendant and in demanding from her possession of the house known as 274 Aylmer street, Peterborough, occupied by her, and the furniture contained therein.

That the learned judge erred in finding that there was a gift to the plaintiff and her daughter or to either of them of the furniture contained in the house in question.

That having found that there was a gift by the plaintiff to the defendant the learied judge should have declared this to be an improvident act on the part of the plaintiff and therefore voidable.

That having found that the plaintiff was entitled to possession of the house in question the learned judge should have granted damages to the plaintiff for the wrongful detention of the said house by the defendant.

That in any event the damages assessed by the judge against the plaintiff are excessive and should be reduced.

That the learned judge erred in accepting the evidence of the defendant rather than that of the plaintiff.

In the judgment His Honour Judge Huycke gave Israel Payne repossession of the house held by his daughter-in-law, Hester Payne, and gave to Hester Payne the furniture contained in the house and $1,500 damages.

PREPARE PLANS

the Public Schools Act, and the Council refuses to issue such debentures, the Board may request the Inspector to issue a report certifying the necessity, in his judgment, for such increased accommodation, and may also request the Department of Education to issue a certificate approving the proposed site and plan of building which it is intended to erect thereon. Upon the issuing of such report and certificate, the Board may, on a two-thirds vote of the members present at any regular meeting or special meeting called for the purpose, pass a resolution pointing out the need for such additional accommodation, and requesting the Council to issue debentures for the sum necessary to provide the same. On presentation of this resolution to the Council, accompanied by copies of the Inspector's report, and certificates issued by the Department, certified by the Secretary of the Board, the Council shall forthwith pass the necessary by-law and issue debentures as requested by the Board.

The above is a copy of a resolution which has been referred to the executive of the Urban Trustees' Association for consideration and each Board has been asked for an expression of opinion in this connection.

Submitted to Peterborough Board of Education last night, an expression of opinion was declined and on motion by Mr. Denne, the resolution was merely "received."

After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a wedding breakfast was served, only the immediate friends of the family being present. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rose will reside in Toronto.

There are left to mourn his loss, his wife, two sons, George and Walter, and four daughters Mrs. M. Drysdale, Mrs. William Pomeroy, and Lillian all of Peterborough, and Mrs. C. Kingscote of Toronto. He is also survived by three brothers, Charles and Harry of Peterboro and Walter of Madoc.

The funeral will be held on Thursday at 3 o'clock.

HICKS CALLED

suspicions; I think the leak is located."

Not the Facts

The Premier added that what Mr. Hicks said took place in caucus was not in accordance with the facts.

The member for South Huron persisted in his statement.

E. J. Evans, the new government whip declared that if a man in caucus pledged his word and had so little respect for himself and his fellow men that he gets up like a "contemptible rattlesnake" the rest of the sentence was lost in the interruption.

Mr. Hicks declared that he reaffirmed what he said to Press, that the caucus took place and the matter he referred to came up.

Came Back at Hicks.

D. J. Taylor, North Grey, came back at Hicks, "The discussion and decision of that caucus were in no wise what they have been claimed to be by Mr. Hicks. I did not sign a false denial when I signed that statement."

Demands Apology.

W. H. Casselman rose to demand an apology from the Premier.

"If he accused me of taking and giving away caucus secrets I want him to apologize now," the House laughed at the heated protest of Mr. Casselman and the Premier joined in the laugh.

"Never mind, Mr. Premier, that laugh will come off your face before long," retorted Casselman.

He challenged Mr. Drury to say whether he had not played fair in the House. Whenever he had any matter to bring up in the House he had always consulted the Minister of the Department before he did so. "I ask the Premier if I did not always do that."

"I have nothing to say," remarked the Premier.

The member for Dundas took up the point of his notice for the caucus being late.

"I can corroborate what the member for South Huron says about that notice. It was several days after the notices ere sent to the other members."

"Quite true," put in Mr. Drury. "And in that caucus I asked the chairman why my notice for it arrived late," went on Mr. Casselman.

"The premier undertook to answer the question I put to the chairman, and what was his answer? He said that it must have been an oversight on the part of his secretary. Again Mr. Casselman demanded an apology from the Premier for the "leak" accusation.

In a discussion, E. J. Evans, U.F.O. whip characterized Mr. Hicks as a "contemptible rattlesnake," but he afterwards withdrew the remark.

PLEADED GUILTY OF INCENDIARISM

John V. Ison, Charged With Firing London Buildings, Remanded For Sentence.

LONDON, May 2. — (Canadian Press.)—Confessing to eleven out of twelve charges of wilfully setting fire to London buildings over a period of five years, with property loss of nearly a million dollars, John V. Ison pleaded guilty to-day to every charge the Crown preferred against him. He will be sentenced in one week.

Never in the history of London have citizens been so stirred up as over Ison's career as a fire bug. The police court was jammed to-day, while many stood in the corridors, endeavoring to get a look at the 22-year-old youth who, with downcast eyes, admitted that he deliberately set fire to building after building, including churches, militia property, down town stores and residences.

According to Dr. James Wilson, jail physician, who examined Ison twice yesterday, the young fire bug is what is known as paranoic.

"I found him sane on practically every subject," said Dr. Wilson today. "He seems to be a level-headed chap and intelligent as they make them. He told me he just couldn't hold himself, and liked to see the flames."

SAYS SUN APPEARS TO BE ON STRIKE

Earth Receiving Less Solar Heat Than Fifteen Months Ago.

Government scientists, including the heads of the United States Weather Bureau, have been thoroughly startled by results of examinations made of the sun's world heating capacity, made by Dr. C. G. Abbot, Home Secretary of the National Academy of Science. According to Dr. Abbot, the sun appears to have gone on strike, and is exerting its warming qualities upon the earth to an extent from three to four per cent. less than fifteen months ago. This unusual action on the part of the sun is assumed to be responsible for the present late spring; may have had its influence upon the strange winter season just passed and may presage a damagingly cold summer and an intensely severe season next winter. Scientists see in the present situation a possible duplication of the disastrous summer of 1816 when frosts occurred during June and July, causing wholesale loss of crops and reducing food production to a minimum. Whatever may be the cause of the decision of the sun to reduce its heating effect, no one is prepared to say when the present conditions may return to normal and further increases in the cooling off process are considered possible.

While Dr. Abbot offers no reason for the sun's changes in temperature, other scientists connected with the various Government institutions, associate them with phenomena of sun spots, resulting from wholesale eruptions of gaseous substances from the sun's surface, extending outward almost unimaginable distances.

Neither Dr. Abbot nor Prof. Charles R. Marvin, chief of the Weather Bureau, would discuss the effect of these strange solar conditions upon next winter. All acknowledge the world is facing a strange and unusual situation which probably will right itself, but which may have a startling effect upon climatic conditions during the next twelve months.

Herbert J. Browne, writing in the Dearborn Independent, says:

Crop failures may come from any unseasonable climatic cause. Nature's balance may be upset from several directions. What has happened in the past is apt to happen again.

In the bed of the Ohio River below Pittsburgh is a rock exposed only at extremely low stages of the river and said to have been even partly uncovered only twice since white men have occupied the country. It carries the strange markings of some primitive pre-Columbian people and is believed to be their record of the river's fall during an extreme drought. The Indians of the Mississippi Valley had traditions of a drought and famine so severe that there was no grass for the deer or buffalo, which died of starvation; even bird life disappeared, the Indians themselves surviving only by living on fish from the depleted streams and the lakes.

A later and more definitely recorded year of calamity was 1816, "The Year Without a Summer." Various records have been preserved of this extraordinary period. Not only was it a year of sunspot maxima, but the year before Tomboro, in the island of Sumbawa, Dutch East Indies, blew up in one of the greatest volcanic explosions of modern times, filling the upper atmosphere with hundreds of cubic miles of fine volcanic dust, which in a few months spread all over the earth, lasting for three years, and in conjunction with the disturbance of the sunspot maxima intercepted enough of the sun's heat to account for the cold weather of 1816. No crops were raised even in Virginia. Potatoes, beans, wheat, rye and corn hardly got above the ground. There was no hay or pasturage, and farmers sold their livestock for a few dollars a head to the more fortunate ones who had carried over from the previous year a supply of hay and grain. Ice formed and snow fell every month in the year. While the East was well settled, the trans-Appalachian country was receiving its first strong impulse of hardy pioneers. Detroit was a small village and military post, St. Louis a French fur-trading settlement and Chicago still Fort Dearborn. The abnormal cold extended to the British Isles, Europe and even into North Africa. It may here be noted that 1762, 1816 and 1870, three seriously abnormal years, fit into the 55.6 year cycle of highest maxima of sunspots, that the dry year 1881 recorded nearly as many sunspots as the 11.11 year cycle of 1883, and that the next 55.6 year major cycle will fall in 1930-27.

The Record of 1816.

The most interesting record of 1816 is that of Charles Peirce, of Philadelphia, from which the following is taken:

April—Mean temperature 47. Cold blustering snow storms; ice several nights. All buds and green things killed.

May—Mean temperature 57. A frosty jade, her frowns many, her smiles few. Cold frosty nights, north winds. Buds and small fruit frozen. Ice ¼ to ½ inch. Corn replanted three times.

June—Average temperature 64. Coldest ever remembered. Severe frosts and on one day ice. All restarted plants killed.

Six to ten inches snow in Vermont, three inches in New York, several inches in Maine and New Hampshire.

July—Mean temperature 68. Frost and thin ice 5th. Ice as thick as window-glass in New York, New England and Pennsylvania. Grass destroyed. Very little rain.

August — Cheerless and cold. North-east rains. Ice ½ inch thick. Indian corn frozen. Newspapers from England say: "It will be remembered by the present generation that the year 1816 was a year in which there was no summer."

September—Opened mild. Mean temperature 62. Frosty 17th. Severe Equinoctial storm, 23rd. Then several days of freezing weather.

October—Mean temperature 41. Cold, freezing; a few warm days.

November—Mean temperature 41. Cold. Froze hard several nights.

December—Mean temperature 32. Milder.

History Tells of 'Cold Spells.

Peirce records that December, 1815, saw more intensely cold weather than any December in 25 years, and that 1816 was also of exceptional severity in Europe, North Africa and the West Indies. Seed corn held over from 1815 sold for $4 a bushel on the cob in the spring of 1817. He also notes that the year 1762 had the severest drought on record in Pennsylvania, that scarcely a drop of rain fell from May to September, and that there were no crops.

The extraordinarily cold year of 1816 was a repetition of many such recorded since the beginning of the Christian Era. In 301 the Black Sea was frozen over, and in 401 not only the Black Sea but the Bosporus, the Dardanelles and the Sea of Marmora, and again in 762. In 1384 the Adriatic froze. History records a startling number of weather catastrophes, the recurrence of which now, with population pressing more and more closely upon the heels of production, would menace the welfare of humanity. They have come oftener than once in a century, but it has been less than a hundred years since food supplies have been brought thousands of miles to the populous trading and manufacturing nations. And it is a singular paradox that so far famines have affected principally the agricultural populations of the regions where the droughts have fallen. It could not fail to fall heavily on the non-producing centres if it were to occur again in the near future.

FORD HAS PLAN KEEP WORKERS ON THE FARMS

Turn Farms Into Miniature Factories Providing Good Wages During Slack Winter Months.

BACK TO THE LAND

By NORRIS QUINN.

DETROIT, May 3.—Michigan, whose fertile, rolling soil drew forth the crop of "I-wanna-go-back-to-the-farm" popular songs a few years ago, soon will become the testing ground for the most revolutionary social experiment ever undertaken.

FORD

Henry Ford, automobile magnate and capitalist, is the promoter of the experiment. He's willing to back the project with a large part of the million - a-month income he enjoys.

Ford plans to do this: He wants to stop the continually growing exodus of young men from the farm to the crowded industrial centre. But, at the same time, Ford needs thousands of workmen to turn out his annual quota of motor cars.

Work at Home.

So he intends to turn farms all over Michigan into miniature factories, operated by water-power, where farm lads can earn good wages during the otherwise idle months of the winter, while during the sommer they can turn their attention to farm labor—the production of food for the nation.

Ford's plan has just become generally known through a bill introduced into the Michigan State Senate which would make water-power available for the Ford project.

But Ford himself told me the germs of his plan in an exclusive interview here in January, 1922, which I passed on to the Examiner readers through NEA Service.

"The great cities are doomed," Ford told me at that time. "I don't mean they'll fall to ruins immediately. A few will stay. They'll be big distributing and assembling points—not congested centres of population.

"The people will go back to the farm and small town. They're headed that way now.

City's Value.

"The city has served a useful purpose. It has taught people how to live in groups. When they go back, they won't tolerate unpaved streets, badly equipped schools, defective sanitation.

"Factory workers won't commute to and from work—their work will commute to and from them. They'll manufacture parts in their village and rural workshops and these parts will be assembled at big distributing points."

Ford said he had already tried this plan out and found it worked.

"I'm experimenting in several

A NAVAL BASE AT SINGAPORE

Change in British Naval Policy is Designed Solely to Protect Trade Routes.

LONDON, May 3.—(Special.)—A complete change in the British naval policy is announced in connection with the construction of a naval base at Singapore, for which the House of Commons is being asked to vote ten million pounds. The destruction of the German navy makes concentration in the North Sea unnecessary, and the British Admiralty is therefore reverting to its former policy of assigning the fleet to world stations chosen for their strategic values in protecting the trade routes.

In introducing the bill Commander B. Meyers, Monsell, stated that strong representation, which should be made to the Government by the Dominions had strongly influenced the Cabinet in reaching its decision.

It outlining that Admiralty policy the financial secretary said the Admiralty expressed a hope that the Dominions would co-operate in the construction and maintenance of these trade bases. Assertions made by Liberal and Labor members that the change of policy is the first step for the preparation of a new war is stoutly denied by the First Lord of the Admiralty, who declared emphatically that the step was merely for insurance. It is extremely significant that the majority of critics of the new scheme claim that the new Pacific base is a definitely hostile challenge to Japan and a distinct breach of the Washington agreement, which precluded further developments at Hong Kong.

These opponents of the policy claim that the new scheme is an underhand move to avoid Britain's treaty of obligation, but merely point out, that the wishes of the Dominions were a strong factor influencing the Government's decision.

The question of what and how the several constituent members of the Empire may contribute to the Singapore and other trade bases will certainly be discussed at the forthcoming Imperial Conference.

THE SPEAKERS DENY CHARGE AGAINST REDS

Tikhon Dethroned as Patriarch of All Russia—Church Conclave in Session.

LENINE ENDORSED

(By John Graudens United Press Staff Copyright)

BERLIN, May 3.—The all Russian Church Congress to-day by unanimous vote dethroned the Metropolitan Tikpon, partriach of Russia who is facing trial on a charge of resisting the Soviet government.

Tikpon was denounced as a traitor in resolutions adopted by the Congress. His patriarchate was ordered abolished.

While outside world is ringing with charges that Christianity is being persecuted by Bolsheyik regime in Russia speakers at all Russian Church conclave yesterday laid halo of praise upon "Evanglical" aims of Soviet Government. Premier Lenine was declared to be dear to church and prayers were asked for his recovery, it was solemnly asserted that there is no persecution of religious thought in Russia while Government was characterized as an organization which "Though non-believing, is doing good while many of us who are believers are doing wrong." Among speakers was Bishop Edgar Blake of Chicago, Bishop of American Methodist Episcopal Church of Southern Europe. "Revolutions and upheavals are not born of death," he said, "they just how new life and our hearts should be filled with gladness. Russia," he said, "was dedicating itself to do good for masses of humanity."

Dr. Nolan has informed the members of the Westmoreland County Medical Society that the cure is possible through the "inhalation of practically pure carbon in an amorphus form and calcium in the form of carbonate, phosphate, chloride and lactate. Seventy two cases, mostly far advanced, he said, have responded to the treatment so well that they could be pronounced cured. He said htat he had been assisted in reaching his conclusions by Dr. Oscar Klotz, of the ockefeller Foundation. Dr. Klotz is reported to be in Ottawa.

BOY 14 TWIXT LOVE AND DUTY

Encounters Problem Which Would Make Romance Were He Three Times His Age

ST. PAUL, May 3.—Joe Marks is a boy policeman and, although he's only 14, he already has encountered a problem of love vs. duty that would make a romance if the hero were three times Joe's age.

JOE MARKS.

Unaided, Joe solved the mystery of the murder of his stepfather and within two hours led detectives to a man who now is accused of the deed.

But—this man, in his alleged confession, implicated Joe's own mother!

Louis Rottach, Joe's stepfather, was slain while asleep in his bed with his wife and their three-year-old son, Buddy.

Joe heard shots, rushed downstairs and caught a fleeting glimpse of the supposed slayer as he escaped across the lawn.

Starts Sleuthing.

He called police, but true to the training of his duties on the school police force, started at once to unravel the crime.

He remembered that his father had had bitter words with his mother's brother-in-law, Frank Retano, Minneapolis, and that Retano had threatened violence.

He remembered that the fleeing man he saw through the window looked like Retano. He looked through his mother's belongings and when police arrived had obtained Retano's Minneapolis address.

Police detectives, acting on Joe's tip, found the man and they charge he was hiding the gun in a bureau drawer in his room.

Retano confessed, according to police, but said that Mrs. Rottach had paid him $5 to buy the revolver and had left the door unlocked so that he could enter the house.

MARKS DROP AGAIN.

LONDON, May 3.— (United Press.) — German marks dropped thirty-five thousand to the pound sterling on the London Exchange to-day. This crash followed an announcement that the French would certainly reject the German proposal for a reparations settlement.

HE SAVED EIGHT FROM DEATH IN OTONABEE RIVER

Yet Peculiar Apathy of Royal Humane Society is Evinced in Regard to Heroism.

CASE OF J. MURPHY

The Examiner has on several occasions drawn attention to the peculiar apathy evinced by the Royal Humane Society in the case of one of Peterborough's citizens who has, within the last quarter of a century been the active instrument in the saving of no less than eight lives from drowning in the fierce currents of what a visitor to Peterborough at one time poetically described as the "sparkling waters of the bounding Otonabee."

To Mr. John Murphy ,of 57 Smith Street, belongs a life-saving record which, so far, has had no further public recognition than the thanks of those he rescued from a watery grave. A man of powerful physique, possessed of a quick eye and undoubted courage, with a knowledge of the river and its habits gained from previous experience as a river-driver and expert swimmer, Mr. Murphy is the type of man whose first quick impulse would be to plunge into the rescue of a fellow-creature.

Skill and Courage.

An instance of the part which his skill and courage and readiness to risk self for others played in the saving of probably seven lives on one single occasion last year shows also the peculiar entangling circumstances which surround sudden tragic occurrences and the excitement which clouds most men's minds in moments of peril.

Two Boys Saved.

Two boys, Howard Kendry and Clarence Beebe, on a day in April of last year, were gathering driftwood in the water at the foot of Smith street, when their punt upset and left them clinging to an almost-submerged stump in the water about seventy feet from the shore. Residents of the district flocked to the banks of the river and hurry-up calls were sent to the police and fire stations for aid. The father of young Beebe attempted to wade out to the stump, get half way, and was compelled to turn back. In the meantime John Murphy heard the call, and, not waiting for an instant, rushed across the bridge and plunged into the cold water. With his knowledge of the river, he succeeded in reaching the stump and returned with young Beebe, cold and numb from the frigid bath, in his arms. Wheeling to return for the other lad, he was fore stalled by the action of Mr. Claude Rogers, who pushed out in a boat towards the stump, to which a rope had been flung and attached by this time. Here the mix-up commenced, Mr. Rogers' boat struck the stump sank, and left him hanging to the same perilious refuge as the young boy, Howard Kendry, who still clung to it. Out from the shore shot a second boat, manned by four members of the police and fire departments, who had responded to a call for help.

And, at the last critical moment, with the river higher than usual and the current runing strong and swift,

FREE LIBRARY DOING A GOOD WORK IN CITY

Members Young Men's Section of Chamber of Commerce Hear Interesting Talk

BY F. M. DELA FOSSE

The members of the Young Men's Section of the Chamber of Commerce last night visited the Public Library, where the method of organizing and carrying on Carnegie libraries was described in an illuminating talk by the librarian, Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse.

The Library was founded in Peterborough in 1910, receiving $30,000 from the Carnegie fund on condition that the city pay 10 per cent. of that sum towards its upkeep. The city, Mr. Dela Fosse told the members, is doing very much more than that. The Library is under the control of the city, and is managed by a board composed of three members appointed by the city, two appointed by the Separate School Board and three appointed by the Board of Education.

The Ontario Government a year ago passed a law authorizing Library Boards to call on municipalities to pay up to 50 cents a head of the population for the upkeep of libraries, by which the Peterborough Board could demand, if it so wished, about $12,000. This year the request was for $8,800.

The librarian chooses the books and the Board passes on them, rejecting or accepting what they wish. Most of the books are obtained by purchase, but 200 a year on the average are given to the Library by friends. All Government publications come to the Library regularly, being sent free of charge. About $1,800 is the estimate for purchase of books, annually, and for this amount about 1,800 books can be secured.

After a book is received there are twelve or thirteen operations before it is put into circulation. Every book, excepting fiction, is indexed three times—under the title, name of the author and subject. There are ten main divisions of subjects—reference, philosophy, religion, sociology, philology, natural science, useful arts, fine arts literature, travel.

Record Last Year.

Last year the Library enjoyed the biggest circulation in its history, about 85,000 books being passed out to the public. About 500 new members are added every year, exclusive of the children's department, where about the same number join. The children's section is one of the most inspiring features of the organization, Mr. Dela Fosse said. Little tots of 6 and 7 may be seen there daily reading as best they can. Special chairs and low tables are provided for the children, and sometimes eighty or ninety use the room at one time.

The museum in connection with the Library is an added attraction, the exhibits being loaned in certain cases for educational purposes.

The record for circulation for last year shows that fiction is very far in the lead with the public. Up to April 15 this year the following volumes were taken out: Fiction 17,345, biography 408, religion 150, sociology 275, natural science 197, useful arts 282, fine arts 161, literature 586, travel 587, history 301, and reference works estimated at 4,000. The reference department, Mr. Dela Fosse said, is one of the most useful phases of the Library's work. Many pupils from the Normal, Collegiate and public schools make regular use of this department.

An effort was made several years ago to attract the support of the surrounding townships, but this was not taken up with any enthusiasm by them. At present, rural members are compelled to pay a deposit of $2, but this might be eliminated if the municipalities assumed a share of the responsibility of maintenance.

Although the interest shown in the Library by the number of books taken out is very gratifying, Mr. Dela Fosse believes that a great many more citizens might avail themselves of the advantages offered. One view of the case which might commend itself to thrifty persons is that they are paying for the maintenance of the Library through taxes, and should therefore make abundant use of the facilities provided by their money. The teachers in the schools are instructing the pupils in the advantages of the

MRS. RAFAELO MERCURIO.

OHAMA, Neb., May 3. — Mrs. Rafaelo Mercurio has been in the shadow of the valley of death—and has come back to tell about it.

But Dr. W. A. Gerrie detected a faint heart beat. He injected adrenalin. Life returned.

To-day Mrs. Mercurio is rapidly recovering. Soon she will be caring for her home and family.

"I could feel death pulling me," she says. "It seemed I was far away and alone. I resolved to die in peace. Voices became gradually more distant and finally I could not hear them at all.

BLAME SENATE FOR TROUBLES

Attorney General Manson Replies to H. H. Stevens of Vancouver.

VICTORIA, May 3. —(Canadian Press.)—Declaring that the Senate of Canada alone is responsible for border liquor running out of British Columbia, because of its failure to give the Provincial Government power to prohibit as well as regulate traffic, Attorney General A. Manson issued a statement last night replying to charges made against him in the House of Commons yesterday by H. H. Stevens, Conservative member for Vancouver.

Mr. Manson said that bitterness of Mr. Stevens' political animus toward him seemed to unbalance his judgment and eliminate a sense of honesty.

"He throws his avowed prohibition views to the winds in his desire to malign a political opponent," he said. "I have confidence that others in his party may rise above mere party malice."

Mr. Manson added that establishment of export liquor houses could not be prevented. It was a matter of trade and commerce and purely Federal matter.

YOUNG BOY CAPTURES LITTER TIMBER WOLVES

FORT WILLIAM, May 3.—(Canadian Press). — Gordon Cooper, a young son of Alf. Cooper, of this city, on Tuesday brought into the city a litter of eight timber wolf cubs which he had captured in the wolf's den near Murillo. The day before he had seen the mother and followed her to her den, but she showed fight, and he returned the following day with a rifle, frightened her off with a shot, and returned with the eight cubs in his knapsack. They are being suckled by a setter foster mother.

WORKERS PARTY DENOUNCED BY LOCAL LABOUR

Policies Condemned by Trades Council and Emissary Excluded by Railway Men.

MINIONS OF SOVIET

The policies of the Workers' Party of Canada were denounced by the Trades and Labor Council last night in a resolution which directly reflected the opposition of organized Labor in Peterboro to this new movement, which was said to be "Bolshevistic" in its ideals of communism, absolutely inimical to the Labor Unions of this country, and which was described as the left wing of the Russian Reds with headquarters at Moscow.

While Labor was thus declaring its position, several organizers of the Workers' Party were holding a meeting in Victoria Hall with the avowed intention of organizing a branch in this city. About 10 o'clock when both meetings were over, a woman arrived from Victoria Hall at the Labour Hall, with a keen desire to address any one who would give her audience. The trades delegates were just coming out of their room, but in the main hall the members of the local lodge of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way were holding an open meeting to which the Toronto woman with features made in the mold of Krylenko and other leaders of Russia's "red terror," sought admission. She sent in her "credentials" for a hearing, but was politely notified by the railwaymen that she could not talk from their platform.

Thus, organized Labor expressed and emphatically demonstrated its opposition to the so-called "Workers Party of Canada." One of the speakers at the Labor Council's meeting asserted that the plans and objects of these professing Communists was to bore into the Labor unions under the pretense of offering them "something better" and then if they ever get control of Labor in Canada to bring about a revolution.

The International unions unions under the American Federation of Labor had guided the policies of the workingmen of this country and the United States upon safe and sound lines, it was said. The betterment of the conditions of the workers and the improvement of their trades, had been gradually raised to the present standard by methods that had been in accord with true democracy and that successfully overcome hostile movements that sought to disrupt the Internaitonal unions. Reference was made among other such "borings from within," the Independent Workers of the World, and the One Big Union.

Labor's strength, it was asserted, abided in the International unions, and an appeal was made to the delegates to the Trades Council to put forth renewed efforts at this time to resist the policies of the so-called Workers' Party, and to consolidate the old unions against this new movement which was regarded as essentially inimical to the interests of organized labor.

A representative of the Boot and Shoe trade urged that footwear bearing the union label be demanded by all union men.

GERMANY MAKES NEW PROPOSAL REGARDING REPARATION PAYMENTS

Payment of Thirty Billion Gold Marks is Dependent on Raising of Three Foreign Loans.

VERY ELASTIC.

PARIS, May 3.—(Special)—The French Cabinet voted unanimously to-day to reject the German offer for settlement of reparations made yesterday in a note to all the Allies.

BERLIN, May 3. — (Canadian ress). — Germany has placed her latest proposals respecting reparations in the hands of the Allied Powers and the United States. Their chief feature is an offer of the sum of thirty billion gold marks in payment of her obligations under the Treaty of Versailles. The payment of this amount, however, is dependent, however, on the raising of a loan.

There was a wide divergence of opinion in political and neutral diplomatic circles in Berlin last night with respect to the effectivness of Germany's new reparations note. Criticism of its 'elasticity" and apparent lack of precise formulation is countered in official quarters with the assertion that the note provides a workable basis for serious negotiations, in that it not only suggests a definite starting point, but also urges invocation of neutral expert judgment in the event the creditor nations are unable to agree on the question of fixation and other debatable points.

The offer of thirty billions is interpreted in several quarters as permitting eventual amplification, but that this could not be definitely indicated in the present formal note inasmuch as it wholly depends upon upon the extent to which Germany is accorded complete freedom of economic development and placed in a position to undertake her internal financial rehabilitation.

The ultimate sum she will be able to render in cash and in kind will also be largely determined by the extent to which she is permitted to negotiate private contracts.

Franco-German Entente?

This reference in the official text constitutes one of its several "elastic factors" whose elucidation the Government is apparently reserving for the actual negotiations. The veiled manner in which allusion to it is made is commonly understood as suggesting overtures for a Franco-German industrial entente, to which the Ruhr industrialists are aspiring and which they believe constitutes the crux of such a reparation solution as will definitely appease France.

With reference to the present fixed amount of thirty billion, it is suggested that this more nearly approximates thirty-nine billions making due allowance for interest payments.

The note begins by emphasizing the view that the questions upon which depend the reconstruction of the devastated areas and the restoration of the sound economic life and peace of Europe can only be solved by mutual understanding.

Ruhr Occupation

The occupation of the Ruhr, the official declaration states, is diametrically opposed to such aspirations, and it therefore provoked the passive resistance of the Ruhr population

"The German Government," the note continues, 'shares the sober-minded desire of all people that the daily increasing tension be relaxed and the wanton destruction of economic values cease. The German Government therefore has decided to make another attempt to arrive at an understanding, without, however, abandoning its legal standpoint or desisting from passive resistance which is to be continued until the areas occupied in excess of the stipulations of the Treaty of Versailles have been evacuated and the conditions on the Rhine restored according to the terms of the Rhineland agreement."

The note reminds the Allies that all the resopres of the German Empire and States are encumbered under the Treaty of Versailles and that it is only through negotiationse with an international loan consortium and with the Reparations Commission how the hypothecation proposed could be arranged in a concrete manner for the loan and a decision reached as to what guarantees ought to be given.

Stabilize German Money

If German money can be stabilized at the same time that the reparations question is settled permanently, the note sets forth, "the fears of other industrial countries regarding German competition will simultaneously disappear."

Taking up the necessity of preventing the future seizure of guarantees, the note declares:

"To accomplish this program, and also in the interests of the creditors who subscribe to the loan, it is necessary that in future there be no seizure of guarantees.

J. J. MORRISON HAS NO POLITICAL AMBITION

TORONTO, May 3.—(Canadian Press). — When shown a despatch from St. Thomas last night that he would be invited to run in East Elgin, J. J. Morrison, U.F.O., secretary, chuckled and remarked it was quite unnecessary for him to deny statements that he was seeking a seat in the legislature. Carrying out his duties as Secretary of the organization provided more than enough work to keep him busy. He had no ambition to go in for politics he said.

SYRIAN THREATENS LIFE JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(Canadian Press).—Despite the efforts of two city detectives and four guards, John D. Rockefeller, junior was threatened with death yesterday when, as he walked down the steps of his home at 10 West Fifty-Fourth street, a man describing himself as a Syrian and armed with a pair of shears and a long black knife, lunged at him.

"You sold out my country and you made us slaves," shouted the Syrian Mr. Rockefeller backed up the steps of his home as the regular guards employed by him hurried to his side.

The Syrian gave his same as George Maurad, 39 years old. He had previously spent a month in Canada.

It took four guards, two detectives and a chauffeur to overpower him.

DIRECT CHARGE MADE AGAINST ATTY. GENERAL

Charges in the House of Commons Against British Columbia Official That He Aided Bootleggers.

SEQUEL TO HANGING.

OTTAWA, May 3. — (Canadian Press). — Direct charges against Attorney-General Manson of British Columbia came in the House of Commons yesterday as a sequel to yesterday morning's double hanging at Fort Saskatchewan. A bill to limit the importation of liquor into the wet provinces of British Columbia and Quebec was under consideration. "We are meeting today in the shadow of a tragedy of the Crow's Nest Pass," declared Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative member for Vancouver Centre, as he described how the British Columbia export business was formerly concentrated on the Pacific Coast.

"Certain houses," Mr. Stevens went on, "asked for and received from the Attorney-General of British Columbia and the Government permission to transfer that business to the Crow's Nest Pass, five or six hundred miles from the point of export, and there they established export houses. Everybody in British Columbia knew that the export business carried on from these houses was a bootlegging business, deliberately violating the laws of the United States and deliberately contravening the laws of Alberta. And those wretches who were hanged yesterday morning committed their heinous crime in the carrying out of that business in the Crow's Nest Pass, based upon the consent of the Attorney-General to establish the business in that section."

The effect of the bill before the House is to prohibit the import of liquor by private persons in the provinces of British Columbia and Quebec, where sale is in the hands of the Provincial authorities. An exception is made in the case of manufacturers and exporters.

W. G. McQuarrie, of New Westminster, submitted an amendment to provide for a Provincial referendum on the question whether a person, apart from the Provincial Government authority, shall have permission to import liquor into such provinces.

The bill and amendment will come up for further consideration later.

LIBERALS MEET AT WARKWORTH

Dr. W. G. Robertson Favorite With Gathering for Standard Bearer in Northumberland East.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, May 3. — A meeting of the executive committee of the Liberal Association of Northumberland East was held yesterday afternoon in the Leonard Hotel here, this town being the recognized gathering place for all county conventions, political and otherwise, owing to its easy access from all parts of Northumberland. The attendance was fairly representative, the delegates present being: J. Nelson Stone and D. J. Lynch, Campbellford; F. M. Brintnel, J. F. Witton, Dr. W. G. Robertson and J. E. Alyea, Colborne; Wesley Herrington, A. Talmage, Marcus Lovatt and A. Porter, Brighton; C. H. Curtis, Warkworth; J. J. Collins and George Stevenson, Hastings. Mr. Stone is chairman and Mr. Brintnell is secretary of the convention.

Choosing a Candidate.

The real object of the gathering was to discuss the question of putting a party candidate in the field for the coming election. There was perfect harmony at the gathering, but after the situation had been thoroughly discussed it was decided to adjourn the meeting to give opportunity for interviewing prospective nominees. The choice of the gathering, however, fell unanimously upon Dr. Robertson, of Colborne, who was one of the delegates, and the future course of the party is likely to depend upon Dr. Robertson's attitude with regard to the proffered honor. If he is willing, after considertaion, to accept the nomination, there is little doubt that it will be tendered him. The doctor is regarded as one of the strongest men of the Liberal party. He is in the prime of life, known from one end of the riding to the other, is a good platform speaker and campaigner, and would be a credit to any party as a standard bearer or to any riding as a representative. As one of the members of the executive put it after the meeting, Dr. Robertson has for some time been regarded as a coming man. He has served in public office as the reeve of Colborne and was one of the prominent members of the county council during his term of office.

The gathering here yesterday may have been numerically small, but its deliberations were of vast interest, not only to the Liberals themselves, but to the Conservatives and Progressives. For some time it appears to have been taken for granted that the two parties last mentioned would be left with a clear field and that the Liberals would not contest the riding. That was the situation in 1919 when Wesley Montgomery, the present U. F. O. member was elected Yesterdays' gathering has given the Conservatives and Progressives something new to think about. If the fight is to be a three-cornered one the Liberal candidate will have support that would otherwise go to the other two candidates, but it is conceded that the Progressives would be the chief sufferers in such a contest.

The Election of 1919.

Northumberland East has always been regarded as a Conservative stronghold, but the result of the election in 1919 changed the record. In that contest Wesley Montgomery, the U.F.O. candidate was successful over Alex. Hume ,the Conservative nominee, winning by 87 votes. Mr. Hume is a prominent farmer and is president of the agricultural society. Mr. Montgomery was renominated by his party at the annual meeting held nearly a year ago. The Conservatives have selected Major Belford of Codrington, as their candidate.

To Hold Party Intact.

"There should be a Liberal candidate in the field next June," said one of the members of the executive after the meeting had adjourned. "If we continue to let the riding go by default the young men and the new women voters who would, under ordinary conditions cast in their lot with the Liberals, will form other political associations.

Hydro Surveyor Here.

A surveyor for the Hydro Commission was here yesterday looking for the most desirable route for the new transmission line that is to be built from Bradley's Corners to link up the village with the system. It has not yet been decided whether to take the most direct route or to construct the line through Norham. In either case a fine agricultural section will be served and farmers along the way are waiting for a chance to secure light and power.

WOMAN PITCHED HAY DRESSED IN OLD BAGS

CHATHAM, May 3.—(Canadian Press).—With old bags serving as skirts, Mrs. John Rich appeared at the county police headquarters yesterday and laid a charge of non-support against her husband. She stated that she pitched hay on one occasion on her husband's farm while she wore two flour bags with strings through them as an underskirt.

Germany sold practically all her manufactured gloves abroad last year.

FRANCE GIVES WARNING TURKISH TROOPS MUST LEAVE SYRIAN BORDER

General Pelle Tells Turkey That France Will Not Be Bluffed—Conference May Break Up.

ECONOMIC FIGHT.

LAUSANNE, May 3.—(Canadian Press).—France has officially warned Turkey anew that she does not like the Turkish concentration of troops on the Syrian frontier and has added that if Turkish military pressure on the Syrian border is not removed it may be difficult for France to go on with the Lausanne peace negotiations.

Such is the news emanating from the French delegation last night. It has produced a very considerable sensation and led to hurried conferences between the Allied leaders.

The French charge delivered the French warning to Constantinople and General Pelle, the French High Commissioner, repeated it to Ismet Pasha, who said he would refer the point to his home government. Gen. Pelle had already warned Ismet Pasha of France's displeasure over the Turkish mobilization on the edge of French mandated territory and that if it was intended as an intimidation, while the French were occupied with Germany, to force more concessions out of the French delegates at Lausanne, it would not serve its purpose.

What General Pelle practically told Ismet was that France refused to be bluffed. The latest and more official notification to Turkey goes a step further, and, according to the French spokesman, plainly indicates to Angora that failure to liquidate the question satisfactorily to France may render continuation of the Lausanne pourparlers problematical so far as France is concerned.

The Turkish representatives issued a statement maintaining that they had a perfect right to mobilize troops in Cilicia.

The Turkish statement continued: "After all, we are still at war with the Allies and Greece and have a perfect right to maintain troops where we think fit."

Turkey has about 30,000 troops in Cilicia, and General Weygand, the French commander, will find about 26,000 French troops, chiefly Colonials, when he arrives in Syria as High Commissioner.

The French representatives further explained that no time limit was attached to the notification to Turkey, and there was no reason why the Lausanne negotiations could not continue at least for the present. In conference circles the general impression prevailed that the Franco-Turkish controversy would be adjusted and would not be the cause of a second collapse of the Near East Conference.

The second phase of the conferences which Lausanne is now witnessing is mainly a financial and economic battle between Turkey and Great Britain on territorial questions like Mosul.

France's protest against the troops in Cilicia is approved by the British delegation, the spokesman of which said last night: "France is quite right in protesting, because, with the armistice operating, no one could think of conducting peace negotiations if one party persisted in moving troops about with the supposed intent of influencing negotiations. We are not worried about this incident, and do not think it liable to endanger the Lausanne negotiations."

Winnipeg Women to Request Investigation

WINNIPEG, Man., May 3.—(Canadian ress —Claiming that there is no justification for the advance in sugar prices, the Women's Labor League of Winnipeg will request the Federal Government to institute an investigation, Mrs. Helen Armstrong, League President, announced yesterday. The League is urging a boycott by Winnipeg housewives against the use of sugar and intends to make a concerted effort with the housewives of the United States and Canada to force a reduction in the price of the commodity.

ARMISTICE DAY.

The decision of the Great War Veterans' Association to have Armistice Day this year celebrated on a large scale is to be commended, and the early discussion of the subject will serve a useful purpose in keeping the matter in the public mind.

Armistice Day, the anniversary of the end of the great war, is an occasion so rich in historic importance that it should be regarded as one of the most outstanding events of the year.

The men who fought in that war and who know just what the end of hostilities meant are right in their determination to see that the anniversary is properly celebrated, and there are many reasons why the public generally should be glad to co-operate with them in whatever programme they may consider appropriate, having in view the significance of the occasion.

If the thing is to be well done, the preparations cannot be left until the last minute, and the G.W.V.A. is none too soon in deciding upon a proper celebration and in bringing the matter to the attention of the people of Peterborough.

There is too general a tendency to neglect these things—and in this particular case there will be no opportunity to use the overworked excuse that the matter was overlooked until too late.

SCRAPPING THE ALLIANCE.

It is evident that the Morrison triumph over Premier Drury is so complete that not only has the titular head of the Government been compelled to throw overboard any idea of a fusion with a section of the Liberal party, but there are indications that the alliance between the U.F.O. and Labour is to be ended.

The Morrison plan does not call for a Farmer victory in the coming election.

At least the common understanding of the U.F.O. Secretary's policy is that he would prefer the Farmers to have a group large enough to get their own way, but not big enough to have to assume the responsibility of office.

The alliance with Labour—never a really logical joining of forces—is therefore to be scrapped.

The action of the U.F.O. representatives in South Wellington in notifying the Labour men that the understanding between the two is at an end is an indication of the new trend of affairs.

The result will be that four separate and distinct parties—Liberal, Conservative, U.F.O. and Labour—will appeal for the support of the electorate, instead of the Farmers and Labour going to the country as a fusion party.

And from present indications all four may have representatives in West Peterborough during the coming campaign—although Labour is rather a doubtful starter unless there is a sudden revival of interest.

SPLENDID PUBLICITY.

The warmest congratulations are due Peterborough's representatives in the Ontario Musical Festival, all of whom have proved superior to the opposition from all parts of the Province they had to meet.

Miss Agnes Logan, a pianist, young in years but of outstanding ability, has proven her worth by winning a whole group of first prizes. Miss Mathilde Masson captured the highest honours in the soprano competition and the Trinity Church Sunday School orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Rupert Gliddon, was successful in winning first place in the contest for Sunday School orchestras open to the Province.

These successes are a splendid advertisement for Peterborough, not only because of the proof they give of the talent of local musicians, but because they proclaim to the people of Ontario that this city possesses facilities for the musical education of her citizens that will stand comparison with those offered anywhere.

Publicity of that kind is of real value to a community, for people choosing a new home for themselves like to locate in a centre where they can be sure their children will not be deprived of a chance to advance along lines of music and culture.

The conspicuous success of the local entrants in the Ontario competition supplies that guarantee in the case of Peterborough, and the winners are not only to be congratulated upon their fine showing, but thanked for the credit they have reflected upon their home city.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

After over eight and a half years of splendid activity, the business of the local branch of the Patriotic Fund is being wound up, and henceforth, as in the case of other branches, the relief that is still being paid out will be administered from headquarters at Ottawa.

Of all the splendid war-time service carried on on the home front none has been more consistently beneficial, more steadfastly maintained, nor more economically administered than the Patriotic Fund.

During the years of war it helped the families of Canada's soldiers to keep the wolf from the door by supplementing the allowances of the soldiers, and since the end of hostilities the fund has been the means of looking after many cases in which there would have been dire distress had it not been for the helping hand extended by those in charge.

If the inside history of the Patriotic Fund and its activities could be printed it would be a human interest document such as has rarely been published, for it would tell of the manner in which the war was fought at home and throw a new light upon the situation.

The committee in charge of the local branch and the Secretary, Mr. F. H. Dobbin, have earned the gratitude of the community for their long years of faithful work in administering the trust placed in their hands during the first year of the war by the people of this city.

Their work has been sincere, consistent and painstaking, and in laying it down now they have the satisfaction of knowing that it has been a blessing to hundreds of Peterborough people caught in the maelstrom of the greatest war in history.

"WHAT IS SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE—"

If we are ever to run short of international questions, Akron, Ohio, is willing to supply one, with little persuasion, says Barron's. That city is the centre of the tire industry, and it assumes importance from the fact that the United States consumes, in connection with its enormous motor car expansion, rather more than 70 per cent. of the world's rubber. But the supply of rubber is controlled by the British. In order to keep up the price they have, at various points in the Far East, restricted the production of crude rubber.

Supposing as much as eight pounds of rubber to go into the production of the Ford type of tire, the difference between thirty cents and twenty cents a pound amounts to less than a dollar, in the cost of raw materials, and does not seem any very onerous tax, even if the Britisher makes the foreigner pay it. We know something ourselves about making the foreigner pay. But the Akron people say, "Suppose the British advance the price to a dollar?" They are not even threatening to do so, but there is an uncomfortable feeling that they might.

There is something else which enters into the composition of a tire, and that is cotton. Admitting that the Manchester cotton spinners had opportunities for getting cheap raw material at times in the past—of "buying a bale" at ten cents a pound—they have not been consulted by the American cotton growers when the boot has been on the other leg. We have played our cotton monopoly for all it is worth, and the protest about rubber seems to lack a sense of humor. Our tariff has large merits claimed for it, but benevolence to the foreigner is scarcely one of them.

Is it surprising, indeed, that we should be confronted with reprisals? There is a way out for the manufacturers of tires. There is nothing to prevent them from buying rubber plantation shares in the London market and securing control. They are entirely at liberty to put American capital into the Amazon district in order to stimulate the production of Para rubber. The British are stimulating the production of cotton in Australia and East Africa in exactly that way. It almost seems as if an international "incident" might be evaded.

REPARATIONS AGAIN.

The world has become so satiated with the hypocrisy and the chicanery that has surrounded the reparations problem ever since the Versailles Treaty that it is difficult to arouse interest in the announcement that Germany is going to make a new offer to the Allies. Nevertheless the pomp and circumstance surrounding the publication of the new offer have given it at least a vicarious interest. There has been much speculation as to the amount which Germany will offer and many guesses at the "guarantees" which Germany will propose. These are, however, of minor interest The chief concern of Europe in the new terms is whether or not they are honestly put forward, and whether France will treat them seriously and with open-mindedness.

Premier Poincare hinted in his speech at Dunkirk that no more promises by Germany would influence France in the relaxation of her iron grip on the Ruhr, and while he was not inclined to indicate the exact amount which France will accept, yet he suggested that modifications from the 1921 schedule of payments might be considered. The French Premier indeed took care to dissociate himself from the extreme annexationists who have been conducting a long and extremely loud campaign in France.

Any proposal which Germany may put forward will be of supreme interest to Britain. Chancellor Cuno is not dealing in this matter with France alone, but with the Allies in concert. In spite of the profound anxiety which the advance of the French into the Ruhr last January created throughout Britain, an anxiety which has been stimulated rather than allayed during the intervening weeks, the British people continue to entertain that friendly sympathy towards France which the joint sacrifices of the war made sacred. It must be obvious to France that no final solution of the reparations can be even worthy of consideration that is flatly rejected by Britain.

Premier Bonar Law's plan last January, which France so summarily rejected, involved a total payment of fifty billion gold marks. The occupation of the Ruhr area, which has increased the floating debt of Germany from one and a half million million marks to six and a half million million, has obviously decreased Germany's capacity to make immediate payments. The railways in the occupied area are working badly, and the production of the district has fallen off by at least fifty per cent. Yet the presence of 100,000 French soldiers in an industrial area supporting over six million Germans has had one effect which France did not reckon on, and which she will not look upon with favor. The occupation has done more than anything else could do to promote and solidify German unity. Just as Soviet Russia was cemented and the Communistic experiment made possible by the support of the Allies given to the mad adventures of Kolchak and Wrangel, so the new German State passed through a dangerous crisis when the presence of French soldiers rallied the smouldering fires of German patriotism.

France has shown little or no sign of ending her persistence, nor Germany her resistance. Great Britain, who desires the recovery of the economic peace of Europe, so that German and other customers may purchase British goods, will watch with interest the reactions of the latest reparations note on her own people, now growing somewhat restless, and on France.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Belleville is advertising for a slogan. The only one we can think of would not be acceptable to the committee.

The manner in which Peterborough musicians have been winning awards in the Ontario musical competition suggests that this must be clean-up week.

Now that the by-law in regard to the parking of bicycles is being enforced, the regulations about motor cars should be carried out in a similar manner.

It is evident that the Morrison doctrine of Us For Ourselves is the only policy the U.F.O. will stand by in the political battle that is before Ontario.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE ELECTED OFFICERS

Annual Meeting of League in Millbrook — Revealed Satisfactory Year's Work

MILLBROOK May 3. — The Young People's League held their annual meeting on Monday evening, and though the attendance was not as large as had been hoped for, the reports presented showed that the work is being faithfully carried on by the various departments from week to week throughout the year. The pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, had charge of the meeting, opening with the usual devotional period, and afterwards calling for the annual reports. The missionary department provides an especially interesting and instructive programme once per month under the efficient management of the Vice-President, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, who reported ten meetings held with a good attendance each time, latest facts from the mission fields presented in various forms, the evening when our missionaries in China were impersonated by some of the leaguers having been particularly helpful. The literary and social department has also been well looked after by Mrs. P. Stinson, the 3rd Vice-President, two evenings having been given to a nature study topic, two to social evenings in Mrs. Stinson's own home, while Tennyson, Shakespeare, Bryant, James Whitcombe Riley, Mendelssohn were some of the writers, musicians, etc., from whose works selected studies had been taken.

The Tuxis Boys and the C.G.I.T. group, who are responsible for the fourth and fifth Mondays each month, had not failed once in providing a programme for their evening. Mr. F. N. Alcorn, mentor for the former organization, was unable to be present, but the President gave a brief report of their activities. Miss Burnham gave the facts for her "Wide Awakes" group since their election of officers in February of this year. Eleven meetings have been held with an average attendance of twelve, the total membership being twenty-one Special programmes had been provided on three occasions for the league—Hallowe'en, a patriotic evening in January and the story of "Ruth" in dramatized form in April. The four-fold programme is being taken up in the girls' weekly meetings, according to the official requirements for a C.G.I.T. group, and the members in order to fulfill in some measure their obligation of service to the church have offered to prepare an exercise, "A Rainbow Bible Drill," and give it on review Sunday in June, thus relieving the Sunday School executive of the responsibility of this special occasion at a time when many of the pupils are busy with their examinations. Financially, the girls' group had also a satisfactory showing to report.

Officers Elected.

Unfortunately, neither the Secretary nor Treasurer were able to be present on Monday evening, so their reports will be heard next week. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Miss Estelle Hetherington.

1st Vice-President—Mr. Irwin Hatherly.

2nd Vice-President—Mrs. G. W. Sayles.

3rd Vice-President—Mrs. P. Stinson.

Literary Department—Miss May Byam (in association with the 3rd Vice-President).

4th Vice-President—Tuxis Square, F. N. Alcorn, Mentor.

5th Vice-President—C. G. I. T. group, Miss P. Burnham, Mentor.

Secretary—Miss Olive Fallis.

Treasurer—Mrs. W. West.

Organist—Miss Hattie Barnard.

Assistant Organist — Miss Lila Pethick.

The President reminded the members that the pastor and the only superannuated minister in connection with the local church, Rev. J. Wilks, are, according to the constitution, the Honorary President and Vice-President, and brought to the leaguers' attention the fact that Mr. Wilks has not yet recovered, in any satisfactory manner, from his recent severe illness, urging that all should remember him in their private devotions, adding petitions for his restoration to his wonted health and strength again.

The Forward Movement.

The Treasurer for the Forward Movement for missions, Mrs. Cecil Hubbeard, having resigned her office previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Sayles gave the very satisfactory statement that a total of $115.90 had been raised during the year just closed, $100 of which goes toward the support of Rev. E. and Mrs. Hibbard in West China. After all expenses are paid there will still be a small balance with which to begin the new year.

The new topic card was also presented by the President and discussed.

CO-OPERATIVE CHEESE SELLING IN COUNTY

The rapidity with which the co-operative system of selling cheese is spreading, is being illustrated in Peterboro County. Four years ago, there wasn't a factory in the county selling cheese co-operatively. The first factories to adopt the co-operative system of selling were Pine Grove, at Lakefield, Myrtle at Ennismore and Oakdole near Norwood. The following year, the Victoria factory, near Havelock, commenced to sell co-operatively. Last year Shearer Factory near Peterboro adopted the new method. Within the past few weeks, three additional factories in the county, Selwyn, near Lakefield, Villiers, near Keene, and Ormond, near Hastings, have signed contracts to sell their cheese co-operatively this season. This makes eight factories that are now selling co-operatively.

The Examiner was informed today by Mr. H. B. Cowan, secretary of United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited, that factories in other countries in the central Ontario district are also signing up to sell at the big central sale which the company is arranging to hold this year at Belleville. Three of the best factories which have signed up recently include Cloverdale, Ben Gill and Royal Street, of Prince Edward county. The Cloverdale factory last year made over 326,000 lbs. of cheese and is one of the largest cheese factories in the province. Rylstone factory, near Campbellford, the largest factory selling last year on the Campbellford Cheese Board, has also decided to sell co-operatively this year. These are all new factories and are in addition to the factories which sold through the co-operative company last year.

The co-operative company will hold its first sale at Belleville on May 12. Representatives from several Peterboro county factories are planning to motor to Belleville to attend the sale.

ASSESSMENT INCREASED AND FEWER PEOPLE PAY

While the assessment has been increased by over $600,000 the population has decreased 70, says the city assessor of Belleville. The total assessment for the present year exceeds ten million dollars for the first time in the city's history. Less exemptions the total assessment liable for taxes is nine and a half millions. The population of Belleville, however, has dropped to 12,244, a decrease from last year's total of 70.

EVERYTHING UP.

OTTAWA, May 3. — "Your company was among those which refused to sell to the United Grain Growers?" queried Mr. Thomas Sales, of Salt Coats, in the special House committee on agriculture, yesterday, when Mr. Thomas Bradshaw, general manager of the Massey-Harris Company, Toronto, was on the stand. The committee was dealing with farm implements.

"Yes,' concurred Mr. Bradshaw. "The Massey-Harris Company," he said, "had during 70 years built up a business of selling through its own agents direct to the consumer. To have sold to the f...in growers or othe middlemen would have meant that it would be impossible for us to control prices to the farmer," said Mr. Bradshaw.

"It would spoil the whole of our agencies' organization and their agencies would be in competition with ours. If they had experienced the difficulties which they eventually did experience our industry would have been ruined and they could still not have continued in business."

Will Not Sacrifice.

To Chairman McMaster witness reiterated that to have sold to the United Grain Growers would have meant the Massey Harris Company losing control of prices and would have lost its organization, which it had taken 74 years to build up.

"And this organization we are not going to sacrifice for any concern in Canada," witness asserted.

Quoting a U. G. G. report, he said, that company had sold off its stock of implements at 40 per cent. reduced prices.

"Where would we be under such circumstances?" he asked.

Mr. Sales declared such a reduction would not have occurred had the United Grain Growers been able to buy in Canada without having to pay duties and dumping duties.

The chairman declared that the United Grain Growers had not been given a fair chance to operate when they were refused supplies of machinery in Canada. It was unfair to say that they would have had the same difficulties without the handicap of duty and dumping duties.

Taking 14 farm implement companies, Mr. Bradshaw said in 1922 these companies had suffered a loss of ¼ of one per cent. on their investment. His own company had lost $1,288,000 in 1921. In the subsequent year there was a further loss. The company, of course, had been prosperous in the past. Among all companies there had been great mortality.

The tieup of capital was also important. At present farmers owed $8,000,000 to the Massey-Harris Co. On this the average rate of interest was 7½ per cent. The Ontario rate was 7 per cent., while in the west it was 8 to 9 per cent.

Thomas Sales (Salt Coats), called attention to the 9 per cent. rate in Saskatchewan. The implement companies, he said, had raised their rates to the maximum allowed under the Saskatchewan law. Mr. Bradshaw said that there was higher "time-payment" price than the quoted cash price. Usually 18 months elapsed before the company was paid for its goods.

To. Hon. J. E. Sinclair, witness said his company made more profit on its export trade than on Canadian sales. The prices abroad were higher than in Canada. Farm machinery had increased in price in Canada by 64 per cent. since 1913.

Comparing Prices.

Comparing Canadian and United States retail prices of machinery Mr Bradshaw declared the United States market, "as flooded with bargain - priced machinery through over production." Implement manufacturers were faced with the necessity of securing cash and sold at losses. One Quebec firm in financial difficulties was offering machines at 50 per cent. off production costs.

When different machines and equipment were considered, the average difference was not equal to the average difference in the freight rates. In Saskatchewan and Alberta the difference was in favor of the Canadian farmer, as compared with points directly south of him.

T. W. Caldwell (Progressive) of Carleton, New Brunswick, said that "he had never known of a time when machinery was not sufficiently cheaper in Maine to make farmers risk smuggling machinery across the border.

Mr. Bradshaw said that while farm implements had increased in price by 64 per cent., since 1913 other commodities which the farmer must buy showed much greater increases. The percentage increases quoted were: Clothing 76 per cent.; hardware, 86; lumber, 79 ,and miscellaneous 89 per cent.

Reduction Duties.

Last year's reduction of duties had not affected prices, the witness said, the sales tax increase having nullified this tariff reduction.

When asked to produce cost statements witness said "Manufacturers to-day were not working on costs—they were going on faith." His company had lost $500,000 last year, and over $1,288,000 in the previous year. Material prices to-day were so variable that manufacturers could hardly figure their cost of operation. Factories were running under abnormal production conditions, turning out half their capacity and with heavy overhead.

Witness said he "could not see how a cost statement could be given."

"You say your retail prices are fair and reasonable; we say let us have the particulars of how you arrive at costs," said Mr. McMaster. "I cannot accept the idea that you do not know within a few cents of what every machine costs you."

Witness said present prices were based to some extent on what had previously obtained.

Mr. McMaster asked that the cost accountant of the company be sent to give the details. Mr. Bradshaw said that he preferred to come back himself, and "would do the best he could."

Mr. Sales questioned witness as to a statement by Professor Oliver of Saskatoon that "it only cost $38 to produce a binder,' and a further statement that "if a train load of binders was wrecked the railway would only have to pay $30 per binder, which was the production cost." Witness vehemently declared "There never was such a train wreck nor was there ever such a payment."

Mr. Bradshaw will be recalled by the committee next week. To-morrow the committee will take up rural credits in Ontario.

Authorize Sale to Toronto of Railway.

TORONTO, May 3.—(Canadian Press).—In the House of Commons a bill was introduced yesterday afternoon by Hon George P. Graham, minister of Railways and Canals, empowering the Canadian National Railways to sell to the City of Toronto that portion of Toronto suburban railways lying within the city limits, according to message from Ottawa last night. The Bill also proposes to empower the Canadian National railways, which are now doing an express business, to carry on a money order business and give the usual required sureties for transmission of such orders.

THE SCHOOL ISSUE MAY PASS COUNCIL AT CAMPBELLFORD

Indicated That Division at Monday's Meeting Will Stand Five to Four in Favor of Issuing Debentures.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3. — Hon. N. W. Rowell of Toronto, will not be retained by the town council to give an opinion on the council's responsibility for the issue of debentures for a new High School. At the meeting of the town fathers on Monday night a resolution was adopted referring the question to Mr. Rowell, but this action was rescinded at another special session held yesterday morning, this session having previously been called to consider the matter of repairing a piece of machinery near the Fair grounds. At the regular meeting to be held on Monday evening the debenture issue will be finally disposed of.

From present indications the vote will stand five to four in favor of complying with the request of the Board of Education.

Reeve Anderson took a leading part in the move to secure outside legal advice and it was Reeve Anderson who first suggested that the matter be allowed to drop so far as this phase of it was concerned. He stated that in his opinion it would no be wise to incur any further expense. Town Solicitor Humphries had ruled that the council had no alternative but to issue the debentures as requested and this opinion should be accepted as final. The reeve added that on the final vote, no matter what the opinion of Mr. Rowell might be, the council would by a majority of one decide to issue the debentures.

Nothing, he claimed, was to be gained by pursuing the question further as the council had done all in its power and had acted up to the limit of its authority.

The majority of the members of the present council were elected on their pledges that they would not consent to a debenture issue for a High School until the taxpayers had authorized such action by a plebiscite. Those who are now ready to vote for the issue now claim that by so doing they are not violating any promise given the voters before the election. In support of this contention they point out that the by-law under which the debentures are to be issued were passed by a former council and that the members of this year's council are bound by its provisions. During the last civic election the understanding was that if a school costing $90,000 was to be put up. This would have called for a grant of $20,000 by the present council, and the councillors elected on the "no school" platform could have forced the Board of Education to submit their proposition to the people.

After the special session yesterday the councillors made a trip of inspection to the site of the new school and examined the location for the building decided upon by the Board on the previous day. There is some difference of opinion as to the site and it was announced that the board would be asked to confer with the council on changes that have been suggested.

At least two members of the council are outspoken in the opinion that as the town is to have a new High School it should be a building that will serve the community for years to come and that the additional $20,000 required for such a building should be voted. Of this amount the town under the new law and with the ratio of urban and rural attendance as it is to-day would really pay not more than $10,000.

The High School Grant

Word has been received here that the grant to the High School held up last year year, and the restoration of which was promised by Minister of Education Grant, has been placed in the estimates. The amount as now given is over $1400.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Mission Band Gave An Entertainment Tuesday Evening—Personals.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3.—The entertainment given in the schoolroom of the Methodist Church, under the auspices of the Mission Band, on Tuesday night, was a grand success, and much credit is due Miss Lulu Gay, the superintendent, for the creditable manner in which the children acquitted themselves.

The school-room was well filled with parents and friends of the children, and each number on the programme was heartily applauded, particularly the closing "Good-Night Drill" by eight little girls, dressed in white with night caps and dolls each, carrying a candle, which is worthy of special mention.

The pastor, Rev. H. B. Kenny, presided in his usual capable manner. During the intermission, the girls disposed of an abundance of delicious candy in dainty little boxes for which they found a ready sale.

The programme was as follows:

1. Opening chorus by the members—"The World's Children For Jesus."
2. Instrumental solo—Miss Helen Thomas.
3. Recitation — Master George Smith.
4. Solo—Miss Margaret Covert.
5. Exercise—"A Bag of Wishes," by Roxie Wilson, Reta Palliser, Irene Jeffs, E. Wilson, Lois MacPherson, John Phillips, Mervin Malcolm.

Workman Injured.

John Henry Carter, an employee of the paper mill, was seriously injured last evening while at work. He was standing on a step ladder attemping to put a belt on a pulley when the ladder slipped and he fell to the floor sprining his ankle and sustaining painful bruises.

GOOD TIMES AHEAD SAYS PREMIER KING

OTTAWA, May 3.—(Canadian Press).—"It ill becomes Mr. Meighen to assail and cast reflections upon the personal character of public men by whom he is opposed, to talk of duplicity and deception of the electorate and to urge his following in the senate to aid him in his effort to create prejudice through instrumental of vicious propaganda in the country; for his whole tenure of office as prime minister was one of usurpation of office and were one to eliminate from his side members who were returned by a minority of votes is their constituencies, he would have as many followers in parliament to-day as he had cabinet ministers when he went to country."

This statement was made by Premier King in the course of an address delivered at a banquet tendered him last night by Liberal members of the House of oCmmons and Senate.

The Premier promised good times for anada and said that unity would bring peace and plenty to land.

POSTPONE FOR A TIME INQUIRY INTO HYDRO

TORONTO, May 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Confronted with an apparent unanimity of opinion among opposition members that the Gregory Commission should not continue its public hearings during the heat of an election campaign, Premier Drury undertook in the Legislature last night to take up with Chairman W. D. Gregory the possibility and economic advisability of abandoning all but technical research until after the provincial election. In addition the Premier promised that no report would be received from the Commission between dissolution and election.

TOM MOORE WILL BE CALLED BEFORE BANK COMMISSION

Parliamentary Committee Seeking Views of Organized Labor on Money Matters.

GOLD BASIS.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Henry Ford will not appear as a witness before the Commons Banking and Commerce committee during the present inquiry, it was announced by Hon. A. K. MacLean, chairman, at the meeting of the committee yesterday afternoon.

A proposal to call Tom Moore, president of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, as a witness, brought a protest from R. B. Hanson, Conservative, York-Sunbury, who said that Mr. Moore was "not an economist, but simply a paid agent of the labor union."

William Irvine, Labor, East Calgary, defended calling Mr. Moore on the ground that he could give evidence on the industrial depression and its primary and secondary causes.

W. C. Good, Progressive, Brant, also favored asking Mr. Moore to give evidence.

"It is wise," he said, "to get the views of organized labor."

Hon. A. K. MacLean, chairman, also expressed approval of the proposal and it was adopted without further discussion.

There was opposition as well to the calling of W. L. Baker, Toronto, who has written a book on banking. Hon .H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Centre, Vancouver, described Mr. Baker as a prejudiced witness, as he had a grievance because parliament had refused to grant a charter to a bank in which he was interested.

Alfred Speakman, Progressive, Red Deer, said all bankers were "prejudiced." In the end it was decided to hear Mr. Baker, but the chairman ruled that he must make no reference to refusal of a charter to the bank in which he was interested.

Adam Shortt, former professor of economics at Queen's University, and now attached to the Dominion Archieves, then took the stand and gave evidence in regard to the history of the Canadian Banking system.

Professor Shortt caused much amusement by stating that a customary part of a business centre in the early days of Upper Canada, now Ontario, was a "still."

"For," he explained, "nobody could raise a barn in Upper Canada without whiskey."

"The convenience of a gold basis," he said in summing up his statement, "is that it automatically registers exchange values, international as well as national. You can run irredeemable paper money without gold, but it is very difficult and very dangerous where a government has to run it."

Dr. Shortt criticised the Bevington plan as being founded on the use of money as capital. It would regulate the issue of money not on currency need but on the need of loans. The plan would lead to inflation.

He described the Irving Fisher project as putting the cart before the horse. It was like controlling the temperature by putting an ice jacket around the thermometer.

Major Douglas' scheme was "absurd" said Dr. Shortt. But he did not care to go into details as the time did not permit analysis.

He added that in 1879 there was a plan similar to that proposed by Mr. Bevington. In 1879 it was called the "Rag Baby." It involved the use of Dominion credit to assist the industries of the country. Nothing came of the proposal.

He stated in reply to J. T. Shaw, Independent, Calgary, West, that his own plan for checking crisis was to improve our present system. A wise banking system should act as a check on inflation. The fault lay with the individual very largely but the system could be improved by extending the powers of the Canadian Bankers' Association. This would provide disciplinary control.

PLUCK OF GIRL TO SAVE HORSE

Hester Davis Rushed Into Burning Building in Vain Attempt to Release the Animal.

Fire from an unknown origin yesterday evening completely gutted a barn owned by the City of Peterborough and rented by Arthur Pinch, burning to death a horse which was stabled there, then spread to the roof of the adjoining house and to the Children's Shelter. The total loss is estimated at about $2,000.

About 4 o'clock, Mayor W. H. Taylor, Dr. T. W. H. Young and George Duncan, chairman of the Board of Health, were inspecting new work at the Isolation Hospital when they noticed smoke in the vicinity of the Children's Shelter. They immediately turned in an alarm to the Fire Department, and while waiting for the firemen to arrive worked hard to save the property. With Miss Price, Matron of the Isolation Hospital, and other helpers, they formed a bucket brigade and succeeded in holding the fire somewhat in check until the arrival of the fire brigade. They also salvaged a great deal of the furniture from the Shelter and a buggy and sleighs from the barn.

Heroic Attempt.

With the roof of the barn blazing, and fragments of burning wood falling inside little Hester Davis, 16, rushed into the building in a vain attempt to save the horse. The animal was so restless that she was unable to free it, and was forced by the fast gaining fire to retreat. Witnesses pay great credit to her pluck, and Hester herself makes light of burns sustained in her heroic attempt.

The blaze apparently started in a barn at the rear of the house occupied by Mr. Arthur Pinch, who is employed in the William Hamilton foundry. Sparks from the barn quickly caught the roof of the house, and this building was only saved by the timely arrival of the fire apparatus with chemicals. The hose carried on the motor hose wagon was not long enough to reach from the nearest hydrant, and while waiting for an extra supply of hose to arrive the firemen had recourse to water pails and chemicals, with which they did nood service.

When the barn had burned itself out only the charred uprights and a pile of ashes remained, it was found that the roof of the Children's Shelter had caught fire. Extra hose was brought into use and a stream of water directed on the blaze. Owing to the construction of the roof it was impossible to reach the fire without tearing off the shingles, which the firemen did under great difficulties from smoke and flame. The roof was double, with about eighteen inches between sections. About three hours of Trojan labor was expended before the firemen were satisfied that danger had passed.

Serious Loss.

Mr. Pinch is the heaviest loser in the fire, which is nothing short of a disaster to him. After being idle all winter he has been working with the William Hamilton Company for about a month. He only completed paying for the horse last week, and besides the horse he lost four sets of harness, carrying no insurance. He has a family of ten to support, and this fire ,he says, "is too much of a loss for me to carry."

No Childen Injured.

Nne of the children in the Shelter were injured, most of them being at the time playing on the lawn. They are being cared for to-night by neighbors and others who were early on the scene to offer help. Mrs J. Kendry took five little ones away to her home and Mrs. Walter Belleghem arranged to take seven.

Chief Gimblett pointed out that owing to the length of hose laid out he could not get sufficient pressure to do effective work. A triple combination pumper would have been of inestimable service, he said, in both fires yesterday, where high pressure was needed.

BLIND; WON'T REFORM.

LONDON (By mail to the United Press)—England's blind burglar is in again, this time for three years. It was his third conviction for burglary. Samuel Fildes, the convicted man, was blinded during his first term. Since then there were two convictions against him for setting fire to a church and to a blind institution, the scene of his latest activity. He was caught the last time after he had broken into the institution and stolen minor articles.

Art Now Turns to Shoe Beauty

The Newest Fads in Footwear Call for Be-diamonded Heels with Uppers Hand-Painted or Feathered, and the Very Modish Young Woman Binds Her Ankles Like a Chinese.

Introducing—the Ankle Reducer. Two Lengths of Rubber Tape Wound Round the Ankles to Destroy Their "Beef to the Heels" Appearance.

The Newest Idea to Take the Place of Buttons. Pulled One Way the Clasp Fastens the Shoe Snugly and in the Opposite Direction It Unfastens It.

The Shoes That Took a Prize in London—Stuffed Peacocks with Full Spread of Tail for Evening Wear, as Exhibited at the Shoe and Leather Fair. At the Left Centre, One of the Extreme Designs of Highly Colored High Button Shoes for Street Wear. This One Is Blue and White, but Other Styles Are Scarlet.

Evening Florentine Shoes Composed Only of a Jewelled Heel, a Brocade Toe, a Thin Sole and Strappings of Gold and Silver. This Is the Season's Most Costly Model and Was Imported from Italy.

IT is just as well that fairy wands have gone out of style. For should it so happen that one were disposed to wave a modern-day Cinderella to a ball, and the Cinderella—she'd be a factory worker, probably with a spiffy ball gown of her own and taxi fare at least!—should flee the stroke of 12, and the Prince of Wales, or whoever the visiting royalty happened to be, should set out next day to discover the owner of a certain little jeweled crystal slipper, what a discouraging time he'd have to be sure!

The very simple reason, you see, is that ere the autumn season has traveled much farther, about nine out of every ten of Uncle Sam's fair daughters will be the proud owners of little jeweled crystal slippers and to identify any one of them by any special slipper would be like trying to fit a girl to a wire hairpin!

In other words, Art has decided that shoes which stretch a piece of leather or cloth neatly round the ankle and over the instep, furnish a slab of something or other for the sole to walk on, and perk up the whole with a high, curving heel, are slackers on shoe duty.

According to the decree, the shoe has not arrived at any efficiency until it is a thing of beauty as well as of utility.

And—but this is a secret as yet! If one of those qualities must go, by all means let it be utility! For decorative effects which will be lost by concealment of stockings under the new long skirts must be caught up by footwear and carried on in endless visibility. And if shoe beauty calls for the fragile and the exotic, shoes will be fragile and exotic, whatever else they may not be!

The first startling feature of the art-dictated shoes is the rainbow stretch of color they blaze across the sartorial sky. Browns of shades varying from canary to red oak; blue and violet and purple; green like the first leaves of springtime and green like the dusky cedars; but, more than all, red!

Flowered Silks and Satins

Red of the velvet I-love-you quality of American Beauty roses; dahlia red, deep and rich; flame color embroidered in gold; rose color, pink like the inside of a shell.

And oh the fabrics! Metal brocades, of course, for evening wear. They are silver or gold or copper or a combination of all three. Flowered and figured silks and satins; plain satins trimmed with eyelet embroidering, or with designs embroidered in contrastingly-colored silks; fur, Persian lamb and mole; feathers with waving ostrich buckles; alligator hide; snake-skin; crinkled suede. These are a few of the materials Art is using for the purpose of beautifying feminine footwear!

Of course, with the astonishing new fad coming along as it is, the heel of transcendent fire would be inevitable. Tall, graceful Louis lines, four inches at least from top to bottom, and set solidly with rhinestones, like glittering petals of ice! Or, perhaps, red stones instead, and representing themselves upon high, fan-shaped pedestal tongues, and looking quite like colored sugar sprinkled on Christmas confectionery!

Then there are other models with pictures hand-painted across their dainty vamps. Sometimes little garlands of rosebuds and forget-me-nots are delicately done in water-colors against a background of white satin. Again it is a landscape in the broad, sketchy strokes of the Japanese print, white on black lusterless silk. One striking pair of brown satin slippers carried a figurine like the one which balances on one toe atop certain silver radiator-caps, painted in orange and gold with a thin edge of green showing semi-occasionally.

One of the "newalties" is the Florentine shoe. It comes from Italy and is hardly more than a skeleton of a shoe, having as it does only a heel and toe portion and moderately high heel. The type designed for street wear is fashioned of colored leather with straps of black, or of a contrasting color. But for evening appearance it dresses itself up with jeweled heels and with straps of gold or silver set with jewels.

A Touch of Colonial Days

Advocates of the Florentine shoe may plead, in its favor, its tendency toward educational development. For by the time the potential wearer has analyzed the various straps, tabs, buckles, fastenings and other mechanical appurtenances she will have mastered the gentle art of brain control. A strap crosses the bare instep and is attached to a strap from the middle of the open-work toe to the second and upper straps that encircle the ankle as well as the leg above the ankle. This description, supplied by J. Glassberg, is not simple as it might be, but then neither is the shoe.

The Colonial pump, however, will be the most stable article in all the shoe instability of the dress year. Little of the severe simplicity of Colonial days clings to the slipper of today, nevertheless.

To begin with, the tongue stretches upward so aspiringly as to cover a goodly portion of the space between ankles and knee. Likewise it spreads itself from side to side, usually on fleur-de-lis lines, till it is like a fan unfolded.

Then the sides of these pumps more often than not are made of a series of straps with blank spaces between. And the rich brown and gold brocades which fashion them to the final word in luxury and out of Colonial character. One of the models in gold-brown and gold brocade has a gold heel covered with imitation rubies, and open spaces at sides and center.

For straight, out-and-out thrills, however, nothing as yet has been seen to rival the peacock shoes, of dazing spread and gorgeous coloring, but recently put on exhibition at the Shoe and Leather Fair at Agricultural Hall, London.

They suggest the Colonial type of pump only in that where those one-time staid articles of footgear carried tongues of leather, these balance full peacock tails, outspread, as if with naive intention of dazzling with at least full glory. The gayly-colored feathers extend for a full foot on either side the vamp, and rise half way to the knees.

The tall, however, is not enough of the fantastic apparently. For slipper vamps are feathered smoothly, to simulate the bird's back and wings, and a pair of little blinking jewels on either side look exactly like eyes! It is said the Broadways as well as the Fifth Avenues of this country soon will be astonished by the sight of peacock shoes on their own pavements.

The flesh sandal is another novelty. It consists principally of a heel portion, with a strap over the instep and openwork toes. It is seen most often in patent leather.

The feather slipper is fashioned with soft ends of quills laid smoothly against the body of the shoe and the four-inch heel. A big, square buckle of ostrich, fronds waving and fluttering with every movement of the wearer, add the touch of decoration.

Feather buckles and rosettes trim satin and suede slippers. Fancy stones in the middle of tulle bows or of gold or silver ribbon are switched in to brighten up the scheme of decoration occasionally. And fancy tassels dangling from side fastenings are the last word in mode.

Finally it is announced that practicability is approached in all the motley of color and rare fabric in the Oxford, which will be worn more, it is said, than it has been for many seasons. But this, too, will be fashioned of soft kid or satin, with the edge brocaded in the same color. The Oxford heel will be Spanish, which is a cross between the French and Cuban varieties.

Ankle-Reducing Tape

Now it stands to reason that Madame who steps out on diamonds and hand-painted shoes, also must step upon slender and shapely ankles. And since not all ankles are thus a joy to the eye, perfection of form is being induced—of all things!—with the ankle binder!

Yes, it is quite true: Miss America is binding her ankles a la Chinois! Two lengths of rubber tape are being wound round and round ankle and instep; round and round and round on the guarantee that slenderness and the grace thereof thus will be created.

There also is heavy market for the new "Reducing Paste," shipped out of Paris it is said, for the benefit of heavy American ankles. You rub it at night on an ankle which is a perpendicular line, and in the morning the line has developed an hourglass curve. Or so the outside of the box promises. Miss America can only try and hope.

TEST YOUR SEED CORN

It Is More Uncertain Than That of Cereals.

Seed Tests Will Repay Corn Growers—The Sawdust Germination Box Method—Allow Eight or Ten Days for Germination—A Use for Old Fruit Jar Rubbers.

Without good seed satisfactory crop production is impossible. Good crops of wheat, oats, and barley are grown each year without a seed test before seeding. "Why can we not get the same condition in corn?" is frequently asked. Corn is different in many ways from the cereals mentioned, and we cannot expect the high germination common to well ripened before harvest grains. Corn ripens later in the season when damp days and nights are common. The grain is attached to an open pithy cob that is frequently slower in drying out than the grain is in ripening. The corn grain contains a large percentage of oil, and the grain oils are not noted as preservatives if subjected to many changes. The corn germ is not as well protected by coverings as is the germ in the other farm grains. The fact that wheat, oats and barley can generally be sown without a test and relied on to germinate has led many farmers to believe that the same holds good for corn, and they hesitate to do the necessary careful work and prove to themselves the dependableness of the seed corn before planting.

Seed Tests Will Repay Corn Growers

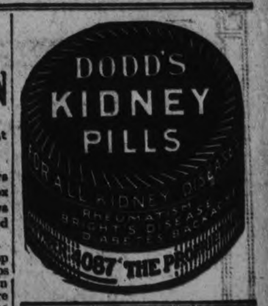
A few hours devoted to corn testing during the slack season in February or March will frequently prove of greater value in providing corn with which to fill the corn crib the next autumn than many days of hard work in the field during the season of growth. With the seed carefully tested, and proven capable of producing strong vigorous plants, the risk is removed from the most important of all the factors involved in corn-growing. Various methods of making a germination test have been devised, and different measures of success in operation obtained. The elimination that follows experience has caused a discard of many methods and centred on the usefulness and simplicity of the Sawdust Corn Germination Box.

The Sawdust Germination Box

This method requires a minimum of attention, it is easy to prepare, and it is sure. The box used as a container for the sawdust can be of any convenient size, easy to handle or stack up. Boxes 30 x 30 inches and 5 inches deep are very satisfactory and are large enough to test the seed ears required to plant five or six acres. The seed bed is prepared as follows: Pack moist sawdust to the depth of three inches in the box (old or dry sawdust, hardwood sawdust is to be desired). Mark off in squares 2½ x 2½ inches with pencil a piece of cotton sheeting checkerboard fashion, number the squares. Lay this sheet over the sawdust, press down and moisten. Take six grains of corn from the ear to be tested, two from near the butt, two from the centre and two from near the tip, and place these in each square, number the ear to correspond with the number of the square in which the six grains are placed. Using a piece of cotton of the same dimension as the box, lay it over the seed and press down gently, do not disturb the corn in the numbered spaces. Take a second cloth large enough to fold both ways or about twice the size of the box, lay this larger cloth over the box in such a way that it extends all around, cover the box area with warm, moist sawdust, piling directly on the last applied large cloth, pack the sawdust down well, by treading or stamping with a brick or heavy block of wood. This layer of sawdust should be two inches thick when firmed. Fold the extending portions of the cloth over the sawdust forming as it were a large pillow or pad.

Allow Eight or Ten Days for Results

When this has been done, the box or boxes or room where the temperature is always above freezing and generally maintained at 60 to 70 degrees. If mice abound, cover the box with a wire screen. After eight or ten days examine the germination for results, lift off the sawdust pad and then very carefully roll back the cloth that is in direct contact with the corn. Take note of the germination of the kernels in each numbered square, and save or discard according to the strength of germination. Every ear that has given dead, mouldy or weak germinating kernels should be thrown into the feed bin, and only those showing great vigor and freedom from mould should be used. At the end of ten days the sprout and roots should be at least two inches long. The box, sawdust and cloth should not be used a second time without thorough scalding; this id done to destroy fungus spores that may be present. The outside two inches of space should not be used, as .. may dry out and check the germination of any seed placed near the edge of the box.—L. Stevenson, Secy., Dept. of Agriculture.



USE FOR OLD FRUIT JAR USE FOR OLD FRUIT JAR RUBBERS.

Old fruit jar rubbers came in handily last winter when the snow was on the ground. My boy stepped on an axe and cut a big gash in his rubber. I melted a fruit jar rubber to the consistency of wax, poured it into the gash and stuck it back in place. When it became cold the rubber was as good as new.

NEW POLISH PRESIDENT UNITES HIS OPPONENTS

WARSAW, May 3 (Associated Press)—President Wojciechowski, the present yead of the Polish state, entertains far more than his predecessor, Marshal Pilsudski, and accepts invitations freely. The Polish aristocracy, which was inclined to boycott Pilsudski, pays the president and his friends much respect. However, the chief pleasure of the executive is to invite representatives of various, even opposing, parties or groups, and to entertain them with a lecture on economic questions delivered by a prominent scientist. President Wojciechowski has repeated several times that the cooperation of opposing political groups in improving Polish finances will prove the best way to curb factionary disputes.

The plan already has borne fruit. In December, following the assassination of Narutowski, the breach between nationalists and radicals was such that there was not a question upon which representatives of both camps would consent to work together, whereas today there is friendly cooperation, if not of all groups, at least of a good part of them. When the diet decided to draft the finance bill proposed by Minister Grabski, all parties except the national democrats, but including two other groups of the nationalist block, promised cooperation on the final form of the bill.

Want Ad Tips

by John T. Bartlett

HOW TO COIN A WANT AD SLOGAN.

It is easy to see why slogans have become very popular with big advertisers, and why successful Want Ad users are turning to them. A slogan tells a great deal in a few words. It is a condensed statement of facts the advertiser is very anxious for the reader to remember. Also, it is very easy to remember, being purposely made so.

A regular Want advertiser usually takes a step ahead when he coins a good slogan, and sticks to it.

The alliterative is an effective type of slogan Alliteration, a literary device, consists in placing words together which have the same beginning consonant or vowel sound. This arrangement falls very pleasantly on the ears. It is a great aid to memory.

Slogans of this type are easily created. One standard formula is to put together the advertiser's name, and the principal product he deals in, when they happen to begin with the same sound. As an example, a real estate man specialized in residential property. He didn't sell farms, or lots, or downtown property—he sold residence. His name was Harris. So he coined the slogan—"Harris For Homes."

A poultry breeder kept Rhode Island Reds. His name was Rankin. He adopted the slogan, "Rankin For Reds." Another poultry-keeper, who sought private customers for eggs, used the slogan, "Eggleston's Excellent Eggs."

One can have a clever slogan, of course, without using alliteration. A business chance broker made loans to buyers of small businesses. He coined the slogan, "Loan You Half." This is a good model of the slogan which, in three or four words, pithily states a feature of one's service, methods, product etc., which appeals strongly to the public. Other examples are, "Buy of Smith, and Save One-Third," "Zip Service," "The Sell-It-Quick Way."

When you have found a good slogan, use it regularly in your Want Ads. The longer you use it, the greater its worth to you.

GOVERNMENT AID FOR ARTISTS OF SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, May 3.—(Associated Press).—Artists in Sweden who happen to be in narrow circumstances have suddenly been cheered by the news that the government stands ready to spend 270,000 kronor, about $72,000, in the purchase of their pictures.

The Swedish scheme for coming to the rescue of needy artists is peculiarly favorable to all parties concerned. The government raises the money through a lottery. It acquires valuable paintings and sculptures in return for the money granted to the artists. This art is then to be placed in schools, sanatariums, and other government institutions, where it will prove a pleasure to the public, and at the same time help the artist by giving him added publicity for his work.

The investment of funds and the purchase of art is to be in the hands of a committee of artists and others under the chairmanship of the famous landscape painter, Prince Eugene, a brother of the King of Sweden. The committee will inspect paintings and statues, and have authority to purchase works in current exhibitions where the artist is in need of money.

Olof Olsson, Minister of the Ecclesiastical Department, under whom the appropriation has been obtained, says that only the highest class of paintings and statues will be purchased by the government. Thus the movement can be utilized to instil in a larger public an appreciation of good works of art.

No particular schools or tendencies in modern art will be favored by the committee, and none will be discriminated against.

A man can farm any old way he likes on his own farm. But he can't get out of paying for privilege of doing things the wrong way. He pays in short crops and various losses that cut down his earnings.

GOOD MANNERS

On the street, a man never takes the arm of a woman he is escorting. He offers his own if he feels that the woman needs his protection.

Nor, in the daytime, does a woman take her escort's arm unless she is aged, infirm, or again in the event of some especial need for protection.

In the ecening the woman properly accepts accepts her escort's support though she only rests the palm of her hand lightly within his elbow without linking her arm through his.

System Run Down Blood Out of Order

Many people become run down, but don't know just exactly what their trouble is, when, as a rule, it is improper circulation of the blood.

All they need is a good tonic to build up the system and put the blood into proper shape.

For this purpose there is nothing on the market to-day to equal

Burdock Blood Bitters

It regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, purifies the blood and tones up the entire system.

Mrs. H. Poole, Port Dover, Ont., writes:—"My system was run down and my blood out of order, and I suffered a great deal from pains in my head which made me feel very miserable. A friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got a bottle and before it was used I found it was doing me good. I kept on until I had taken three, and now I feel like a different woman.

My husband also took it and it has built him up."

IN LAKEFIELD AND DISTRICT

Mock Trial By A.Y.P.A. a Marked Success—Supper Party Much Enjoyed—Personals.

LAKEFIELD, May 3.—On Monday evening the A.Y.P.A. held a mock trial in St. John's school room, which was a great success and provided a novel and interesting entertainment. There was a splendid attendance of members, who were very much interested in the cases introduced. C. C. Stenner was the judge and Miss Marjorie Burtchall the clerk of the court; F. R. Alford was the policeman, armed with his baton, which in private life is the baseball bat owned by the society; A. V. Summers was the usher, and R. L. Mason the prosecuting attorney; lawyers for the defence were E. J. Robertshaw and Miss Graham. Two cases were introduced, the first against Mrs. Waldon and the second against Mrs. Sanderson. Witnesses were Misses Turner, Smith, Watson, H. Watson and Hampton and Messrs. P. Stenner, M. Hampton and R. Murduff as foreman of the jury.

After the trial the committee served a delicious supper, and Rev. C. Grant King made a few remarks regarding one of the members who is leaving this week for Northern Ontario where he will remain till the late autumn—Mr. Thomas Simpson. He has been a popular and faithful member of the A.Y.P.A. for years, and will be very much missed. The society wished him to accept a small token of their regard—a safety pipe in a case. The presentation was made by Mrs. Trude Waldon. Mr. Simpson was completely taken by surprise, but replied suitably, recalling the wrist watch presented to him on the eve of his departure for overseas service by the A.Y.P.A. "Through thick and thin the A.Y.P.A. has always stood together and always come out best in the long run," said Mr. Simpson. Mr. Simpson leaves for his new home with the best wishes of a host of friends.

Supper Party.

Rev. A. W. MacKenzie was the host of a most enjoyable supper party at the Lakefield Manse, on Monday evening, when he entertained the officials and players of the local Junior O.H.A. team. Full justice was done to the bountiful feast provided, and afterwards a little music was indulged in and the gathering dispersed after singing "Auld Lang Syne." The spirit of comradeship, which bound the boys together through the winter, helped not a little to make the evening the success it undoubtedly was. Mr. MacKenzie, the manager of the team, was the friend of each and every player, and won their hearts by his unwavering interest and spirit of fair play.

CAUGHT IN HEAVY SHOWER OF EGGS

Motorists Passing Through Brooklin Wednesday Night Target For Egg Throwers.

To be caught in a heavy shower of rain while motoring late in the evening is not an agreeable experience at any time but when that shower happens to be hens' eggs, the situation becomes distressing. Mr. and Mrs. George Bell and Mr. and Mrs. John Short, Mill street, were to face such an experience Wednesday night about 10 o'clock when passing through Brooklin on their return home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell in their own car were leading with Mr. and Mrs. Short following in another car. As Mr. Bell drove over the bridge in the centre of the village missiles in the form of hens eggs were thrown at the car and the result can be easily surmised, the car presenting anything but an attractive appearance Mr. Short's car escaped the barrage although one egg struck him in the knee. While such an attack would indicate that there is no shortage of eggs in the vicinity of Brooklin it also means that the eyes of the law will be directed towards the perpetrators of this ambush with little likelihood of them being captured.—Oshawa Reformer.

RADIO FANS WANT MORE LIBERTY IN GERMANY

By GUS M. OEHM

BERLIN (By mail to the United Press)—German radio fans want to "listen in."

A new organization—the German Radio Club—has been created to bring pressure to bear upon the government to lift the restrictions against privately installed radio sets.

German postal authorities retain the right to issue permits for wireless sets—but these are few and far between, going as a rule only to branches of the government service. The layman, therefore, is out of luck, unable to join in the radio craze that has swept the world—especially the United States.

The new club was told by leading German radio scientists that while Germany was one of the world's leading scientific countries, the United States and other nations were leaving her far behind in radio matters—broadcasting by wireless telephone—because the government "selfishly" forbids the German layman to go into the thing for himself.

The PRIDE of PALOMAR

By Peter B. Kyne

Both Farrel and her father favored her with brief, sharp, suspicious glances.

"Who was telling you?" the latter demanded.

"Senor Bill Conway."

"He ough: to know better than to discuss the Japanese problem with you," Farrel complained, and her father nodded vigorous assent. Kay tilted her adorable nose at them.

"How delightful to have one's intelligence underrated by mere men," she retorted.

"Did Bill Conway indicate the direction of the tide of emigration from La Questa?" Farrel asked craftily, still unwilling to admit anything. The girl smiled at him, then leaning closer she crooned for his ear alone:

He's sleeping in the valley,
The valley,
The valley.
He's sleeping in the valley,
And the mocking bird is singing where he lies.

"Are you glad?" he blurted eagerly. She nodded and thrilled as she noted the smug little smile of approval and complete understanding that crept over his dark face like the shadow of clouds in the San Gregorio. Mrs. Parker was riding in the front seat with the chauffeur and Kay sat between her father and Don Mike in the tonneau. His hand dropped carelessly on her lap now, as he made a pretense of pulling the auto robe up around her; with quick stealth he caught her little finger and pressed it hurriedly, then dropped it as if the contact had burned him; whereat the girl realized that he was a man of few words, but——

"Dear old idiot," she thought. "If he ever falls in love he'll pay his court like a schoolboy."

"By the way, sir," Farrel spoke suddenly, turning to John Parker, "I would like very much to have your advice in the matter of an investment. I will have about ninety thousand dollars on hand as soon as I sell these cattle I've rounded up, and until I can add to this sum sufficient to lift the mortgage you hold, it scarcely seems prudent to permit my funds to repose in the First National Bank of El Toro without drawing interest."

"We'll give you two and one-half per cent, on the account, Farrel."

"Not enough. I want it to earn six or seven per cent, and it occurred to me that I might invest it in some good securities which I could dispose of at a moment's notice, whenever I needed the money. The possibility of a profit on the deal has even occurred to me."

Parker smiled humorously. "And you come to me for advice? Why, boy, I'm your financial enemy."

"My dear Mr. Parker, I am unalterably opposed to you on the Japanese colonization scheme and I shall do my best to rob you of the profit you plan to make at my expense, but personally I find you a singularly agreeable man. I know you will never resign a business advantage, but, on the other hand, I think that if I ask you for advice as to a profitable investment for my pitiful little fortune, you will not be base enough to advise me to my financial detriment. I trust you. Am I not banking with your bank?"

"Thank you, Farrel, for that vote of confidence. You possess a truly sporting attitude in business affairs and I like you for it; I like any man who can take his beating and smile. Yes, I am willing to advise an investment. I know of a dozen splendid securities that I can conscientiously recommend as a safe investment, although, in the event of the inevitable settlement that must follow the war and our national orgy of extravagance and high prices, I advise you frankly to wait awhile before taking on any securities. You cannot afford to absorb the inevitable shrinkage in the values of all commodities when the show-down comes. However, there is a new issue of South Coast Power Company first mortgage bonds that can be bought now to yield eight per cent. and I should be very much inclined to take a chance on them, Farrel. The debentures of the power corporations in this state are about the best I know of."

"I think you are quite right, sir," Farrel agreed. "Eventually the South Coast Company is bound to divide with the Pacific Company control of the power business of the state. I dare say that in the fullness of time the South Coast people will arrange a merger with the Central California Power Company."

"Perhaps. The Central California Company is under-financed and not particularly well managed, Farrel. I think it is, potentially, an excellent property, but its bonds have been rather depressed for a long time."

Farrel nodded his understanding. "Thank you for your advice, sir. When I am ready will your bank be good enough to arrange the purchase of the South Coast bonds for me?"

"Certainly. Happy to oblige you, Farrel. But do not be in too great a hurry. You may lose more in the shrinkages of values if you buy now than you would make in interest."

"I shall be guided by your advice, sir. You are very kind."

"By the way," Parker continued, with a deprecatory smile, "I haven't entered suit against you in the matter of that foreclosure. I didn't desire to annoy you while you were in hospital and you've been busy on the range ever since. When can I induce you to submit to a precess-server?"

"This afternoon will suit me, Mr. Parker."

"I'll gladly wait awhile longer, if you can give me any tangible assurance of your ability to meet the mortgage."

"I cannot do that to-day, sir, although I may be able to do so if you will defer action for three days."

C.N.R. UNDER FIRE FOR EXPENDITURES

Senators Belcourt and Turriff Would Sell the Whole System For a Dollar—Toronto Office.

OTTAWA, May 3. — (Canadian Press). — Strong criticism of the management of the Canadian National Railways for the action in purchasing a site for a ticket office on the corner of King and Yonge Streets, Toronto, was voiced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Lynch-Staunton. He stated that $1,100,000 had been paid for the site in question, while four years ago it had been bought by the Imperial Bank for $700,000. The only excuse given for the investment was that the C.P.R. had an office on the opposite corner, he said. The Canadian National could have secured the Bank of Hamilton building, adjoining the C. P. R., for less than a million dollars. As it was now, a suitable building would have to be erected on the site purchased, at the cost of possibly another million. The Government should give the management to understand that no more unnecessary burdens in the way of increased taxation were to be placed on the shoulders of the Canadian people. He thought it would be better for the Government to assume full control of the system if it had to take responsibility. The abolition of all up-town ticket offices was suggested by Senator Lynch-Staunton, ticket sales to be made at the station.

Senator J. D. Reid advised abolishing small town ticket offices. He was opposed to erecting a new building in Toronto while deficits continued on the Government system, and was also opposed to the Bank of Hamilton site for the Canadian National ticket office. Senator W. H. Bennett thought it was absurd to spend a million dollars on the Toronto building. He voiced strong opposition to the sale of the vessels of the Government Merchant Marine on the Great Lakes, advocating that these vessels be kept in the grain trade to assist in lowering the grain rates for the Western farmers. It was a bad time to sell these ships when the market was glutted. He asked the Government to ascertain who had advised Sir Henry Thornton to sell these ships, and "if his advisers had stock in lake shipping companies."

Canadian vessel-owners were trying to drive trade from the Canadian National Railways, he said. They preferred to ship through American ports, where the Canadian grain could be mixed.

Senator Webster stated that the ships referred to would be brought into the Canadian grain trade this year and used until satisfactory offers were received for them. Senator Robertson expressed the view that large expenditures by the Canadian National Railways should be made only after permission had been given by the Government.

It was a most unfortunate thing that the railways making up the present Government system had been taken over, said Senator Belcourt. It was the greatest mistake since Confederation, and the only remedy was to hand the railways over to somebody to operate. It was a delusion and madness to think that deficits could be abolished. The country could not afford to continue the present losses, and was faced with bankruptcy if it kept on. It would be better to hand the railways over for a dollar than to go on paying deficits.

Private ownership had brought about the present railway muddle, said Senator Turriff. It would be all right, he agreed, to give the railways away for a dollar if Canada could find somebody to assume all liabilities and leave the country free.

TRIAL DIRECTORS KRUPP'S FRIDAY

WERDEN, Germany, May 3. — (Canadian Press).—This little town on the Ruhr River, a few miles from Essen, will be completely cut off from the outside world and entirely surrounded by a cordon of troops during the trial of Gustav Krupp Von Boehlan Und Halbach, head of the Krupp works, and three Krupp directors. The proceedings are scheduled to take place to-morrow.

Directors Jaeger and Zoellner, of the Heinriche mine and machine works at Hattingen, have been sentenced by a French court-martial to five years' imprisonment and a fine of 250 million francs on the charge of having caused the sirens of their plants to sound when occupation troops appeared on the property, thus rallying an assembly of workmen which endangered the lives of visiting authorities.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Dear Sir:—

Surely THE EXAMINER is in error in thinking that the Board of Education would incur an expenditure of $8,000 for plans for their proposed extension of the P.C.I. before those plans had been endorsed by the City Council and the taxpayers. Have we no longer a voice in the expenditure of our own money?

In England any public body which spends the taxpayers money in an illegal or unauthorized way, has the amount charged back to it, to be paid out of the members individual private purse.

I do not believe for one moment that the $450,000 scheme has the slightest chance of being endorsed by the taxpayers and it would only be a waste of money to put it before them.

Have the Board of Education no realization of conditions existing?

Prominent bankers and other public men are warning public bodies of the evil effects on the country of the present excessive taxation and yet many of those who have charge of the public purse seem to have no sense of their responsibility to practice economy.

A man today who owns a home has to pay in taxes what would have been a heavy rent a few years ago and unless he sits up and takes notice and takes an interest in the doings of those whom he votes into or neglects to vote out of office, the burden of taxation will be greater than he can carry.

In the matter of the enlargement of the P.C.I. let us do what is absolutely necessary and imperative at the present time and leave the rest until we are able to take hold of it.

Thanking you, yours faithfully,
GEO. LEADER.

TEN DEAD, MANY HURT IN BAD TRAIN WRECK

SALT LAKE CITY, May 3. — (Canadian Press.) — Eight passengers and two trainmen were killed and 25 passengers injured, some fatally, in the wreck late last night of an eastbound Denver and Rio Grande Western passenger train near Woodside, Utah, according to telegraph advices reaching Salt Lake City early to-day. The cause of the wreck is unknown, but one report says the locomotives were swept from the tracks by a landslide.

MRS. JAMES NUTTALL (LEFT), FOSTER MOTHER; MRS. JAMES MORRIS, REAL MOTHER, AND ALICE NUTTALL, THE CHILD, WHO MAY HAVE TO DECIDE BETWEEN THEM.

By ROY GIBBONS.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Is the claim of parenthood upon its offspring beyond question?

Does birth make of the human being a chattel to its forebears forever barred from the privilege of protesting that parent's so-called inalienable claim upon it?

These questions must be solved by a Chicago court sitting in the strangely tangled case of 77-year-old Alice Nuttall here, where love, anguish and tragedy run through the criss-crossed motif of its heart-tearing plot like specter fingers playing dirge hymns on a giant harp.

Alice is the central figure in a habeas corpus proceeding brought by her own mother, Mrs. James Morris.

Twelve years ago, Mrs. Morris, then Ada Childs, became a mother.

Baby Is Adopted.

When 10 days old the baby was taken to a foundling home and placed out for adoption.

Miss Childs later married the baby's father, whom she subsequently divorced.

But through all the intervening years she has been trying to discover the foster parents of the babe, which was snatched from her breast that the shame of its birth might not become known.

Her quest finally was rewarded. In the home of Mrs. James A. Nuttal, living in Waukegan, a nearby suburb, the long-lost daughter was found

The Nuttals had adopted her.

Alice believed the childless couple her own parents.

For almost a year the mother continued to visit the child at her foster parents' home.

Alice did not know who she was. She called her own mother "that kind, pretty lady."

Then love grew too strong.

Demands Daughter.

"I must have her all to myself. I am her mother. No one can deny me the right to my own child," said the mother.

That's how the suit started.

But Alice prefers the Nuttals to her own mother and father.

"They were good to me. I can't leave them. I don't know Mrs. Morris. Please, Mr. Judge, can't I pick my own mama?"

The suit, according to all involved, is a friendly one.

"Why, the mother needs me as her own mother as well as her child does," says motherly Mrs. Nuttal.

"Both of us love Alice. I am not trying to keep Mrs. Morris from seeing her.

"She's a dear, too. I've adopted her little girl. Guess I'll have to adopt her, too."

Girl May Decide.

And with a kindly chuckle she dismissed the episode.

But, says the mother, who since has remarried:

"I suffered for my baby. Doesn't that give me the supreme right to her? The adoption wasn't legal either, because I wasn't present and didn't sign the papers.

"She's mine by the right of birth. The law or no one has the power to keep her from me. Alice was given to me by God. I want her. I'll have her."

"But, Mr. Judge," says Alice, "won't you let me choose my own mama?"

And that's what Judge David intimates he's going to do. For the present he has continued the case while he thinks over its tangled threads, with a heartbreak for a woman no matter how it is decided.

NEWS PARAGRAPHS OF CAMPBELLFORD

Shaw—Doupe.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Methodist Parsonage, Rear Street, on Wednesday, May 2nd, by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Glover, B.A., when Miss Frances S. MARRIAGE A LA MODE

In southern Italy and Sicly, women are kept in almost oriental seclusion.

Frequently when the husband is obliged to leave him he leaves his wife under lock and key if she is still young and beautiful.

This is not regarded as tyranny but a mark of affection.

Honest now, what is it that you do, that gives you quite the satisfaction that a little cleaning-up and painting-up does?

It sure does beat the Dutch the way a little paint will make a thing "look like a million dollars."

There are many cases where $100 spent in painting a house, has made it sell for $500 more. So whether or not you want to sell your house, a coat of Lowe Brothers paint makes it look as if you "had money in the bank" as the old saying goes.

Drop in and let's talk it over.

The Four Coupe $2260 F. O. B. Oshawa Government Tax Extra

A Utility Closed Car of Matchless Value

Business men find that this Oldsmobile "Four" Coupe meets every need they have for the greater utility of a closed car. Women, too, regard it highly because of its distinctive beauty and the remarkable ease with which it is controlled.

Its seating arrangement is unique, the driver's seat being so placed that it provides considerably more than the usual space alloted the two additional passengers, and there is a generous auxiliary seat for a fourth passenger.

Powered with the famous Oldsmobile Four engine, this coupe offers splendid performance with good looks—and sells at the lowest price ever quoted on an Oldsmobile closed car.

Other Oldsmobile values for 1923 are equally interesting. Until you have examined and driven one yourself, you cannot fully appreciate the qualities which make the Oldsmobile "Four" the most car for the money. You are invited to inspect the Oldsmobile models at your earliest convenience.

CROP REPORT

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

A good deal of seeding was done in the southern counties during the week, and vegetable growers also got in a considerable acreage of onions, beets, cabbage, early potatoes, etc.

Fall wheat is looking well, except on low spots and where sown late. Some reseeding has been done.

Clover is showing good promise. It is better, relatively, than the wheat. Alfalfa is also looking well.

Pastures have come forward nicely, and will soon be ready for grazing. Fodders have been holding out remarkably well, but the grass will be welcomed by both the cattle and their owners.

Wellington: We have had more inquiries about alfalfa than we have ever had before, and apparently there will be more sown than is usual. Some farmers are taken up with the idea of home-grown seed.

Glengarry: The maple syrup season has been very poor. The days have been cool, with a cold north wind. Prices run from $2.50 to $3 per gallon.

South Simcoe: Maple syrup has been an exceptionally good yield in most parts of the county. One man reports 85 gallons from 250 trees, which is a tremendous flow considering that one quart to a tree is a good average yield. Prices ranged from $2.50 to $3 per gallon. Beekeepers report heavy losses amounting to 40 per cent.

Victoria: Farmers are still applying for summer help. Four horse teams are helping out the labor shortage.

Grey: A large number of hops are now being graded. Farmers generally are being reconciled, and where the markets are used are delighted.

York: The mortality in young pigs is noted in some parts. One man with ten sows has lost all his spring litters. Grading is still of interest to the farmers. One man had 100 per cent. selects from a Yorkshire sow and Tamworth sire. The pigs averaged 185 lbs. at five months and one week of age.

Victoria: Young cattle are being turned out in large numbers on to the ranches in the north part of the county. Herds of over one hundred may be seen heading north. Hogs sold during the week at $10.25 to $10.50 f.o.b.

Kent: Ten car-loads of hogs shipped out last week at 10c per lb. A few car-loads of cattle are being shipped out today at prices ranging from 7c to 8c. A large number of cattle being fed under contract this winter will be disposed of next week.

York: Live stock has wintered excellently, and will be going out to grass in good condition. In one district there are about forty steers owned by three farmers, weighing about 1,200 lbs., ready to go to mark any time. Some have made a gain of from 300 to 400 lbs. since last fall.

Dufferin: The number of live stock appears to be possibly a little larger than the average. Not many cattle in this county are good enough for top prices. Some steers selling for 7c depending on quality.

York: Good dairy cows are selling at from $45 to $100. One farmer told me he was offered $225 for two fine grade cows by a buyer from the Ottawa district.

Kenora: The car-load of cattle shipped to Toronto last week is one of three brought in from Winnipeg last fall and fed on sunflower silage and other roughage. These cattle were purchased for 1 1-2c to 3 1-2c per lb. The spread on these up to 6c and 8c per lb. would indicate that feeding cattle in the district would be a paying proposition, especially since such cheap roughage can be produced. The remaining two cars will be shipped shortly.

Bruce: It is noticed that work horses are in better condition than a year ago. It is no doubt due to the abundance of roughage produced last year as well as the excellent yield of grains. It is also noticed that farming operations during the past two weeks have been done generally by the use of horses in this county.

Peterborough: Interest in the poultry industry is increasing in this county. Farmers are endeavouring to get their eggs hatched early in order to get production in the winter months. The eggs have hatched very poorly so far the average being quite low.

Prescott and Russell: All the bee hives have been taken out of the cellar during these last two weeks. Notwithstanding our cold and long winter, the bees have wintered very well with a loss of only from 5 to 10 per cent.

FRENCH DELEGATES HAD 75c DRINK ALLOWANCE

PARIS (By mail to the United Press)—The moot question regarding how much a diplomat should drink has been solved in a formal Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Finance. In an official decree signed by President Millerand the sum of three Swiss francs (about 75 cents) per day was alloted to the members of the French delegation at the Lausanne Peace Conference to cover their "expenses of drinking."

The apportionment was entirely democratic, because although Ambassador Barrere, Senator Bompard and other heads of the delegation were given 200 francs per day ordinary expenses, and the lesser diplomats 100 francs per days, down to the stenographers with 25 francs per day, the drink allowance was the same for all. The inference evidently was that a lesser diplomat or a stenographer can and should and does drink as much as an Ambassador or Senator.

However, they all have to produce an itemized expense account to prove the consumption.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply.

HOT WATER AND CONVULSIONS.

Convulsions are more prevalent in summer than winter for the very good reason that the mothers are liable to allow too many different kinds of food in the summer, and the relation of strange food and hot weather to digestive disturbances, and digestive disturbances to convulsions is very close. The child who makes a hearty meal on too ripe fruit, who stuffs with highly flavored rich ice cream concoctions and cookies may next day or that night be the victim of spasms. No matter how trivial the cause, spasms are always dangerous and to be avoided, as one attack leads more easily to another. The child who becomes habited to spasms may have one at every rise of temperature above a certain point, no matter what the cause.

A hot water bath, mustard in the water and cold cloths on the head are the standard procedures. Be sure the water is not above 105 degrees F. and add one tablespoon of mustard to 5 gallons of water. Have the child well covered with the water and do not keep in the tub longer than ten minutes. When he is taken out he should be put in bed and warmly covered so that a profuse perspiration will be readily induced. Keep a cold or iced cloth on his forehead.

When he is conscious again give him a cool enema to relieve the clogged bowels and a dose of castor oil to clean the bowel tract. So many cases of spasms are due to this condition that it is always a wise thing to do. Later the doctor may discover another cause, but the dosage will have done the baby no harm and may prevent another spasm.

Light food should be fed for several days and the baby kept in bed. Spasms are a fearful strain on the nervous system and the child is in no condition to either eat or play about as usual.

A PRIZE OFFICE BOY.

LONDON (United Press)—Harry Brulaw, a 14-year-old Liverpool office boy, has a bright future ahead of him. He has been overwhelmed with offers of employment following his employer's report of him at an insurance convention.

A solemn looking man entered the Liverpool office, the employer stated. The boy asked him what he could do for him in the nature of insurance—fire, life, accident or automobile.

"Can you insure the immortal soul?" the visitor asked gloomily.

"I am not sure," the boy replied. "Just a moment and I'll ask the manager of the fire department."

GOOD MANNERS

For a costume ball a dress should be chosen which is individually becoming.

"Folly" is hardly the role for a sedate young woman, nor is "Martha Washington" a character easy for a jolly, vivacious girl to represent.

To be successful, a part must be not only dressed, but lived.

Baby Marshall

"When my little son was three months old he broke out in sores on his chest and arms. We did all we could to heal those terrible sores, but nothing did him much good. Finally I ventured on a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and kept on using it. At last we were rewarded by the steady healing of the sores, and finally he was completely relieved of them. He is now three years old, and has had no return of the trouble since."

EXISTING PRICES WILL DEPEND ON CONTINUED BUYING

FEW FORECASTS MADE.

The possible market for cars is chiefly of interest to purchasers in its bearing on the matter of price. Few accurate forecasts as to the price situation have been made during the past two years because the period of readjustment brought about price revision which few expected. Two years ago, when the first cut was made by a single manufacturer, it was very evident that prices were due to fall materially, but the extent to which the drop would go was not realized for months afterwards. Every successive drop was regarded by some as being the lowest point; by others as merely a halting place before a further decrease became effective.

It was not until the end of last year that conditions really became settled and even since then one or two manufacturers have revised their prices downward. At present, however, the general opinion exists that the bottom has been reached; and the opinion is based on economic facts. A recent statistical report issued by Roger W. Babson summarized the situation by declaring "the demand for passenger cars still continues good, with prices temporarily weak; with production costs increasing every day and unit profits tending toward decline. The statement is taken to indicate the possibility of an upward trend in price. Forecasts of such a trend have been made with regularity during the past year and one is naturally sceptical. Yet there is a limit to the length of time a manufacturer can produce at cost, in order to stimulate production with the hope that such stimulation will have a tendency to decrease the cost of manufacture.

Slight Increases Possible

The general opinion seems to be that, while a very marked increase in price is not probable, there is every possibility of slight increase being recorded. The depth of the decline appears to have been reached, from all reports, and the logical direction for prices now is upward. On the other hand, it appears certain that a larger number of cars will be sold this year than were marketed in 1922. A later Babson's report, covering general market conditions, points out that fundamental conditions are favorable and that purchasing of all sorts of commodities will be very materially increased during the yaer.

"Social, economic and spiritual conditions which affect business have improved so that they now furnish the basis for genuine prosperity," the report states.

The over-taxation among business concerns and the habits of extravagance and waste on the part of people as a whole have now been largely corrected. People are beginning to produce more than they consume. This is apparent from the Babson chart, which shows that business turned the corner in August.

Crop conditions from the standpoint of profits, the crop outlook is the best in years. The harvest promised is large and prices are fair. Hence, 1922 crops should benefit both the farmers and the public. Estimates indicate that the value of grain and cotton harvests at the farm will be 30 per cent. more than last year. This indicates that the majority of farmers will get about 30 per cent. more for their products than they did a year ago. Considering the fact that producing expenses have been less, the net profits of this year's harvests should be much more than in 1921. This means that at least one-third of the people in Canada are going to have a greatly increased buying power this fall and winter. Large crops are a source of real wealth. They help everyone.

Money is Easier

"Money conditions: Loans throughout Canada have been reduced. The banks are rediscounting only about a fourth as much as they were this time last year. Banks have cut down their loans greatly. Moreover, they have cleaned up a large part of the doubtful accounts which they had been carrying since the 1920 crash. From the standpoint of reserves, the ratio of reserves against note and deposit liabilities shows the strong position of the Canadian banking system. Certainly the bank statements promise plenty of money with which to do business throughout the coming months, regardless of what may happen abroad. The long swing trend of interest rates is downward.

"Commodity conditions: The position of business houses is decidedly better. Reports show that in most cases inventories have been sufficiently written off. Stocks of goods have been cut down, and there has been no overbuying. The same progress has not yet been made in reducing retail prices, but this will follow. Failures are fewer. The peak of losses apparently has been passed. Prices are becoming stabilized. A shortage in goods may even be witnessed in some lines. All signs point to a stiffening in commodity prices this winter, although the long swing trend may continue downward.

Employment Improves

"Employment conditions are very much better. If the railroads now come into the market for new equipment and supplies, there should be very little unemployment during the next few months. This must mean better business, because the purchasing power of the people is ultimately determined by the total payroll of the people."

From this it seems evident that the hoped for increase in production will be forthcoming. Therefore, while it is certain that the lowest possible price has been reached, and, while slight increases are probable, owing to natural conditions, it is not likely that extremely great advances in price will be recorded. In any case, it is certain that lower prices will never obtain while the car of today remains as it is.

AUTOMOBILE IS AMONGST GREAT TIME CONSERVERS

Speed is Regarded as an Essential to Yearly Increasing Road-Borne Traffic.

"As an economizer of time, it must be conceded that the improved highway of to-day, taken in conjunction with the motor venicle, ranks in importance with the railway, the telegraph and the telephone," says an official of the Ontario Motor league. "Rapidity of transit, whether of goods, passengers or messages, is indeed the outstanding characteristic of all these great modern developments. It has been estimated from available statistics that the volume of this country's road-borne traffic is ten times that of its rail-borne traffic. There is no need to discuss the relative importance of the railway and the highway—both are essential each being the complement of the other, but as speed is admittedly a prime factor in railway operation, it is worth while to consider this factor in relation to the highways which carry the great bulk of the nation's traffic.

Speed, for the purpose of this discussion, will be taken in the sense—rate of travel or velocity, rather than in the sense to make haste, perhaps unnecessarily. So far as 'speeding,' or exceeding the speed limit, is concerned, the Ontario Motor League stands for the sane observance of the law and advocates a reasonable regard on the part of all motorists for the rights of others using the highways. Safe driving and courtesy under all circumstances are expected by the league of all its members.

Speed Injures Roads

There are many angles from which the question of speed of motor vehicles may be considered. It might be taken up from the standpoint of engine efficiency and fuel economy; from the standpoint of tire efficiency and economy; from the standpoint of experience and skill on the part of the driver; with regard to the factor of safety, or with regard to the effect of speed on road surfaces. Each of these various aspects of speed is worthy of serious thought and capable of considerable elaboration, but it may be well to confine attention largely to the aspect in which the Good Roads association is chiefly interested —the effect of speed on road surfaces.

It is well known that speed is a very important factor in the amount of destruction which results from the unrestricted use of the roads by vehicles. The impact increases very rapidly with increase of speed. It increases much more rapidly in the case of a truck equipped with pneumatic tires, because of the greater resilient qualities of pneumatic tires.

A report issued by the United States bureau of public roads, on the Effect of Impact on Pavements, gives some interesting information on this subject, and shows that the impact resistance increases with the velocity with the total weight of the vehicle, and with increasing road surface roughness. In these tests, the impact resistance of good asphalt or bitulithic or other smooth pavement, was practically negligible and reached its highest values on granite block roads, with sand filled joints, and on badly worn macadam pavements. The rate of increase of impact resistance with speed was not marked on the roughest roads.

The following urban pavements are enumerated in the order of their desirability for vehicle operation from the point of view of tractive resistance at 30 km. (12.4 miles) per hour, as found in this investigation; 1, asphalt; 2, wood block; 3 hard, smooth macadam; 4, brick block; 5, granite block with cement-filled joints; 6, cinder; 7, gravel; 8, granite block with sand-filled joints.

Car Weight a Big Factor

The equivalent grade at 20 km. (12.4) miles per hour of a badly worn city macadam road, was found to be nearly three times as great as that of the best asphalt road tested. This means, at this speed, a consumption of energy of wheel treads of nearly three times as much on level macadam roads as on good level asphalt roads.

Increasing the gross weight of the vehicle by 12 per cent. through load, was found to have no effect on tractive resistance with the observed speed limits for smooth roads in good condition; but on rough roads a distinct increase in tractive resistance with this extra weight was observed.

AIR-PRESSURE SYSTEMS

Gasoline pressure systems give very little trouble, but there are two places which must be constantly watched—the filling cap and the check valve on the pump. Always see that the cap is screwed down extra tight, and watch the pressure gauge to see if the check valve is leaking air. If it is, a few squirts of gasoline may be all that is necessary to clear it of dust.

PIGS PROFITABLE WHEN CARED FOR

Swine are profitable when given abundant sunshine and exercise, fed on well-selected feeds, gently handled, given proper sanitation and housing, kept free from worms and lice, and protected against cholera and other diseases. Quite a lot can happen a pig between birth and old age, but it is an easy animal to keep in the straight and narrow path leading to successful and profitable development if you go the right way about it.

Pigs frequently suffer more from the heat of the sun during the summer than they do from the cold of the winter period. If possible, make full use of any available shade trees when making your plans for swine pastures, feed lots or colony house locations.—L. Stevenson.

CAR OF PRESENT HAS NOT REACHED PERFECTED STAGE

Manufacturers and Inventors Appreciate the Fact That Improvements Can Be Made.

ENGINES WASTEFUL.

Despite the momentous and rapid development of the motor car industry during the last two decades to the point where now it is one of the leading occupations of the country, the best is yet to come, according to the opinions of eminent automotive engineers. Many laymen believe that the automobile of the present is as nearly perfect as it is humanly possible to make a mechanical vehicle. Car manufacturers and inventors, however, appreciate that many practical and essential improvements must yet be made in the horseless carriages before they attain the stage of mechanical perfection. The cars of the present abound in gloss and glitter, graceful lines, splendid bodies and powerful engines; but they lack in internal efficiency and the ability to convert gasoline into power with the minimum waste of fuel.

It is not beyond reason to predict that the future of the motor car industry will depend largely on the development of more economical systems of utilizing fuel. Though for the present gas is cheap compared with the 1920 peak, the future supply is hazardous. Gas waste and the extravagant use of fuel must accordingly not be countenanced. Furthermore, we must impress upon car makers and designers the importance of adapting car construction to portending fuel shortages. The quality of gasoline as well as its volatility constantly are becoming worse. This means that engines designed to use the best grades of fuel are inefficient because the gasoline is of bad quality. Refiners gradually are allowing, the quality of the fuel to depreciate in their futile attempts to make the available supply satisfy the heavy demand. There is not much chance that the refineries will improve the volatility of the gasoline, so about all that the motorists can do is to increase the average mileage which they now get out of one gallon of gasoline.

Must Curtail Losses

One of the most practical methods of increasing the mileage is by providing some efficient and satisfactory method on all cars for heating the intake manifold. Simply heating the air by passing it over the exhaust pipe before it enters the carburetor is not sufficient. It is fundamentally essential that the intake-manifold design be changed in all cars which have not already attempted to correct this defect so as to curtail losses from cold manifolds. Gas is wasted in large amounts in starting cold cars as well as in accelerating cold engines. The intake manifold is continually exposed to temperature changes even during ordinary running, where the drivers have to slow up for traffic or at corners or else speed up for grades or in passing other cars. Any mechanical appliance which could be adjusted on the manifold so as to keep it hot and at an even temperature would satisfy a vital, existent need.

It is also essential that crank-case dilution be eliminated in our present models of automobile engines if the best potential results are to obtain. Not one-tenth of one per cent. of the motor cars now in operation completely vaporize the gas in the cylinders, and as a result some of the raw gasoline runs down into the crank-case with the lubricating oil, where its fuel value is wasted and trouble develops in the crank case and bearings as a consequence of the presence of this foreign material.

Engine Friction Serious

Engine friction is as serious a source of power loss as crank-case dilution. The tendency among manufacturers has been to place, in the cars used for general motoring, small engins which must be run at high speeds—the same as those used in racing cars. The fact is, such general utility cars should be equipped with large engines running at low speeds. Engineers of the Bureau of Standards recently conducted some interesting tests to determine the importance of engine friction. They found that it required a force of 70 pounds to tow a large touring car behind another car over a macadam highway at a speed of 10 miles an hour when the gear was in neutral. The motive force had to be increased to 110 pounds to tow the car in high gear and to 220 pounds to move it when the gears were set for second speed. In this case the engine friction amounted to 150 pounds, being the difference between the power necessary to move the car when in second gear and in neutral.

Another needed improvement is the provision of a carburetor, which may be simply adjusted from the driver's seat so as to ensure the most effective utilization of the fuel. Unquestionably future types of motor cars will be provided with simple carburetor-throttling devices which may be attached conveniently to the steering wheel where the driver can adjust them as the car is in motion without undue trouble. If a contrivance of this type could be devised which might consist of a sliding lever which could be moved in one direction to increase the power and enrich the mixture, and in the other direction for a lean mixture and a more economical use of the fuel, existent extravagances in the use of gasoline on cars which are equipped with non-adjustable carburetors would be eliminated.

The simple rule used by the Bureau of Standards for determining what adjustment of the carburetor is proper and most satisfactory is to employ the leanest mixture which will fire regularly during a long drive. This goal is reached by leaning down the mixture until it begins to backfire through the carburetor. Henceforward as exigency for doing so arises the mixture may be enriched and the power increased for hills. Owners who drive their car 10,000 to 15,000 miles a year or more will find that they can greatly reduce their annual gas bills if they will adhere to this plan. Maximum economy and maximum power do not occur at the same point in automobile operation. Government tests have shown that maximum power obtains where the mixture consists of a blend of 13.5 pounds of air per pound of fuel, while maximum economy results from a ratio of 16-5 to 1.

Lubrication Well Advanced

It is not anticipated that any decided improvement in engine-oiling systems will be effected in the near future; consensus of opinion is that they are already about as highly developed as they ever will be. Greater effectiveness in the use of lubricating oil could be gained if only refineries would produce oils of similar grade and quality, year after year, instead of allowing the different types of oil to deteriorate in quality as they do. In the operation of motor cars, it is important to maintain the combustion chambers free of oil pollution. Oil enters the combustion chamber when it is pumped into the main bearings to an extent where it over-lubricates the cylinder walls. This can be prevented by the use of oil-scraping rings.

PRESENTATION TO A POPULAR LADY

On Sunday evening, April 27th, a number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Miss Swinton, on the first line of Smith township, to mark in fitting manner, her departure from the neighbourhood.

Mr. J. D. Young acted as chairman and in a few well chosen words, voiced the sentiments of all present when he referred to the character and sterling worth of Miss Swinton. On behalf of all present he wished her God-speed. He then called upon Mrs. W. L. White to read the following address:

Dear Miss Swinton:—

We have learned with deep regret that you have decided to leave our midst Our sympathy goes out to you in the great loss you have recently sustained by the death of your dear mother.

Both of your parents spent the greater part of their lives in the community, and their kindly interest and sympathy will not be easily forgotten. Their lines were lived in such a manner as to command our esteem and appreciation of their noble characters.

You, too, have always taken a deep interest in everything that has made for the highest life and good of the community. By your work in the Sunday School you have endeared yourself to all the young people, and have doubtless been instrumental in laying the foundation of characters that will stand the test in the critical times of life.

This work has called for much self-sacrifice but the service was always freely and willingly given.

We shall miss your genial presence and happy smile, but we feel that your life and work will prove a stimulus to those who are left behind to carry on the work of life.

We wish you every success and God-speed in anything which you may undertake, and we can assure you of a hearty welcome at any time you care to visit us or return to the community.

May we ask you to accept this purse as a slight token of our affection and esteem and so an expression of our goodwill.

(Signed)—
MRS. J. A. MIDDLETON,
MRS. W. McKEE,
MRS. FRED CANN,
MRS. W. L. WHITE.

After the address had been read, Mrs. J. A. Middleton presented Miss Swinton with a well-filled purse, asking her to accept it as a token of their affection and esteem.

Miss Swinton made a suitable reply in which she thanked all present for their expression of goodwill.

After refreshments were served the evening was brought to a close by the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Inflammation and Great Weakness

West St. John, N. B.—"I was in a general run-down condition following the birth of my twin boys. I had a great deal of inflammation, with pains and weakness. Finally my doctor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He said that your medicine would be the only thing to build me up. I am sure he is right, for I am feeling much better and am gaining in weight, having gone down to ninety-three pounds. I was in bed for over a month, but am up again now. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to my friends and give you permission to use my letter." —Mrs. ELMER A. RITCHIE, 82 Rodney St., West St. John, N. B.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them.

MR. HOBBS' LUCKY DAY

So he happily calls the day that marked the turning point of Mrs. Hobbs' lingering illness.

Mr. Hobbs, of 15 Argyle Ave., Hamilton, Ont., tried every possible means to check the inroads of stomach, kidney and liver trouble that were rapidly dragging Mrs. Hobbs down to a state of hopelessf invalidism. Medicines, treatments and travel were all tried and found wanting. Her suffering continued unabated. Then Mr. Hobbs heard of Dreco. "What a lucky day that was," he says in telling of the immediate and continued improvement in health Mrs. Hobbs has since enjoyed.

"My wife had suffered stomach, kidney and liver trouble for five years. Almost any kind of food soured in her stomach, causing gas and much distress. She had pains across her back and sides. Dizzy spells and spots before her eyes at times would almost get the best of her. Her blood was in an impure condition and complexion very sallow. We tried almost everything, but nothing helped. Last summer she was so bad I sent her away to a health resort, thinking that would do some good, but there was no improvement About three months ago she became so weak and run down that we just about gave up all hope. Then I heard of Dreco. What a lucky day that was.

"Since she started taking this splendid remedy, the results have been very noticeable. She was much improved in every way. Has a good appetite and can eat many things now without suffering afterwards. Pains in her back and side are gone and she has no more dizzy spells, or spots before her eyes, while her complexion is improving every day. She now sleeps better and is growing stronger. We praise Dreco and recommend it very highly."

The primary cause of Mrs. Hobbs' sufferings was a poorly functioning digestive system, and it is in its power to overcome this condition that Dreco excels. The herbs, roots, bark and leaves from which it is compounded, tone and regulate the organs, speedily banishing all distressing symptoms. Men and women everywhere are finding Dreco the ideal health builder.

Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

DISCUSS LOYALTY OF THE DOMINIONS

LONDON, May 3. — (Canadian Press—Is the House of Lords last night the Duke of Marlborough moved a resolution requesting definition of the Government's Imperial policy and urging the linking up of questions of imperial migration and preference.

Lord Long implored the Government to show the Dominions that "We appreciated their overtures."

The Earl of Beauchamp declined to believe that the loyalty of dominions would be increased by a tax on British food.

The Duke of Devonshire said he hoped the Government would be able to still further extend the principle of imperial preference.

DIMENSIONS

A device that gives movies the third dimension, depth, like the old-fashioned stereoscope, is invented by young Lawrence Hammond.

Such an invention, perfected, would make the movies as real and natural as the stage, instead of a shadowland with only two dimensions. However, the fascination of the movies may be largely in the illusion created by the absence of a third dimension. Time will tell, for a perfected device such as claimed by Hammond is inevitable.

FAMILY THREATENED BY RED TAPE

FRANCESCA GUGLIELMINO (INSET) AND ONE OF CHILDREN SHE HOPES TO BE ALLOWED TO STAY IN AMERICA TO "MOTHER."

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—Official wheels in Washington, grinding systematically, have sent forth an order which, if Congress does not act, will destroy a home here and separate three children from their aunt—the only "mother" they ever have known.

For it has been ruled by the department of immigration that Miss Francesca Guglielmino, native of Catania, Sicily, must return there unless she is married or can read and write before the first of the coming year.

"But how can I learn to read and write so quickly?" asks Miss Guglielmino in her native Italian, while "her children" pull at her skirts. "I am old, 60 I am, and cannot learn as readily as one younger.

"If I study who will care for the children? All day long I am busy with them. I have no time; I cannot neglect the bambinos."

"No, I will not marry. Many have written me, asking I marry them. When I was a girl in Sicily, many asked me to marry. I would not then, nor will I now. I live for the children."

Miss Guglielmino lives here with her brother, Salvatore Guglielmino, a broker. The children are his. His wife died last May. In the same month his mother, with whom Miss Guglielmino then lived, died in Catania.

Guglielmino cabled for his sister to come. She got as far as Ellis Island. There she was stopped for illiteracy. Friends interceded and she was allowed to enter America for six months.

Just before the six-month period expired, the time was extended.

But now, the immigration authorities have ruled that she must return the first of the year.

It is toward Congress that the Guglielminos look. Friends have told them Congress can pass a special legislation which would nullify the immigration department's ruling. And—

"I do not believe they will make me go from my home and 'my' children," says Miss Guglielmino. "Everywhere this country is known as the great America that is so kind to unhappy peoples. Why then, should they wish to make us unhappy?"

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

Mexican marrages usually take place in the morning, sometimes before daylight.

Guests always receive two invitations, one from the bride's family, one from the bridegroom's.

The simplest ceremony lasts two hours, during which the bride's veil is pinned to the bridegroom's shoulders.

Mrs. Holden Declares Tanlac Saved Her Life

Famous Medicine Ended 10 Years of Suffering and Restored Perfect Health, She States — Taken on Advice of Trained Nurse.

"If it hadn't been for Tanlac I don't believe I would be alive today," says Mrs. A. M. Holden, 377 Cannon St., Hamilton, Ont.

"I had been in ill health for ten years, my whole system had become disordered and I was so weak I couldn't walk across the floor without holding on to something. My appetite was gone, and I had to confine myself to very light food. I was so nervous and trembly I couldn't hold a cup of tea, and sleep was almost impossible.

"My daughter who is a trained and graduate medical electrician started me taking Tanlac. That was some time ago and I haven't been without it since. My daughter was just telling me the other day that the treatment has made me look like a different person, and I know I feel that way. My troubles have been completely overcome, and everyone remarks how well I look. I can never praise Tanlac enough."

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as? indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache, and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness, or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments, and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestants. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE

SIMCOE, May 3. — (Canadian Press).—Sidney Juggins, aged 48, of Walpole township, stated to have been depressed for some time, hanged himself yesterday evening on the boundary line between Norfolk and Haldimand counties.

LITTLE BROWN DOG.

For a Little Brown Dog, who "sees" me down
The hill to the car when I go to town,
And carries my bag with an air of pride
As he trots sedately by my side,
And waits to see that I'm on all right,
And watches the car till it's out of sight—
I Thank Thee!

For the way he tears down the hill to meet
The car at night on his mad little feet—
The car that will bring me, he knows, from town—
And the joyous greeing, as I step down,
A greeting the passengers hear, and see,
Everyone of them envying me,
I Thank Thee!

For the great true heart that is in his eyes
Tender, and patient, and brave, and wise,
That makes him know when I'm sick or sad,
And, knowing, love me the more — dear lad—
With a love unquestioned, high and fine—
For all of that, Little Dog of Mine,
I Thank Thee!

Had Bad Pains In Her Heart

Nerves Were Very Bad

Mrs. John Case, R. R. No. 4, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"I wish to say that I have been bothered very much with my heart and nerves. I doctored with two different doctors, but did not find much relief. I would have such bad pains in my heart, at times, I would be almost afraid to move or breathe, and at night I could not sleep. If the pains in my heart were gone, my nerves would be so bad I could not lie still and would only get a little sleep by being tired out. My stomach was also very bad and I could not eat but very little, and then only certain things or I would have so much distress which always made my heart worse.

I had been suffering for nearly two years until one day I was talking to our druggist about the way I felt. He advised me to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a fair trial. I have now taken five boxes and am feeling so much better, I am able to do my own work, and can eat anything I wish. I cannot praise

ORCHESTRA WON FIRST HONOURS

Trinity Church Symphony Won Challenge Shield at Ontario Festival.

The triumph of the Trinity Church Orchestra at the Festival of the Ontario Musical Association in Toronto this week has been one of the most gratifying and encouraging accomplishments of Peterborough musicians in a long time.

In winning first prize in the class for Sunday School orchestras of a maximum of forty pieces, they not only carried off the Association's Shield, which they will be required to defend next year, but they revealed musical qualities that overcame the larger instrumentation of their competitor, the orchestra of the Davenport Road Methodist Sunday School.

The Trinity Symphony assembled 32 instruments, under the direction of Mr. Rupert Gliddon, against the 38 instruments in the Davenport band, who in their orchestration included tympani, bassoon and harp, which were very effectively employed.

Against these resources the Trinity Church musicians scored heavily in musicianship their precision attack phrasing and tempo giving their their performance that technical finish and compact rounded tone that won the praise of the judges, Granville Bantock, M.A., and Plunkett Greene, both of London, who came out to Toronto as adjudicators for the competitions of the Festival.

The test piece for the Sunday School orchestras was the overture to "Poet and Peasant" (Von Suppe).

Trinity scored 90 points against Davenport's 80, a decisive majority, indicating the impression Mr. Gliddon's musicians made upon the judges under the various headings for which the points were given.

Not only the official arbiters, but also the Toronto musical critics, highly praised the work of the Trinity Church orchestra, and the fact that they won the challenge shield in a competition that was open to the Province is an achievement that merits the fullest congratulations from their fellow-musicians and other citizens of Peterborough.

As conductor of the symphony, Mr. Gliddon received a gold medal, and those who played under his baton both in rehearsals and in the final test say that he excelled himself in those special talents of his, particularly of expression, in its finest and subtlest aspects.

The personnel of the orchestra follows: First violins: Mrs. Hoyland, Dr. Park, Mr. C. J. Seymour, Baden Green, Mr. Huffman and Mr. Nazimok; second violins, Arnold Spencer, Stewart Widdess, Winnie Evans, Kathie Taylor, Mrs. Hetherington and Albert Wright; viola, W. E. Lech; cello, M. Chenhall, and G. Greene; flute, Mr. K. Greene; piccolo, Mr. Hodgson; oboe, Mr. Ensby; saxaphone, Mr. Bugg; cornets, Mr. Gallagher, Mr. C. Thirnbeck and Mr. W. Cormac; French horns, Mr. C. S. Hetherington and Mr. H. Wood; trombones, B. G. Robinson and T. A. McDonald; bass trombone, Walter Miller, string bass, W. Smith and J. M. Greene; drums, Mr. Brown; pianist, Mrs. G. E. Porter; organist, Miss Olga Fowler. Conductor, Mr. Rupert Gliddon.

Mr. Gliddon received an ovation when he stepped to the stand on the stage of Massey Hall. Many persons from Peterborough were present with other former residents now living in Toronto, and the success of the orchestra in winning the first prize with 90 points out of a possible 100 was enthusiastically acclaimed by these ardent supporters.

Peterobrough musicians have covered themselves with honours in this Spring's festival. Miss Agnes Logan has won four prizes in the piano classes and her friends believe she will increase her list before the week is out.

Her remarkable success is in itself the highest approval she could gain in Ontario and her many friends are delighted by the laurels she has gained and are happy in the fact that their opinions and judgment have been so conclusively verified.

Miss Mathilde Masson, of the Conservatory staff, won first honours in the soprano vocal class, thereby emphasizing the versatility of Peterborough's musicians and the standard of the Conservatory tuition. All these splendid achievements have prompted a number of citizens to suggest a public recognition of their success and the prominence they have gained for Peterborough, and it is understood that arrangements are now under way for a musical night at the Grand Opera House next week at which Miss Logan, Miss Masson and the Trinity school orchestra will be fittingly congratulated.

PINEAPPLES NOW PLENTIFUL HERE

New Fruits and Vegetables to Reach the Peterboro Dealers.

With the beginning of May is the commencement of the pineapple preserving season. A carload of more of the spiky, prickly fruit will come into the city to satisfy the needs of Peterboro housewives. Just now is the very best time for preserving them, and the dealers predict no lessening in price for the best 'pines,' which they say come from Porto Rico, and are selling at from $2.50 to $4.50 per dozen. The Porto Rico product is supposed to be superior in flavor to the ordinary Cuban fruit, which has a rougher coat.

Just in from Bermuda are the new onions, flattish, white and said to have rather a sweetish taste, and to go exceedingly well with plain bread and butter, at two pounds for a quarter dollar. And today, some of the stores have the advance guard of the new potato crop, at 6 cents a pound, which, with potatoes measured now at fifteen pounds to the peck, makes the new 'spuds' worth $1.20 per peck.

"Two weeks ago, string beans from Florida were selling in the fruit stores at 40 cents a pound. Now they are up to 50 cents, and are very scarce. From Florida, too, come cucumbers at 15 and 25 cents apiece, a less price than the hothouse product from Leamington, which sells at 25 and 30 cents apiece. Asparagus from the same Canadian hotbeds is 25 cents a bush.

Maple syrup had a short shift this year, although there is still plenty in the stores, at a general price of 70 cents a quart, or $2.50 per gallon. Maple sugar is 35 cents a pound.

Your Loss of Today Recovered Tomorrow Through Examiner

A regular happening in connection with 'Lost' add entries in The Examiner is the rapidity of their effect. A man or a woman loses something to-day, on the street, in the cars, in a store. In nine case out of ten, if they insert an advertisement in The Examiner, that is all that is necessary. One insertion does it. The person who found the article goes immediately to the evening paper, or leaves the thing at the Examiner Office, where the loser can readily get it. A quick connection between loser and finder was established just last week, when the lady who dropped a purse containing a five dollar bill and a Capitol Theatre pass had it returned to her immediately after her 'ad' appeared.

HE SAVED EIGHT

they lost their oars. However a rope, had been tied to the boat as a precaution, and, with his two helpers, Messrs. Thomas and Simmons, manning this rope, John Murphy whose foot had been badly wrenched when it caught in a root on his first trip, once more waded out and towed the boat, with its occupants, young Kendry and Mr. Rogers clinging to it, to safety. In an atmosphere of confused activity, the brawny frame and quick skill of one man probably averted a wholesale tragedy.

Pulled out Others

In the half mile of swift-running river between the Auburn dam and the bridge at Inverlea, Mr. Murphy has pulled out no less than five other men, four of whom fell in at the Auburn end, one going fifty feet down the river before his rescuer could get him out, the other man who went in at Martin's dam and was fished out below Inverlea bridge. In this time also, he has helped to recover the bodies of seven others who were gone beyond recall.

The heroic and daring enterprise of the father has evidently extended to the young generation. A son, Fred, some years ago was the means of saving two young girls, inexperienced swimmers who went in beyond their depth at Inverlea bathing beach.

Swift of Impulse

Reports in every instance recorded showed the same characteristic swift impulse, not the action of the ordinary bystander who watches with blanched face and palsied feet the struggles of the victim, but the instantaneous response of a brave unselfish heart. The published report said of the young Murphy "he jumped into the water, fully dressed, and saved both girls," and of the father, John Murphy, "The spring freshet was at its height. The two boys were left clinging to a post, with the prospect of soon being swept off by the rushing river. Murphy, who saw their plight, ran across Smith street bridge and, with out waiting for a boat, rope or any other safeguard, plunged into the icy swift-moving water and brought one of the boys safely to the shore, helping later to rescue the other and the men who went to his assistance."

MRS. W. R. MORRIS VICE-PRESIDENT

Reports on Meeting of Ontario Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association Toronto.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, who was the Peterborough Board of Education's delegate to the convention of the Ontario Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, held in Convocation Hall, Toronto, on April 2, 3 and 4, reports in brief on business disposed of in regard to the Adolescent Act and other questions as follows:

Several township boards brought in resolutions asking that the Act be repealed. After discussion, during which many rural delegates resented the statement that all rural boards were opposed to the Act, the Act was upheld, as Mr. Grant, Minister of Education, had promised rural municipalities a measure of relief.

The Ontario Educational Association endorsed the Act and urged the Minister of Education to enforce the Act as it stands. The Trustees' Association in joint meeting with the Federation of Home and School Associations, took similar action.

The meeting voted down a suggestion of an arbitration board to adjust differences between teachers and school boards when necessary.

A resolution that teachers be asked to hold their conventions in holiday time passed.

A resolution asking that County Councils be given the right to discuss school inspectors carried.

No action was taken on a number of resolutions advising that teachers' salaries be reduced.

A resolution that sick leave for teachers be reduced from four weeks to one week with salary, voted down.

Consolidation received a few knocks, but each year there are fewer knocks and more schools.

A tendency to keep the rural boy and girl at home is seen in discussion of ways and means to finance continuation classes and technical classes suitable to rural conditions, etc.

The president of the Association elected for this year is E. T. Howe, Windsor; Mrs. W. R. Morris, Peterborough, is vice-president.

Appointments of representatives of other branches of sport will be made at the next meeting.

The President, Dr. McPherson, A. C. Kay and J. P. Bond were named as a committee to deal with a view to considering local problems. A conference with the hockey players will be one of the first steps.

A. C. Kay who is promoting a bantam baseball series announced that John I. Allen had donated a silver trophy to the Association to be competed for in the bantam series. The Secretary was instructed to write and thank Mr. Allen for his gift. This is only one of Mr. Allen's many evidence of co-operation in the work of the Association.

Coming from a meeting held to reorganize for girls' softball, F. Gandy reported that the meeting had decided that the trophy donated by J. P. Bond, Should be presented to the Colonial Weaving Co., team. This presentation will be made at as early date.

The boxing committee will assist the Lacrosse Club is putting on a smoker of which announcement will be made by the Lacrosse Club.

WORK-WORN WOMEN

Care of Home and Children Often Causes Breakdown.

The woman at home, deep in household duties and the cares of motherhood, needs occasional help to keep her in good health. The demands upon a mother's health are many and severe. Her own health trials and her children's welfare exact heavy tolls, while hurried meals, broken rest and much indoor living tend to weaken her. No wonder the woman at home is often indisposed through weakness, headaches, and nervousness. Too many women accept these visitation as as part of the lot of motherhood. But many and varied as her health troubles are, the cause is simple and relief at hand. When well, it is the woman's good blood that keeps her well; when ill she must make her blood rich to renew her health. The nursing mother more than any other woman needs rich blood and plenty of it. There is one way to get this good blood so necessary to health, and it is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These enrich the blood, and through their use many weak, ailing wives and mothers have been benefitted. If you are ailing, easily tired or depressed, it is a duty you owe yourself and your family to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial.

You can get Dr. Williams Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FORD HAS PLAN

small Michigan towns," he said, "Not 30 miles from Detroit I've established a small shop run by waterpower from an old mill. Work is sent down there, finished and sent back here.

"The workmen live under semi-rural conditions. They have gardens. They may keep chickens and cows, if they wish."

Water-Power.

Of water-power Ford said:

"Let me tell you water is the golden fluid of the future. We can't exhaust it. As long as it rains, rivers will flow and they'll supply power ceaselessly.

"A river charges you nothing for flowing. And it costs but little to produce the power and deliver it to the user."

Ford was himself born on a Michigan farm and spent his early life under rural conditions. He to-day lives on a rural estate at Dearborn, Mich.

Though he has been the biggest factor in drawing young men to Detroit from Michigan farms, he has always decried the growth of city population.

Would Aid Farmer.

When I visited Ford last year he was busy with experiments for bettering rural life—chiefly with devising means to enable farmers to use the water-power in brooks and rills to run their farm machinery.

Working in industrial plants in the winter and on farms in the summer will not be a new thing for Michigan farm lads. Every fall thousands pour into Detroit to work in motor plants and when spring comes and pa writes it's time to start work, they throng back to the farm again.

Detroit is one of the few industrial centres of the world that is surrounded on all sides by prosperous farming country.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Painor Bother

(Modes of To-day)

It is sot necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

PETES WORKOUT AT RIVERSIDE PARK

Jake Rapidly Rounding His Crew Into Shape — All Set For Leaside Battle on Saturday.

The Petes took advantage of the bright weather last evening to put another lively workout under their belt at Riverside Park, and the squad is rounding into shape for Saturday's tilt with Leaside, which opens what is expected to be an unusually interesting ball season. The crew had a fast infield practice with Swanston at the plate, Comolli at first, Johnston at second, Ansaldo at short and Collins and Helson at third, while Pitchers Heckman and Summerfeldt took a few kinks out of their whips in preparation for Saturday's tussle. Batting practice wound up the evening' proceedings.

The Solomon outfit will rest up to-night but are billed for another workout to-morrow night to put the edge on for Saturday. The new uniforms have been distributed and the Petes will make their appearance against Leaside in immaculate toggery.

The game is attracting an unusual amount of interest and, with fine weather, a real mid-season crowd will give the Petes the once over and get a glimpse of the Leaside crew who, unless both teams happen to win their respective sections, will not been seen in action here again this year. Mickey Murray and his pals are sure of a warm reception from the fans when they trot out on the diamond.

1000 GAMES FOR SCOTT

EVERETT SCOTT

The veteran Yankee shortstop, who has taken part in every one of the last thousand games played by the Yanks. One thousand consecutive major league games is a record that will stand for some time to come.

QUAKERS WON THE OPENING BATTLE

Defeated the Woollens By a Score of 1 to 0 in a Fast Game Tuesday Evening.

The Quaker Oats Soccer team, last year's finalists for the Gordon Cup, played their first league fixture at King Edward Park on Tuesday evening, defeating the Canadian Woollens by a score of 1 to 0. Both teams were in full strength, and a good game resulted with a fair crowd on hand to see the sport.

The cup holders won the toss and their right wing, Mitchell and Montgomery, two of last year's juniors, were put in possession, and faced a cover which Perry relieved by one of his old liners. Shuttle received the ball sending it out to Downes, who centered nicely. J. Willshaw trapped the ball nicely and sent G. Logan, the Quaker's captain, up the centre. From his nice ground passes to Foster, Williams was called upon to save. The Quakers were now having the best of the argument, Chambers and Perry were kept busy until Jimmy Shaw got away, and Griffin was given an opportunity of showing his ability. The Woollens were making a great effort to score. Backed up by some nice half back play their forwards were giving the Willshaw Bros hers an anxious time. Logan got away but was robbed by Chambers, who was playing a grand game. Half time was called, with the score sheet blank.

Upon restarting the Quakers opened out the game, G. Logan feeding his wings to advantage. Foster on the left went away at a great pace, and sent the ball over to Montgomery but Griffin made a great save. Play now was very fast, the backs on both sides where kept on the alert, and the forwards were given plenty to do. The Quakers' forwards went away again. Craig and Foster, who are very fast on the left, were source of danger to the Woollens. Reid for the Woollens gave Gaskell and Roberts and opening but Bob Willshaw frustrated the final efforts by a nice return, which G. Logan got hold of, and after a beautiful run up the centre scored the only and winning goal of the game. From the centre kick Roberts and Gaskell by some nice short passes came close to making the game equal. The game continued fast until time was called leaving the Gordon cup holders winners of a good game by 1 to 0.

The teams were:
The Quakers: Goal, Griffin; backs, R. Willshaw, J. Willshaw; halves, Logan, Hepburn, Meyette; forwards, Mitchell, Montgomery, G. Logan, Crieg, Foster.

The Woollens: Goal, Williams; backs, Perry, Chambers; halves, Sayers, Monkman, Reid; forwards, Gaskell, Roberts, Shuttle, Shaw, Downes Referee, J. Howarth.

GOLD-SEEKER RETURNS.

WINNIPEG, May 3.—(Associated Press)—Jujiro Wada, picturesque Japanese prospector, has just returned from Herschel Island, where he has been on the trail of gold. He maintains extreme reticence regarding his 2,500-mile trip, which he made alon with his five dogs.

Wada made his first journey to the Artic region from San Francisco 32 years ago, and since then has achieved a wide reputation as a musher and prospector.

At one time he narrowly escaped being hanged by a band of 800 gold hunters whom he lead into Alaska, and who failed to find the precious metal.

TWO U.S. GOLFERS LEAD IN ENGLAND

Dr. C. F. Willing, Chicago, Had Best Score in First Round For the Royal St. George Challenge Cup.

SANDWICH, May 3. Canadian Press. — Dr. C. F. Willing of Portland, Oregon, and Robert A. Gardner, came through with the two lowest scores in the first round of the stroke competition for the Royal St. George's Challenge Cup here yesterday. Dr. Willing negotiated the 18 holes in 74. Gardner in 75. Francis Ouimet, of Boston, tied with Roger Wethered and Michael Scott of Great Britain for third place with a 76.

From start to finish Dr. Willing made the 18 hole journey unhonored by a gallery. To-day when he sets forth on the last 18 holes of the jaunt around this famous course, where last year Walter Hagen won the British open championship, Dr. Willing is sure to be the cynosure of scores of eyes that yesterday chose to look on the play of the amateur champions of England and the United States, E. W. E. Holderness and Jess Sweetser, the cards of both of whom revealed the unsatisfactory total of 81 strokes.

Dr. Willing played steady golf all the way round. His drives were straight; his approaches covered the pin and his putts consistently rolled straight into the tin cups.

Gardner was erratic on the green, but he was ever steady and straight through the fairways.

Jess Sweetser, the United States champion, could not gain his usual mastery over the course.

Matthew Scott, who with his 76 is tied to-night for third place with Ouimet and Wethered, is a former holder of the St. George's Cup, and last year won the French amateur championship. To-day he played unfaltering golf on every hole. Cyril Tolley, who finished with a 79, was more than once in bad difficulty as he went around the 18 holes.

SPORT NEWS, COBOURG

COBOURG, May 3.—Several exhibition games of both that will apparently be of considerable interest are scheduled for Cobourg is the near future. "The Strollers" of Toronto have asked for a game with the Central Ontario Ball team and they are to be accomodated on May 5. The game is set for Horse Show Park and no doubt will attract a considerable crowd.

On Wednesday, May 16, local Central League team is to try conclusion with Toronto University team in a game to be played here. These games with other in the Town League promise the local fans amusement until the opening of the Central Ontario League season.

Cobb and Speaker Still the Greatest

When Ty Cobb slid into home plate at Navin Field the other day he lost his cap and there were many observations on the fact that Cobb has lost enough hair to put him in the near bald class.

If Tris Speaker doffs his cap during the series spectators will discover that his hair is gray.

Cobb and Speaker are advancing in years but day after day they are still in center field, two of the greatest outfielders of all time and the best two the American League has seen in the last 15 seasons. Both have slowed up a bit but both will have to slow up a great deal more before they drop to par. Players of the Cobb-Speaker type have a long way to go when they do start going back.

SAYS COST OF CLOTHING MUST BE BROUGHT DOWN

CHICAGO, May 3.—(Associated Press)—How to get clothing to the customer at the lowest price, or in other words a lesson in the reduction of overhead expense similar in character to an abbreviated university course, will be offered to everyon who attends the tenth anniversary convention and exposition of the National Association of Retail Clothiers which will be held here during the last week of September.

According to the arrangements made by Charles E. Wry, executive director of the association, every one who addresses the convention will place particular emphasis upon this important subject.

"The retail clothing dealer who favors high prices, if there still exists such a merchant," said Mr. Wry while discussing the preparatory work of the convention and exposition, "is standing in his own light. We had one sad experience with high prices not so very long ago, and it taught us a lesson. High prices don't mean big profits to the dealer by any means. In fact they mean just the opposite. What we are endeavoring to do all the time, and what we are going to emphatically drive home to everyone who visits our convention and exposition, is that reasonable prices brought about by economy in overhead expense, such as rents, efficiency in handling goods and other incidentals to the handling of clothing, mean reasonable profits and satisfied customers.

"A careful survey of the clothing industry by qualified experts resulted in this conclusion, and this lesson is going to be taught at our convention and exposition morning, noon and night."

INGRAM GETS FIRST DEGREE GIVEN FOR SCREEN ARTISTRY

Rex Ingram, producer for Metro of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," which comes to the Regent Theatre to-night, is the first motion picture director whose work has received academic recognition as fine art. This recognition came from Yale University, which awarded Mr. Ingram the honorary degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts for his production of Ibanez's "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

It was with "The Four Horsemen" that Mr. Ingram rode to fame in the motion picture world. Only twenty-nine years old, he already has to his credit the Metro production of "Shore Acres" and "Hearts Are Trumps." But "The Four Horsemen" gave him his greatest opportunity.

Mr. Ingram, at thirty, has gained a leadership in motion pictures that had its foundation in the application of sculptural ideas to the screen. A sculptor himself, he dreamed as an art student of revolutionizing picture production by the use of new methods.

His chance did not come until after his war service as a member of the Royal Flying Corps. Prior to the war he had served his picture apprenticeship as actor, scenario writer and director. But "Shore Acres" was his first big opportunity.

Mr. Ingarm was born in Dublin, Ireland, the son of a professor at Trinity College. He came to the United States at nineteen on an adventure trip that landed him as a railroad checker at New Haven. There he met Professor Lee O. Lawrie, who induced him to enter the Yale School of Fine Arts.

"The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" was adapted to the screen by June Mathis, John F. Seitz photographed it.

A LAWN BOWLERS' BEE ON FRIDAY EVENING

The various lawn bowlers Committees have been quite active during the past week; notices of the local tournament, to be held July 25 and 26, have already been sent out to seventy-five Ontario Clubs; work on the Clubhouse is practically completed except for the painting, and Jack Bacon has been working day and night getting the green into shape. It certainly reflects great credit on the "green's committee."

It has been decided to call a "Bee" for Friday evening, weather permitting, at 7 o'clock sharp, and all bowlers are requested to get into their overalls and give a hand at painting the Clubhouse. Bring a brush with you.

To date over seventy bowlers have made application for membership, but of this number a few desirous of playing "unattached," and for this reason there is still room for half a dozen new members. However, the last day to become an attached bowler for this season will positively be Monday next, so get in your application early.

The executive committee will meet in the Chamber of Commerce on Monday evening, May 7, at eight o'clock and requests skips, or their vice-skips, to be on hand, as the draw for rinks will be made at that meeting. This meeting is important so please arrange to have your rink represented.

OUTSTANDING FACTS ABOUT THE NEW FAIRBANKS PHOTOPLAY AT CAPITOL

Last Word in Super-Feature Movie Productions Attracting Capacity Houses — Coming Next Week.

Something of an idea of the bigness and general scope of Douglas Fairbanks' latest photoplay sensation, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," may be gathered from the summary of facts given herewith. For this last word in Fairbanks super-features, which is coming to the Capitol Theatre next week under a United Artists release, a host of engineers, architects, artists and artisans labored for months before ever a camera lens was opened.

Twenty-two experts delved and studied in the necessary research work for accurate designing of the colossal sets.

Libraries the world over were ransacked by these experts for authoritative facts in ascertaining the historical data that all might be presented truthfully to the period.

Hundreds of workmen labored three months to build the sets.

One million feet, or approximately thirty-five carloads, of lumber were used in their construction.

This lumber, if laid out in board feet, would cover twenty acres of ground; if placed end to end would span a distance of about five hundred miles.

One carload, or about thirty tons, of nails were consumed in erecting the sets.

Two hundred and fifty tons of material went into the castle walls.

More than fifteen acres of studio property are in use for the principal sets.

The King's castle set covers two and one-half acres and is 310 feet in height. The exterior is 620 feet long.

In building the castle 178,000 square feet of wall board, plaster board and button lath were required.

Every weapon carried in the production was made entirely by hand. There are 2,000 spears, 1,500 swords, 2,000 shields and 500 daggers.

Saddles and trappings were made for hundreds of horses, all handmade and hand-sewed.

In making an exact duplicate of the standard used by King Richard I, in his Crusade to the Holy Lands, 300 pounds of iron were necessary.

An army of 10,000 extra people is being employed in various scenes at various times.

The prodigal use of hand-work on all effects in "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," is not a careless extravagance, but serves to illustrate the absolute authenticity of the production, for in the period depicted machinery was little used, metals and almost all materials being worked by hand.

There are eight castle towers. If these towers were water tanks, each would hold 276,000 gallons.

The castle is surrounded by a moat, built from historically correct specifications, broad enough and deep enough to serve as a genuine barrier against the taking of this stronghold.

The royal banquet room in the castle is the largest room in the world, being larger even than the concourse of the Pennsylvania Terminal Station in New York City.

Eleven canvas pavilions were built each one forty feet in height.

The muslin diffusing system—used to diffuse light—is bigger than the combined "big tops" of the world's greatest circus enterprise.

The camera staff work from a platform built of selected spruce and airplane wire, with an area of forty square feet, weighs only 400 pounds, and can be assembled by four men in seven minutes.

Twenty thousand yards of heavy velvets and rich cloth material were used in making the 2,500 costumes worn by principals, players and extras.

More than one thousand wigs, each made of human hair, are worn by members of the cast.

More than one thousand pairs of shoes were required for the production, and but one pair could be made from the hide of one sheep. The entire stock of three tanneries was taken in supplying these hides.

SPRING GOWNS

By MARIAN HALE.

No woman is going to need urging to do her spring shopping early this year.

What she will need, however, is a sense of restraint, exercised possibly by parent or husband, if she never has developed that quality in herself.

Gowns for spring and summer are so comfortable looking, so gay and comparatively so simple and inexpensive that one is completely taken off guard.

In gowns the style leader of the moment seems to be the printed or bordered frock. You can't get away from it. Designs may be delicate and artistic or huge and crude—the sort of thing that suggests the immature work of a child.

Silks and Cottons.

Paisley, Persian and Indian designs are all being carried over from the winter, and are seen on silks and cottons alike.

After printed patterns come the all-over embroideries, naturally much more expensive. Wool and silk embroidery is not only used in bright colors and peasant designs on silks, but all-over patterns in self colors are excellent style.

Lace is used extensively for the more elaborate type of frock, dyed brilliant colors, as well as in cream and black. Most frequently it is combined with a blouse or basque of silk or velvet.

Knitted fabrics in silk and wool, tweeds, Poiret twill and flannel are all employed to make the popular type of sports frock that is embellished by scarves, monograms and the use of gay silks.

Skirts Not Very Long.

Skirts are of medium length, neither uncomfortably long nor conspicuously short, and they are pleated or draped or straight and narrow for those so inclined.

The waistline is slightly raised and gives a much trimmer line to the figure than the extremely low one of the fall and winter. The chemise frock is still very popular, but so is the basque bodice and the full skirt—that very youthful, girlish style.

Instead of the hard neckline of the past seasons we welcome the return of the V and square neck, and the white collars and cuffs and embroidered frills that so soften the line.

Colors are running riot. There's a gay season ahead.

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, May 3. (Special.)—Strength was displayed by the New York Stock Exchange to-day, for the first time in nearly two weeks material gains being scored in the morning trading. A new 25 cent cut in Pacific crude and a cut of ten cents in Wyoming crude, failed to disturb the market. Oils were rather mixed with good gains being registered by some of the issues and fractional losses by others. Motors, rails and industrials were especially strong. Good buying is taking place in Studebaker on estimates that earnings will reach 10 per share during the first six months of 1923. Hope is expressed for an extra dividend.

The decline in price has spent itself for the present according to general opinion; instead of a flood of selling which greeted the opening of the last two days the market today was characterized by a quiet tone in the early trading; price movements throughout the list gave evidence of a greatly improved technical position. Steel, Studebaker and other industrial leaders continued the rally which proceeded throughout the greater part of the previous session. Rails were also in better demand under the leadership of Can. Pac. which jumped a point to 152 3-8 on initial transactions. Constructive sentiment was encountered by a statement of Frank A. Vanderlip that the business situation is almost flawless. If there is no accumulation, said Mr. Vanderlip, commodity prices are 35 per cent. below what they were three years ago; the banks position in regard to expanded credits is healthy; the attitude of the public towards the prospective financial outlook is interesting. Most people seem as cautious about it as they would be towards scarlet fever. Stocks maintained an upward trend throughout the list in the first hour. Reduction of 25c a barrel in Pac. Crude went unnoticed by the oil stocks, a demonstration that Wall street was beginning to take a sane view of the situation arising from California's huge production. As a matter of fact California Petroleum and Standard of California, were leaders of the recovery reflecting plans for further curtailment of output in the Pacific coast fields. Numerous cuts in gasoline prices in recent weeks have returned average tank wagon price in 30 representative cities of 20.4c a gallon; present average is 20.4c a gallon, 4c under the 1922 high price, and but 2-10 of a cent above the 1921 low average price.

MAKING THEM LIKE REAL GOOD MUSIC

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 2. — How many people really like "good music"—good in the sense that high-class musicians mean when they say it's good—"classical stuff!"

Not so very many!

So the musicians themselves say.

But they're going to—in Kansas City, at any rate.

Real musicians, when they come to "K. C." a generation hence, will not have to cast their pearls of melody across the footlights to—

Empty-headed debutantes hiding their yawns behind powder puffs.

Marcelled dowagers socially combing the audience with lorgnettes.

Business men corralled into fashionable parties by their wives surreptitiously consulting their watches and wondering wearily how long it's going to last.

"Music Lover's Smile."

All sorts and conditions of people contorting their faces into the "born music lover's" smile.

Symphony audiences, guaranteed to storm the box offices and to listen to Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile" as eagerly and attentively as Al Jolson fans on the opening night, are being developed by Mabelle Glenn, music supervisor of Kansas City's public schools.

Miss Glenn's motto is—begin early.

As a result of her efforts 10,000 wiggly, restless boys and girls sit enraptured at the junior symphony concerts given here every two months.

Miss Glenn contends that no child—or adult either—can enjoy a symphony selection without having heard it at least four times.

They Understand Music.

The children study the concerts they are to hear for months in advance. Every movement of every composition means something definite to them. They're familiar with the composers' lives, with the stories of the compositions, with the instrumentation of the orchestra.

Consequently they prefer good music to jazz.

Music dealers can scarcely keep in stock the phonograph records which are to be played at the junior concerts. Little newsboys flock, Saturday nights, into music stores and spend their earnings for opera records which they take home and explain to their families, just as they have been explained by their teachers to themselves.

Unsolicted catalogs from American firms are not welcomed by storekeepers in Mexico City.

GRAVEL PIT DEAL UNDER DISCUSSION

Ontario Government Charged With Purchasing Property Alleged to Be Useless.

TORONTO, May 4. — (Canadian Press).—It is expected that the Legislature will finish up its business this afternoon or early to-night.

In Committee of Supply this forenoon, H. R. Dewart repeated from letters charges against J. G. Lethbridge, U.F.O., West Middlesex, concerning the sale of a gravel pit in West Middlesex to the Department of Highways. He read a letter written by Webster Brothers, Glencoe, to the Premier, alleging that the pit was a useless one and that the gravel was of inferior quality. It was also charged that E. T. Curtis, from whom the pit was purchased, was a close relative of Mr. Lethbridge, and that the latter had been the means through which the sale was made.

Mr. Dewart contended that Mr. Lethbridge owed the House an explanation.

Hon. Mr. Biggs said his Department had no regrets for purchasing the pit, which had been tested and the gravel found to be of good quality.

Mr. Lethbridge said the statements of Mr. Dewart were not true. He had never spoken to Mr. Currie or any official of the Government concerning the sale of the pit.

FRENCH START THE TRIAL OF KRUPP HEADS

Small Town in Ruhr Brought Into the Limelight — Business as Usual.

HEARING EVIDENCE

WERDEN, May 4. (Special.) — The French brought this little town which hugs both banks of the Ruhr, before the world to-day when they decided to hold a court martial of Gustav Krupp Von Bohlen, head of the Krupp works, five of the directors and four members of the workers councils, charged with inciting enter without a special pass. The March 31. Colonel Peyronel, artillery commander of the 77th, is presiding. Werden is filled with foreigners, most of them newspaper correspondents from France, Britain, United States, Holland, Denmark, Sweden and Switzerland.

the attack on the French troops on are doing a land office business. The blue uniform of the French soldier is seen everywh . . The highways are guarded by troops and admission to the town is only possible through the presentation of proper identification cards. On the outside tanks and armoured cars hold convenient places, and from near by foothills heavy artillery commands the town. B t the people are engaged in their daily tasks and the mills on the Ruhr banks are humming away as though nothing unusual was taking place.

Krupp von Bohlen was interrogated for an hour and a half by Col. Peyronel regarding the details of what took place at this plant on March 31.

Forty Witnesses

A heavy French military guard practically cut this little German town off from the rest of the world as Gustav Krupp von Bohlen, head of the big munition works and fourteen directors went on trial at 9 a.m. to-day. Krupp and the others were courtmartialed in connection with the outbreak at the Krupp works in which eleven were killed by French soldiers. The military cordon thrown about the town permitted no one to enter without a special pass. The court consisted o five French army officers ranking from Lieutenant to Colonel. The big assembly hall is being used instead of the regular court room on account of the number of participants at the trial There were forty witness ready to be examined.

BEARS CONTROL STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 4—(Canadian Press.)—Prices in yesterday's stock market broke one to nearly eight points in response to concerted attack by professional speculators for the decline. It was the fourth consecutive day in which the big bear traders had upset the market in the last hour by offering thousands of shares short, or selling stocks which they did not own on the theory that they could make a profit by making delivery to the purchasers with stocks bought later at lower prices.

The recent reactionary trend of the market has virtually wiped out all this year's gain and carried many rails and industrials to their lowest prices of the year. The depreciation in quoted values runs into many millions of dollars. The average of twenty leading industrial stocks is now about eight points below the year's high and the railroad average is down five points.

While the bear campaign apparently has been conducted without regard to outside news developments, several news factors this week has contributed to bearish sentiment. These have included publication of reports showing an overproduction in the California oil fields followed by additional cuts in gasoline and crude oil prices; lower rubber ,sugar and metal prices, and French rejection of the German reparations plan.

Yesterday's attack centered on equipment and sugar shares, selling of the latter being influenced by lower quotations for the raw and refined products and the spread of the so-called buyers' strikes against high sugar prices.

Trading in the last hour approximated one-half million shares.

NEW QUARTERS FOR CHILDREN

Fire at Children's Shelter Was Described as "Blessing in Disguise" -Seek New Premises.

An emergency meeting of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society took place yesterday afternoon in the board-room of the Chamber of Commerce, to consider ways and means of taking care of the children at the Shelter, which was decimated by fire on Wednesday afternoon. In the absence of the president, B. F. Ackerman, the chair was taken by Mrs. W. H. Gibbs. Other members present were: Mesdames Fanning, Darcy, Welsh, Hodgson, Dr. D. C. King, Dr. E. Wood, Rev. W. H. Young, Messrs. C. S. Cummer, F. H. Dobbin, W. Stocker, J. Edgar.

The meeting wasted no time in mourning over the fire which did a great deal of damage to the Shelter premises, "A blessing in disguise," was the way one member put it. "It is time that those children were housed in some better building than that frame structure. If that fire had occured at night, we might have had something more serious than property loss to consider today."

The property committee, composed of Messrs. F. H. Dobbin, W. Stocker and Dr. D. C. King, with additional members appointed, J. Edgar and Mesdames Gibbs, Edgar and Mesdames Gibbs, Fanto make all arrangements for securing an option on a property which the Board of Management considered suitable for their purpose, which evidently is to secure new premises for a Shelter, instead of spending much money on the extensive repairs and alterations on the present building in its present fire-swept condition.

Mr. J. Edgar informed the Board that a representative of the Barnardo Homes would be in Peterborough to-morrow to confer with the Board regarding the use of the old Margaret Cox home as temporary quarters for the children of the Shelter. Mr. Edgar was given full authority to make the best terms possible with the Barnardo Homes' representative for such temporary convenience.

THE HUNTED MAN

By Milton Bronner

DUBLIN, May 4.— If a truce is signed in Ireland between the republican insurgents and the constituted authorities, Erin's most romantic figure may be changed over night into an everyday frockcoated politician and ex-professor.

But the truce is not yet here and Eamon de Valera to-day is the most hunted man in Ireland—though he styles himself "president of the Irish republic," issues proclamations and gives out interviews.

Nobody knows where De Valera is. His headquarters are where he hangs his hat—and sometimes he is hatless!

His capital is where he happens to be—and he is never in the same place more than a few hours.

He has a cabinet—but the members are rarely if ever with him He has an army of irregulars —but they seldom see their chief.

He is likely to drink his breakfast coffee in one village and eat his breakfast bacon in another. Between times he has had a narrow escape to whet his appetite.

He's Really Hunted

The fact is for the first time in his life De Valera is the object of a really stern hunt. Irishmen are after him as Britons never were.

His adventures as a wanted man began in 1918 when British authorities locked him up. He was transfered to Lincoln prison in England.

One morning early in 1919 all Britain was flabbergasted when De Valera escaped. He returned to Ireland and in the late spring made a tour of America in the interests of his cause.

He did not return to Ireland until Christmas, 1920, so that he was out of Ireland. 18 months out of the two years of the Black and Tan terror.

British Lukewarm

It was always said in London the British knew exactly where to find De Valera but didn't want to arrest him. At that time they were more anxious to lay hands on Michael Collins, chief fighting man of the cause.

After the formation of the Irish Free State and after real hostilities began between the established Irish government and the, irregulars, a real hunt was instituted for De Valera.

It was felt by the Free State authorities that if they could lay hands on him, the remnants of resistance to the government would collapse.

But so far all their efforts have been in vain. It is said De Valera is constantly surrounded by a small but very efficient bodyguard of youths every one of whom is armed to the teeth and is a dead shot

Women Aid, Too

The other important link in his personal machine is a large body of devoted women, the most ardent republicans in Ireland. It is throught them that all communication is had with De Valera.

The method of getting so-called interviews is to write down the questions and hand them to some young woman who is a cog in the Valera organization.

Some morning she may meet a woman friend and:

"Ah, Mary. A letter from Tim."

Your questions to De Valera have begun their journey. In this

HALF CENTURY IN ONE LODGE

Gold Headed Cane Presented to Bro. W. J. Green, a Veteran Oddfellow.

Last evening a complimentary banquet was tendered to Bro. T. A. Sharpe, of Midland, Grand Master and Bro. J. E. Anderson of Lindsay, Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, I.O.O.F., on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the Peterborough Lodge, No. 111. This lodge was instituted May 7th, 1873.

In April fifty years ago, Brothers S. White, William Scott, George Mitchell, E. Walton, R. Elder, and T. Quincy journeyed to Port Hope to receive the initiatory degree of Oddfellowship, with the determination of forming a lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows. A charter was applied for and on May 7th, 1873, Grand Master Brother J. Murray, of Niagara Falls, presided at the institution, which was held in the upper rooms of the City Council Chamber at four o'clock in the afternoon. The officers were elected and installed, after which an adjournment was made until the evening, when a regular meeting was held ,at which degrees were conferred on a class of twenty-two candidates. The Lodge continued to meet in the above lodge rooms for about two years. It then removed to more convenient quarters in the present Trades and Labor Hall, moving at a later date to our splendidly equipped hall, where it has continued to prosper.

At last night's jubilee gathering about two hundred and fifty members and friends were present. Splendid addresses were delivered by Grand Master T. A. Sharpe, of Midland, and Grand Warden J. E. Anderson, of Lindsay, also Bro. T. G. Gillespie and Bro. W. I. Goodfellow of Peterborough.

In addition to this an excellent entertainment was provided by Messrs. J. Smith, W. McLaren, H. Cutmore, Tinney and Kerr.

Bro. A. A. Fowler, who presided then presented Bro. W. J. Green with a beautiful gold-headed cane in commemoration of his long membership with the lodge. On May 7th, 1873, Bro. Green was made a member of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111. Bro. Fowler also presented Bro. Green with a fifty year veteran's jewel. Bro. Green is the first Oddfellow in the city to receive an honour of this kind.

The Address.

The presentation was accompanied by the following address:

Bro .Green,—I have been given a duty to perform to-night which any member here would be proud to do. To-night completes your 50th year as a member of Peterborough Lodge No. 111. On May 7th, 1873, you were initiated into, and made a member of, this lodge. As far as we know you are the only brother left of the fourteen who were initiated that evening. You have been a mem-

SAYS EAST MUST GET VIEWPOINT OF THE PRAIRIES

Canada's Problems Are Geographical Says Captain Shaw of Calgary to Kiwanis Club.

FREIGHT RATES

"The problem of Canada is not so much one of race or creed as a geographical problem," said Captain A T. Shaw, K.C., M.P., Progressive representative of Calgary West in the Federal House, in an inspiring address delivered at the Kiwanis Club luncheon today.

Captain Shaw came to Peterborough to address Kiwanis on the suggestion of G. N. Gordon, K.C., M. P., and his talk will be recorded in Kiwanis annals as one of the most eloquent it has been their privilege to hear.

Stating that he was a Western Canadian. Captain Shaw, boasted that first of all he is a Canadian. He has a great faith in the future of Western Canada, which has a large share in moulding the destiny of the world. Just now the west labours under great handicaps. The East must get the viewpoint of the West before the misunderstandings can be effectively removed. The West relies almost entirely on foreign markets to purchase its products, and, as a result, the far reaching developments in foreign countries have left their mark on Western Canada more than on the East.

Transportation Problem

Internal problems also handicap the Western provinces, and of these transportation comes first. The question of transportation of the produce of the west is a very pressing problem, the speaker said. The West is developing an outlet toward Vancouver, but there are great difficulties to be overcome. The freight rates through the mountains, elevator facilities at the coast, and ocean freight service to carry the produce to the markets of the world have to be developed. Before that trade can be developed to its maximum it is essential that a market be developed in Western Canada for manufactured goods.

Captain Shaw expressed himself as sceptical of the utility of the proposed outlet by way of Hudson Bay.

Freight Rates

Before the war the freight rates in Western Canada were on the average 15 to 20 per cent. higher than in Eastern Canada, while the percentage increase in 1917 aggravated the disparity immensely. This matter of freight rates is an important one to the farmer of Western Canada.

The reason for the excessive rates to-day is that our agricultural community is situated between the wild erness around Lake Superior and the Rocky Mountains. We do not enjoy the natural or artificial factors which compel the competition of freight rates, water transportation and competitive mail transportation. The result is that the west is paying and has been paying for the deficits compelled in the Eastern part of Canada by water competition and by American rail competition. That is one of the reasons why the West cannot get reduced freight rates, the speaker stated.

Railway in Combine

Regarding the Crow's Nest Pass agreement, he said the origin of the fixed rate was in the need for protection. Many years ago the government said the people must be protected and if nature did not do it by opening up competitive water routes, it was necessary for the government to do it by legislation. The Westerners sought to keep that rate-compelling measure, which the speaker described as the magna charta of the Western farmers. It was the only factor they had to safeguard their

Colect a Revenue From Gas Stations

KINGSTON, May 4. — At a meeting of the Board of Works Committee of the Kingston City Council, a resolution, advanced by Ald. Richardson, was passed placing a tax of $15 per year on every local owner of a gasoline pump where gasoline is retailed to the public. The motion brought about considerable discussion, and the new tax will bring a large revenue to the city.

RECOVER MANY STOLEN BONDS

$96,000 Worth Missing From the Canadian Mail Service Are Now in Authorities' Hands.

TORONTO, May 4.— (Canadian Press.)—While the Dominion police to-day refused to comment on the development in connection with the theft of about one hundred thousand dollars worth of victory bonds from the Canadian mail service, it is understood that $96,000 of bonds have been recovered. Three men, Findlay McLeod, Sr., and his son, Findlay McLeod, Jr., of Toronto, and Benjamin Robert of New York, and one woman, Mrs. McLeod, were placed under arrest last night in connection with the theft.

When interviewed to-day, Mrs. Benjamin Roberts was quoted as stating in reference to her husband, "I don't care what they do with him. He hasn't helped to support me or my children for a good many years."

Roberts is an atcor, self-styled as of New York, who left here it is said with McLeod, going to New York and Detroit. His accounting to the police for his presence here with McLeod was that he was in the city in an effort to come to terms with his wife. Findlay McLeod, Jr., when questioned at the police station gave his occupation as a newspaper reporter. He is not known to have been employed on any local staff.

OLD INDIAN CHIEF BACK FROM OTTAWA

Joseph Whetung, Sr., Applied to Minister for Arrears of Interest Money.

Joseph Whetung, Sr., old chief of the Mississaugas of the Curve Lake band preceding Dan Whetung, has just returned from a mission to Ottawa in quest of treaty money and other needs of the Indians. He interviewed the Minister of the Interior and called his attention to the fact that the Indians that no interest money had been drawn for two or three years .

The Minister assured the old Chief that some money would be forwarded to the band as soon as possible. Other matters pertaining to the welfare of the Indians were discussed, and the Chief was well treated in the Capital. He told the Examiner the money would be very welcome to the Indians, who have come through a long hard winter and a trapping season of less than a week.

HORSEMEN MUST PAY FOR SPARK PLUG WORKOUTS

Exhibition Board Unanimously Decided to Close Track to "Barney Googles"-Say Notices Ignored

OTHER ATTRACTIONS

The only fly in the Fair Board's ointment is the lack of co-operation from local horsemen, who, it was reported at last night's meeting, use the race track at the Exhibition Park for "working out" their horses and pay nothing for it.

This is apparently a perennial complaint, for it has cropped up more or less frequently for some years. The directors give their time and labor for the advancemen of the Exhibition and everything that pertains to it, without any thought of reward. Merchants, manufacturers and other business men have contributed generously to a fund that has been spent in permanent buildings including a comfortable and commodious horse barn especially for the use of the trotters. Farmers in their teams and tools and give their time and work in improving the grounds, and the people of this city and district have demonstrated their interest by their generous patronage of the Exhibition and other events held at the Park.

The spirit of harmony, co-operation and good-will has been extended to the Exhibition and its directors on every hand except from the horsemen, those who have trotting horses in this city and who race them here and throughout the eastern Ontario circuit. Such is the complaint of the Directors who decided last night that they had endured the alleged unfriendly attitude of the horsemen long enough. Henceforth they stand pat. The next move must come from the stables.

Through With "Googie"

"We don't want any more Barney Googles down there," said one of the directors, and the Board unanimously applauded him. His illustrative reference to the owner of the famous "Spark Plug" of the comic supplements carried a particular significance which was pointedly explained for any Directors who miss the uplift of the Sunday papers.

It was stated that the horsemen have positively refused to pay any rental for the use of the t rck. Resolutions, letters and notices requesting that they make some contribution for a privilege which is presumed to yield them certain profits, in view of the fact that most of them have been winners around the circuit, have all been ignored. It was asserted that the Board had to pay certain bills which they did not incur and for which th y were not responsible. It was also asserted that at least one horsemen had spoken publicly of one of the directors in such an insulting manner that his associates last night proposed that this person be refused the use of the track until he had apologized. These implications are of rather recent date, but in previous years it was complained that local horsemen endeavored to create an impression hurtful to the Exhibition around the circuit.

But the chief objection is that the horse-racers of Peterborough persist in using the track, one of the best in the province, which is kept up for them, but for which they presumably feel they should not contribute one dollar.

Got Through Gates

Twenty-five dollars a month is the rental for workouts reported from one of the Toronto tracks. It was also reported that although the gates had been closed to them, some horsemen un-hand-to-hand method the paper goes voyaging around Ireland until finally it actually reaches the man for whom it is intended. In time his answers come back the same way.

DE VALERA

This organization of women is not used merely for these interviews and publicity purposes. It is women who act as De Valera's intelligence department, who at night paint defiant messages on the walls of Dublin, who arrange the transport of guns and cartridges.

Two Close Shaves

I heard of two instances. Late last year a little residence in a prim little Dublin street was raided by soldiers. In a back room they found a couple of men's hats. One belonging to De Valera. And the hatband was still warm!

The other escape occurred about a month ago. Some troopers learned De Valera was in a farm house. After dusk, rifles in hand, they set off down the country road to surround the place. At one point they heard a slight rustling in a hedge.

"What's that?" asked the officer of the woman who was serving as guide

"Only a fox slipping through the fields," she responded shortly.

It was.

The fox was De Valera. He was giving the blood-hounds of the law the slip. And the woman, who was guiding the soldiers to where he had been, had shown him where he should be at a certain hour.

COL. CURRIE LAUNCHES AN ATTACK ON RANEY'S O.T.A. "BLACK AND TAN"

Gregory Commission Will Sit in Camera Until After Election—Dr. Banting's Service Recognized.

ROW IN THE HOUSE.

TORONTO, May 4. —(Canadian Press.)—Premier Drury announced in the Legislature yesterday afternoon that no reports would be made by the Gregory commission investigating hydro matters after the House had risen. After dissolution all hearings by the commission will be held in camera. Before to-night the commission will submit a report on the Guelph electric railways now operated by the Hydro. This will be the last report until after the election and at further sittings the public will be excluded so that none of the proceedings can be adopted for political purposes in the election. Hon. G. Howard Ferguson said he was content with the Premier's statement and added that he was glad that Chairman Gregory of the commission had seen the impropriety of holding public hearings during an election campaign.

The amendments to the Medical Act were put through committee and the withdrawal of one clause swept away all difference of opinion among the members. Those now qualifying at schools of various healing arts will be obliged to take an examination arranged by the government. Previously with the clause withdrawn they would have waited a year until the legislature had made further legislation containing the regulations for those coming from colleges. An act amending the companies act putting it in conformity with the Blue Sky Law passed committee. The amendment comes into effect by proclamation after September 1 just as the Blue Sky Law does.

In view of the adoption of his suggestion in a government bill by the Minister of Education W. H. Casselman withdrew his bill which would have had the adolescent school attendance act non-effective in rural schools for five years. The act as amended by the Minister does not apply to rural school sections. Mr. Casselman also withdrew a resolution calling for government investigation and action on the fuel problem as it is now too late in the session for a discussion on the matter.

An item of $741,125 in the estimates for law enforcement started a real row in the House in which at one stage two members, Col. J. A. Currie and Z. Mageau (Sturgeon Falls) were standing shaking their fists at each other. Col. Currie said the item was a blank cheque for the Attorney General and asked for details. The Attorney General said he could find it in public accounts for last year and that this year the same purposes were to be served. "What I am going to say to the Attorney General is this," continued Col. Currie. "A few years ago this country was a peaceful country and had not a host of spies similar to those we have now. The people were law abiding and God fearing. Now the Attorney General comes in and wants to plant a whole army on us. In every village we see the officer of the Attorney General strutting around and I must remind him that this is not Russia or Prussia."

Mr. Mageau referred to police activities in 1917 and said he had a boy in France who was not given a ballot in the Federal election.

Col. Currie—"I did not hide behind my son but went to war and I am older than you."

Mr. Mageau—I offered to raise a battalion here and I was refused and my compatriots did as much as I did. The rest was lost as the two men shouted at each other. When order was restored Col. Currie referred to the O.T.A. police as 'Black and Tans.'

Mr. Raney—The house is getting tired of this tin soldier.;

Mr. Currie—The House is getting tired of brass attorneys.

Mr. Raney—O get busy and finish it.

Mr. Raney wanted to know how many men were in the "army," and was told 118. Mr. Ferguson said that every time Mr. Raney led the House there was a row.

Mr. Raney—No, no. That is not true.

Mr. Ferguson tried to stop the wrangling and appealed for discussion of the item. Major A. C. Lewis said that the Attorney General had made a statement concerning Col. Currie which as a gentleman he thought he should withdraw. Cries of "never" from the government side.

"When any one detracts from the military record of Col. Currie will find out his record overseas.

Mr. Dewart insisted that the member was out of order and J. M. Webster, chairman of the committee, so ruled. Mr. Ferguson thought that the discussion might be stopped and suggested that the matter of military records and the war be eliminated from the discussion.

Just before the House at 6 o'clock Premier Drury presented the report of the special committee dealing with the bill providing recognition of the services of Dr. Banting and Dr. Best. As well as agreeing to the proposal of establishing a chair at the University of Toronto for Dr. Best the committee recommended that $10,000 be given him to offset the expense he has incurred in his valuable research work.

The Legislature adjourned at 6 o'clock until this morning at 11. Practically all government legislation was dealt with and to-day will be devoted to business of private members with the expectation that the business of the session will be concluded before 6 o'clock. The formal closing of the House will take place Saturday. Yesterday a large portion of the estimates were put through.

LICENSE BOARD TABLED REPORT LIQUOR ORDERS

Big Increase Over 1921 in Number of Prescriptions Issued By Slight Decrease From 1920—More Doctors

NEED REVISION.

TORONTO, May 4.—(Canadian Press). —The annual report for 1922 of the Ontario Board of License Commissioners tabled in the Legislature shows an increase in the number doctor's and other orders issued for liquor during the year. In 1921 there were 588,573 orders issued of which 520,466 were doctor's prescriptions and in 1922, 706,644 of which 623,314 were doctor's prescriptions. The last year, however, is lower than 1920 when there were 729,847 orders issued for liquor. Permits for alcohol for manufacturing purposes numbered 480. The number of permits issued for native wine making was 38 producing a revenue of $3,800. The report deals with manufacturing in some detail stating that there are many difficulties particularly the foreign element who make wine, and a great leakage to the public. There is no trouble with the legitimate grape growers and producers. Although it is the duty of the board to see that no liquor is secured through a dispensary for beverage purpose the report states that it is well known that much of the liquor prescribed is for no other purposes. The reports speaks favorably of the co-operative efforts of the Ontario Medical Association to prevent abuses and states that the vast majority of doctors stay well within the prescribed lines, conferences will also be held with a committee and veterinary surgeons.

"The total sales from the dispensaries for the first ten months of 1922 amounted to $3,354,263 and the profits $777,506 as compared with sale of $3,146,444 and profits of $691 598 in 1921," states the report. "It would be much more satisfactory if neither sales nor profits showed an increase."

The average druggist gives no trouble says the report although the exceptional druggist gives much trouble and some drug stores are little better than bar rooms. "but the proprietors show great cunning in covering their guilt." The report says that the swamp whiskey is being effectively dealt with. Regarding brewers the repore states "it might well be expected that the prohibition laws of United States would be respected by our brewers and distillers. Not so however. Many of these gentlemen deliberately supply liquor which they know is to be smuggled into United States or is to be illegally distributed in Ontario. Most of our efforts to check this traffic through the courts have been unsuccessful. The culprits who retails the liquor if caught is fine or jailed. The report pays a high tribute to those trying to enforce the law and points out that last year there were 443 appeals on O.T.A. charges of which 136 received favorable consideration. Proceeding the report says that the time has come when a complete revision of the O.T.O. might well be considered. The sale by druggists and the sale of alcoholic extracts by grocers might well be considered by the Legislature it states. A license is suggested to be cancelled when the man who gets it proves unworthy.

TURKS AND ALLIES AGREE ON CUSTOMS

Some Discussion Over the Imposition of Customs Duties on Medical and Religious Supplies.

LAUSANNE, May 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Debate at yesterday's session of the Near East Conference was centered on the fact that the Turks entirely suppressed the article in the Allied draft treaty according foreign educational, medical and religious institutions exemption from custom duties on all necessities imported by them into Turkey.

General Pelle ,Chief French Delegate, defended the provision as a continuation of the privileges granted by Turkey before the war, and declared that enforcement of the customs decision would entil great hardship for the institutions.

Ismet Pasha, for Turkey, argued that acceptance of the article as drafted by the Allies, would mean a return to the system of capitulations, or special privileges for foreigners, of which the new Turkey wished to be rid.

The Allies finally agreed to the elimination of the article on condition that Turkey make an indpendent declaration to the effect that for a period of five years she will grant exemption from duty in such cases when requested.

The matter was referred in this form to the drafting committee.

The Conference also agreed upon equality of taxation for Turkish nationals and foreign individuals in Turkey, but the Angora delegates refused to agree to give the same bounties of exemption of taxes and rebates to foreign companies, explaining that the Turks desire to encourage home industry. The question wa ssubmitted to the experts.

CROSSED CONTINENT IN A NON-STOP FLIGHT

Oakley G. Kelly and John A. Macready Flew From Hampstead, N. Y., to San Diego in 27 Hours—First Non-Stop Flight—Will Try to Fly Around the World.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 4 (Canadian Press). — To-day it is but a single span across the Continent. From New York to San Diego is only a hop. The Atlantic and the Pacific are terminals in America's air lanes, and, if one wishes, there are no stops between.

With the arrival at Rockwell Field, near here, of the United States Army monoplane T-2, piloted by Lieutenants Oakley G. Kelly and John A Macready, the first non-stop flight across the United States was completed.

The time from Hempstead, N.Y., to San Diego was 26 hours 50 minutes 48 2-5 seconds.

The grind began on Wednesday at 12h. 36m. 52s. p.m., Eastern standard time. The distance is estimated at approximately 2,700 miles.

Both aviators were in good physical condition when they landed.

The following table marks the progress of the flight, the time being approximate, and shown in all cases in Eastern standard;

12.37 p.m., Wednesday, left Hempstead.

6.8 5 p.m., over Dayton, Ohio.

8.30 p.m., over Terre Haute, Ind.

10.15 p.m., over St. Louis, Mo.

Here the plane was swallowed by the darkness, and was not heard from definitely until after dawn, when it was reported over New Mexico.

Later a report was received from Arizona, and then El Centro, Cal., flashed the word that the aviators had passed over there at 11.23 a.m. (Coast time), flying at from 4,600 to 5,000 feet elevation.

The landing at Rockwell Field was made in about an hour.

The aviators hardly had made their their record before they were laying plans for a more ambitious flight—one around the world. This they hope to attempt next year, they announced in a statement last night.

LAKEFIELD'S FIRE BRIGADE WORKED WELL YESTERDAY

Efficient Work of Fire Fighters Prevented Complete Destruction of the Lockmaster's House.

NO LADDERS.

Lakefield's first serious fire in some time occurred yesterday afternoon when the interior of the house on Catherine street, owned by the government and occupied by Lockmaster J. J. McFadden, was badly burned. When the alarm was sounded the Lakefield Fire Department turned out in record time and amply proved its worth. The house was a frame building and while it was badly damaged, the rapid response and efficient service of the fire brigade saved it from complete destruction. This also in the face of the fact that the fire had gained considerable headway before it was discovered and a stubborn fight was necessary before it was brought under control. Most o fthe furniture in the downstairs part of the house was saved, but that in the upstairs part was a complete loss.

Fire Chief W. L. Webster said that the work of the Firemen was the best they had ever done, but thta they had been greatly hampered by the lack of ladders. A dance was held recently for the purpose of raising money to buy ladders and if these had been on hand better work could have been done and it is possible that the loss would have been less.

The cause of the fire is unknown. It is known to have started near a chimney, but the chimney is one which has not been used for some time and there was no stove pipe running into it.

The loss was estimated at between $700 and $800 with both the house and the furniture covered by insurance.

The others are five directors: Bernard Bruhn, Hartwig, Oesterlein, Bauer and Schaefer; two works' managers, Schraepler and Cuntz; Factory Councilman Mueller, and Superintendent Gross, of the apprentice department, Works Manager Ritter and Fire Chief Igne, have been released and will not be prosecuted.

FRANCE WILL RULE WITH A FIRMER HAND

Additional Pressure Will Be Brought to Bear in the Ruhr District--Resistance Is Strong.

SUPPLIES LOW.

DUSSELDORF, May 4 (Canadian Press). — That the Ruhr will be ruled with a firmer hand than heretofore, now that the latest German reparations offer has been refused by the French and Belgian Governments, was the gist of an announcement made at French headquarters here last night.

Just what additional pressure will be applied by the French and Belgians in their effort to coerce the Germans to come to terms was not made known, but it is assumed that General Degoutte, as head of the occupation forces, is planning to put into effect some of the decrees, already promulgated but not yet enforced.

One decree, issued a month ago, provides that all vehicular traffic, whether motor, steam, or horse propelled, will come under the immediate supervision of the military authorities if they are liable to be used for transporting coal.

The Germans say if this decree is enforced, it would shut down all the Ruhr industries within a month.

So far as German passive resistance is concerned, there is no indication of any weakening.

The supply of coke in the Ruhr is getting very low; not more than eight to ten thousand tons daily is being turned out. All cokeries, except those worked by the French and Belgians, have been closed. The Germans estimate that the stocks on hand will all have been shioped out of the Ruhr within two weeks.

POLL HEAVY VOTE IN NEWFOUNDLAND

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., May 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Reports from all parts of Newfoundland last night were that a heavy vote was polled in the general election in spite of ice-bound harbors along the coast, which makes travel difficult.

Indications were that the race would be close between the Government party, headed by Premier Sir Richard Squires, and the Opposition, whose leader is J. R. Bennett.

Boycott of Sugar Caused a Decline

NEW YORK, May 4.—(Canadian Press.)—On the heels of the sugar boycott by women in New York and scores of other communities throughout the country, a sharp break in futures amounting at the close from 45 to 55 points occurred yesterday. A reduction in the price of refined sugar from 10 to 9 1-2 cents, was announced by one large sugar refiner.

Anti-sugar pledges will be administered to the 1,000,000 school children to-day in an attempt to break present prices, it was announced by the Women's Sugar committee. The children who take the pledge will use sugar substitutes, such as fruits and syrups, "as long as sugar speculators continue to boost the price."

LIVE WIRE SETS FIRE TO QUANTITY GASOLINE

BELLEVILLE, May 4.—Small town incidents as played in the movies had nothing on the scene on McAnnay street yesterday when a motor limped up to a gasoline pump in front of Delong's garage, bumped it over, a crowd of men tried to straighten it, disconnected a wire, set fire to the escaping gasoline, while the crowd dashed for shelter in all direction fearing an explosion and the fire brigade dashed up, unrolled their hose and the lead got unruly and splashed a few citizens. The fire was not put out with water but with a shovel of two of dust and sand. The whole incident appeared a burlesque made to order, and nature sometimes permits.

The danger all along was that fire might find its way into the tank below the ground and the pavement through connection with the fumes of the escaping gasoline. A considerable quantity of the fluid was lost.

FRANCE GIVES GERMAN NOTE SHORT ANSWER

Refuses to Fall Into German Trap and Cannot Use German Note As Basis of Negotiations.

NO CONCESSIONS.

PARIS, May 4 (Canadian Press). —The French reply to the German reparations offer is a short, terse document; the text of it went forward to Brussels last evening.

It is an unequivocal refusal of Chancellor Cuno's proposals.

Though the nature of the contents has not been disclosed officially, it can be asserted that the note in no way takes the form of a counter-proposition.

Premier Poincare, M. De Lasteyrie, M. Le Trocquer, M. Reibel, and M. Barthou collaborated in drawing up the reply. All agreed that by setting forth a reparation plan France would only fall into a time-worn German trap, whereby Germany, they believe, was seeking to induce her opponents to make concessions, without giving any promises herself.

It is understood that the note begins by declaring the impossibility of using the German note as a basis for negotiations.

The note leaves no doubt regarding France's determination not to brook mediation, but to recover her due. The reply is said to explain the reasons for refusal to negotiate by merely refuting the essential passages of Chancellor Cuno's offer without detailed explanations.

THE BARTLETT METHOD.

The tardy spring has been holding back the automobiles; but they will be out soon. Some of them will be in the hands of reckless drivers. Every city has its quota, says the Ottawa Journal. There will not only be more motor cars out than ever before, but there may also be more reckless drivers. We are all agreed that the speed fiend and the careless man at the wheel account for practically all of the casualties which happen. We are also in accord on the point that public safety demands both these classes should be suppressed. It could be done if on every judicial bench throughout the land there were a Judge Bartlett.

Judge Bartlett is the man who sentences every person brought before him, and proven guilty of speeding or recklessness, to pay a fine and serve a prison sentence. He presides in one of the courts of Detroit. No matter who the guilty one may be, rich or poor, prominent or obscure, he is sent to jail. The result has been that Detroit is getting to be a fairly safe place in which to live. Other places would become equally safe if the Bartlett method should become universal. It lacks, however, one feature. The sentence should include the cancellation of all driving rights for at least one year.

TIMELY ADVICE.

That was a timely piece of advice given the other day by Chief of Police Gorman of Galt, when he declared that the fathers and mothers of that city should do more worrying about where their sons and daughters spend their evenings.

What he said can be applied with equal force to Peterboro or any other centre.

The wisdom of checking up the young people occasionally as to their movements should be apparent for the boy or girl who is allowed to keep late hours night after night, without being asked to give any explanation is being given every opportunity to get into trouble.

The advent of the motor car, the craze for amusements, the almost complete breakdown of home life in many families, have all combined to give the boys and girls of today an amount of liberty that was unthought of a decade ago and Chief Gorman does well in suggesting to parents that they should not completely waive responsibility and let their children be the sole judges of what they should or should not do.

The head of a police department naturally, if he has any real interest in his work, pays considerable attention to the causese that bring people within the scope of his work, and the fact that the liberty enjoyed by the young people of today has impressed itself upon one police official as a reason for getting into trouble, the advice offered by the Galt chief should not be overlooked by parents generally.

SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS.

The decision of the Board of Education to provide supervisors for the school playgrounds during the summer months will be heard with delight by a small army of youngsters and with sighs of satisfaction by many mothers.

One year's experience without supervised playgrounds, after having them in operation for several seasons, was sufficient to reveal how beneficial such grounds are to the children and to their parents.

The knowledge that their little ones are safely playing under the supervision of qualified instructors and away from the dangers of the street, provides ease of mind for mothers who otherwise would spend the greater in worrying about the safety of the children.

At the same time, the latter are being developed not only in body but in character, by reason of the intelligent supervision exercised over their play.

They are taught the fundamentals of real sportsmanship, to play the game, for the game's sake and not for the sake of victory.

They learn too, the value of unselfishness, for care is taken to see that all children have an equal opportunity to use the facilities provided, and there is no bullying or monopolization by the older children, as would in most cases result, were there no supervision provided.

The return to supervised playgrounds is a step to be generally commended.

WHY NOT A HOLIDAY?

The attitude taken by the opposition both Liberal and Conservative in the Legislature has forced Premier Drury to announce that the Gregory Commission will not make a report before the election and that its operations in the interim are likely to be confined to technical research.

The impropriety of allowing the Hydro probe to continue during the election campaign and thus make a political question of this most important matter, is so apparent that there will be natural wonder that it required a solid opposition and the introduction of a want of confidence motion to cause Mr. Drury to slow up the inquiry.

The Premier should go even further than he has done.

The proper course under the circumstances, would be to order the commission to cease holding public sittings while the campaign is being fought.

Political feeling will shortly be running high on public questions, including the Hydro, and to expect to secure unprejudiced and impartial opinions from witnesses during the heat of a campaign is to place too great reliance upon human nature.

There are thousands of Ontario people who cannot see how any good purpose will be served by the Gregory Commission's activity in any case.

But to attempt to function during the political battle, that will shortly be raging all over Ontario, would be a proceeding foredoomed to failure.

Mr. Drury should give the Commission a holiday.

THE "PERFIDIOUS" TURK.

France has been tricked by the astute, if somewhat shady, diplomacy of Mustapha Kemal. After supporting the Angora Nationalists with such enthusiasm that she threatened to estrange her war allies, after risking the displeasure of her own people by abandoning Cilicia to the Turk, then pricking their patriotism on a dangerous spot, France is now mobilizing divisions to defend herself against her former protege.

Poor France! Such base ingratitude on the part of the Turk ill requited such protecting benevolence. It is not "Perfide Albion" this time, but "le grand scelerat-Mustapha," on whom their revilings must be heaped. It was in March, 1921, that General Gouraud while in London as a representative of France at the Near Eastern Conference took advantage of the presence of the representative of the Angora Nationalists to conclude an agreement by which France agreed to withdraw from the whole of Cilicia. It was a bold bid for Turkish friendship and General Gouraud was warmly eulogized for the point he had scored. This was not the only agreement made with Angora, but was the only treaty which the patriotism of France hesitated to accept.

Why then has Angora gone back on her newly-found friend? Has she used that friendship for her own ends and thrown away the pulp after the orange is sucked dry. This would seem to be the case. There is no doubt that Kemal coquetted with France in order to estrange her from her betrothed suitor, Britain. Kemal was astute enough to see that his only hope of obtaining generous terms of settlement was to drive a wedge into Allied solidarity.

The last Lausanne Conference showed that Franco-British entente, in spite of the difficulties of the Ruhr problem, had not been seriously endangered. Kemal could not use France for the purposes he had designed. Moreover, the cost of the Ruhr occupation, the decline of the franc and the straitened condition of French finances, showed Kemal clearly that for the economic development of the country, the building of railways, the development of the oil resources, France was a slender reed to lean upon. Kemal therefore deliberately smacks France in the face and flirts with a new suitor. The United States has the money and the organizing ability to develop Turkish railways, so Kemal sends her new-found friend little presents of oil concessions and the like. The United States may yet learn that the acceptance of these concessions by her nationals involves grave responsibilities that may enmesh her in greater troubles than she anticipates.—Montreal Star.

CONVERTS NEEDED FOR ACTION.

To temporarily prick the conscience and to awaken the personal conviction of a dormant spirit in general civic and business affairs, the idea of the various organizations in the city, obtaining the services of an outstanding national speaker, is a splendid panacea. Many emminent gentlemen of national reputation have recently addressed the Rotary, Kiwanis and Belleville Clubs, the Horticultural Society and other bodies of citizens and have imparted messages which were overflowing with splendid ideas and replete with various plans of service. Their remarks have always been well received, but it has not so far appeared that those who have taken the trouble to attend these meetings were seeking salvation from sins of laxity and omission. They could not have been very much worried about the state of their souls, because nothing of particularly great import has as yet been accomplished as the result of these periodical hours of instruction.

For the time being during the course of the addresses, everyone is enthused, is converted and shown the error of his ways, by those qualified exhorters of modern ethics. And it is likely, that in their travels, these human lighthouses whose wicks are always trimmed, find exactly the same conditions which are prevalent here. Some individuals doubtless think that there is plenty of time to take advantage of the points imparted in these instructive talks and feel that while the light holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return. The process of conversion of the more hardened sinners among the civic irreconcilables is somewhat tedious, but when they do finally decide to admit the errors of their ways there will be very few making enquiries wheer the mourners' bench is located There are a few instances of course, in every municipality, where there is no hope of their ever being rescued from the gall of bitterness and the bond of iniquity. We shall always have such class in our midst, but the preponderance is, fortunately, on the uppermost side and if sincerity of purpose, as one speaker recently advocated is shown, there should be no difficulty in achieving the most difficult problems.

Now that these men have been spelling opportunity for us, should not some effort be made to carry out some of the ideas and business reforms suggested. We can never expect to accomplish anything of even small magnitude if the reins are not picked up and the horse made to go. When everyone takes a seat in the rig, the nag will commence to trot and will eventually come under the wire a winner.

Let us shift from our accustomed and well trodden ground just a little bit and experiment and ascertain whether or not these various proposals and propoundings are possible. If we do not get busy and endeavor to accomplish something, the pleasant, entertaining and instructive visits of these weekly speakers will be indubitably lost. It is for us to decide. They have shown us the way.—Belleville Intelligencer.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Andrew Hicks, M.P.P., succeeds in getting his name on the front page frequently—if his attacks have no other result.

President Beatty of the C.P.R. sees better times coming in Canada. He does not say over which line.

The language being used in the Legislature at least does not lack vigor or picturesqueness. Such expressions as "dirty skunk" and "contemptible rattlesnake" are out of place in a parliamentary debate.

The London incendiarism prompts the question of how many fires in other sections of Eastern Canada originated in a similar manner.

British Columbian fruit growers have appointed a general-manager at a salary of $15,000 year. Actions of that kind explain why the B.C. apples are crowding the Ontario product off the Eastern market.

The Brackin Government in Manitoba has discovered as has the Drury Government in Ontario, that it is much easier to preach economy when out of power than it is to practise economy when in power.

TIRED, NERVOUS MOTHERS

are the direct cause of much unhappiness in our home; their condition irritates and wears upon the husband and often ruins a child's disposition. This condition of the mother is often due to some weakness which makes her entirely unfit to perform her household duties and bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves. Every woman who finds herself in this condition should remember the statistics prove that 98 out of every 100 women who suffer from female ills are helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and lose no time in giving it a fair trial.

A SERIOUS CASE OF NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Benefited by WINCARNIS

"Some time ago I had a very serious nervous breakdown. I was in such a debilitated condition that an infection of my blood followed an attack of ulcerative sore throat, and I began to lose weight and strength at an alarming rate. As my condition grew worse, it became impossible for me to get a full night's sleep.

When my nervousness and weakness became almost unbearable I began taking Wincarnis, and the improvement was very noticeable before I had finished the first bottle. I am now myself again, and both my father and my son are taking Wincarnis because they have seen how wonderfully it acted in my case. Wincarnis is certainly a remarkable tonic for those suffering from nervous exhaustion, thin blood, sleeplessness or great debility." (Mrs. W. J. Pennell, Cato, N. Y.)

LESS CONVICTIONS UNDER O.T.A. ACT

Hick's Charges.

Another echo of the Hicks' charges was heard in the Legislature to-day when W. H. Casselman, U. F. O., Dundas, drew attention to a headline in morning paper which stated "Member for Dundas suspected by Drury of leaking secrets." "I cannot allow that to go," he said, "and I must ask the Prime Minister for his grounds in making such a statement." "I was not responsible for the charge being made public," replied the Premier. Third Generation is Using Syrup Pepsin

No other Laxative can replace Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin in the confidence of those who use it

THERE are thousands of healthy, robust young men and women who have never in all their lives taken any other laxative for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. Their parents were given it by their parents; the grandparents are using it today. It is the one laxative ideally suited to all the family, safe for the little ones, effective in grownups, so compounded that elderly people, who are constantly forced to take a laxative because the intestinal muscles are weakening, find increased dosage unnecessary. This wonderful constipation remedy has been used continuously for 30 years, and over 10 million bottles are now sold annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world! The cost averages but a cent a dose. Every druggist sells it, and under a guarantee to do as claimed or your money will be refunded.

There is scarcely a day that someone in a family does not need it for constipation, flatulency, auto-intoxication, biliousness, intestinal poisoning, headaches, colic and cramps, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on the package. As the popularity of this natural vegetable laxative increases, the public discards the harsher physics like calomel, coal-tar in candy form, salt waters and powders. Bill Is Expected to Halt Bootlegging.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 4.—(Canadian Press.)— A Government bill which, it is claimed, will help to stop bootlegging, passed the House of Commons yesterday and now goes to the Senate. The bill applies more particularly to the wet provinces of Quebec and British Columbia, where the sale of liquor is in the hands of Provincial Government authorities. Unde the bill, the only private persons permitted to import liquor into these Provinces are manufacturers and distillers and they are to do so for blending purposes. Originally the bill also permitted importation by exporters, but on a Government amendment, exporters were struck out of the bill.

CONSTABLE IS NOT EXPECTED TO LIVE

Enforcement of Prohibition Laws Takes Toll of One More Life.

DRUMHELLER, Alta., May 4.—(Canadian Press.) — With little chance of recovery, Charles Paris, of the local police force, is in the hospital suffering from terrible injuries and Ike Trider and D. B. Buchanan, alleged bootleggers, are in jail awaiting preliminary trial as the result of Chief of Police Fletcher and Constable Paris attempting to arrest the two men Wednesday night.

The constables jumped on the running board of the automobile which was loaded with cases of whiskey. The car continued on its course, the oplice shooting at the tires and mechanism. Finally while a 30 mile pace was being hit up, the driver steered the car directly at the rails of a lumber fence. One of the dislodged timbers pierced the radiator, split as it passed through the hood and entered the abdomen of the constable.

The injured man, who is a former member of the Mounted Police, has been conscious throughout the night and cheerfully conversed with his relatives though there is not a remote chance of his living for more than a few hours.

Big Cash Bail For Three Highway Men.

MONTREAL, May 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Judge Enright here yesterday afternoon fixed bail at $25,000 cash in the case of the three men arraigned before him on a charge of holding up and robbing the paymaster of the Standard Shirt Co., Limited, of a sum of $6,358.84 on April 16 last. The men who gave their names as Joseph Sgrafini, Louis Surufleskey and Barney Shukal were arrested here yesterday. They did not plead to the charge and were remanded for preliminary hearing May 9.

Hardly Believable So Much Gold Exists In Any One Area

"Who are behind it?"

Isn't that one of the first questions you ask yourself before investing your money?

Do you realize what a big factor the board of directors play in any enterprize?

The reputation of a successful business man in any community is too valuable to permit him to associate himself with any but reputable companies.

No gold mining property has ever had on its board of directorate a stronger group than that associated with the Matachewan Canadian Gold Limited.

These men would never have allowed their names to appear as directors of the Company if they had not first convinced themselves that this Company had something more than a prospect.

How did they find this out?

By a comprehensive and intelligent program of development, comprising over 19,000 feet of surface trenching, shaft sinking, drifting and diamond drilling.

Seventy diamond drill holes were put down to an average depth of 250 feet. Every one of them showed the presence of gold, and payable values were maintained to a depth of 350 feet.

And the most striking result of this diamond drilling was the remarkable uniformity of the run of the ore, and all indications point to this ore extending to great depth.

In only one or two cases was ore encountered which was not of commercial value.

The ore bodies were unusual, measuring in most cases many feet in width.

No other known mine in Northern Ontario at the same stage of development has shown such a quantity of profitable ore.

If you live in or near Toronto, it will be worth your while to visit our offices and see the results of the diamond drilling and records of other work.

It is hardly believable that so much gold exists all over any single area as has been encountered in the Matachewan Canadian Gold, Limited.

After you have examined the results of the diamond drilling, you will say, as so many others have, "This certainly looks like another Hollinger."

If it is not convenient for you to come to our office, why don't you write to-day for prospectus?

It gives you some facts about the results of the diamond drilling, and other work done, the names of the directors and other interesting information about this property.

We are now offering for public subscription 600,000 shares of the stock of the Matachewan Canadian Gold Limited at $1.00 (par value) a share.

Already over $500,000 has been spent in acquiring and developing the property to its present stage, and it is to mine the ore and build a mill that the present offering is made.

BREAKS GROUND FOR FOUNDATION OF NEW SCHOOL

First Excavation on Site in Campbellford Was Watched With Lively Interest Yesterday.

SIZE OF BUILDING

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4.—Ground was broken yesterday for the foundation of the new High school and to James Farrell belongs the honor of turning the first sod. Contractor Thomas A. Brown and Engineer C. S. Hayes, of Toronto, who will superintend the work of construction, watched the first excavation, made at the west corner of the site, with lively interest. Mr. Farrell picked and shovelled his way down and at a depth of about 28 inches came upon solid rock, which would make an excellent support for even a larger building than the one in mind. It is now claimed that the result of yesterday's work disposes of the claim of certain members of the council and other citizens that the new school is to be built on a foundation of the kind that has been condemned on spiritual authority.

The new school will stand opposite the office of P. J. Kelly and will face Ranney street, the entrance being close to the sidewalk. The playground will be in the rear and on either side of the building. The grounds are about three and a half acres in extent, and there is plenty of room for a tennis court, baseball diamond, football field and other forms of athletic sports.

There are large boulders on the surface of the site and engineers maintain that this is a certain indication of the presence of rock not far beneath.

The dimensions of the building as originally planned was 106 x 75 feet, this design providing for an assembly room and a gymnasium. The revised plans to bring the cost within the appropriation in sight leaves out these two departments, which would otherwise have been built, one on the ground floor and the other upstairs, in the south-east corner. This corner is aobut 36 x 72 feet in extent so that by leaving it vacant the new school assumes the form of an "L." The gymnasium and assembly room can be put up without the preparation of new plans.

Sub Contract Let.

Mr. Brown has already sub-let the contract for the plumbing work on the school to Mason and Hawkrigg, of town. Local laborers and mechanics will be employed on the building and this means a profitable summer's work for a large number of men. So far as possible all the necessary material will be purchased in Campbellford, but it will be necessary to bring in the brick from outside.

HASTINGS PATRIARCH IN NINETIETH YEAR

James Stevenson, Always a Great Reader, Has Never Used Glasses — Uncle of Hon. G. P. Graham.

BORN IN IRELAND.

HASTINGS, May 4. — James Stevenson, who will be 90 years old on his next birthday, 11th of November, enjoys the distinction of being the patriarch of the village. When the announcement is publicly made that a man has attained so venerable an age, an enquiry is at once started with regrd to his life long attitude on the use of tobacco and liquor. Let the question in the case of the subject of this sketch be disposed of at the outset. Mr. Stevenson has used liquor, but so moderately that it can scarcely be said to enter into the reckoning He smoked and otherwise indulged in tobacco for 48 years but 14 years ago he gave up the habit, not, he admits, without a struggle, and he says he is convinced that this abstinence had added both to his years and his vigor.

This victory over an appetite came about in this way. Mr. Stevenson had spent eleven days in a hospital in Saskatoon, on one of the rare occasions upon which he had been ill. During that time the physician and nurse denied him his pipe. One day after he was allowed to rise and resume his clothes, as he stood on the porch of the hospital, he drew a piece of tobacco from his pocket, with a view to resuming his former habits. Then he reasoned with himself. He had lived and regained health after being without tobacco for eleven days. Why not give it up altogether? Twice he made an effort to cast the weed from him, and twice he failed. The third time he conquered. The plug of tobacco described a parabola in the air and a habit of 48 years standing was broken.

Never Used Glasses.

As an evidence of the remarkable vigor of Mr. Stevenson it may be cited that although he has been a great reader all his life he has never found it necessary to help out his eyes with glasses, and his vision today is apparently as unimpaired as ever was.

Born in Ireland.

Mr. Stevenson was born in Ireland on the 11th November, 1833,four years before the late Queen Victoria ascended the throne, so that he has lived under four Britsih sovereigns. When he was 14 years old he came to Canada with his parents and the family settled on a farm in Percy Township, a few miles from the village. That homestead, which is now owned by a nephew, George Stevenson, was his home until he retired and moved to Hastings about twenty five years ago. His wife, who before her marriage was Miss Susanna Beadley, a native of Prince Edward County, died in 1910, and since that time Mr. Stevenson has resided with his daughter, Mrs. A. V. Gorman, whose husband is in business here.

Hon. George P. Graham.

The Stevenson family is one of the best known and most highly respected of the pioneers of Northumberland County and one of the most distinguished members is no less a personage than Hon. George P. Graham, a member of the Dominion Cabinet, who is a nephew of Mr. Stevenson. Mr. Graham's father, the late Rev. William Henry Graham, was a Methodist minister stationed in Cramahe township, when he met and courted Ellen Stevenson, sister of Hastings' oldest resident. The couple were married in the Stevenson homestead and it is likely that but for the itnerant system in vogue in the Methodist church, the future Cabinet minister would to-day be able to boast that he had been born in Northumberland county within sight almost of the village of Hastings. As it happened the Rev. Mr. Graham was sent to Eganville, in Renfrew County, some time after his marriage, and it was there that the redoubtable George P., destined to become a member of the Legislature and leader of the Ontario Liberals, and later to rise to the Dominion Parliament, and to hold in the cabinet the portfolio of Minister of Railways and Canals, and later to be head of the Militia and Defence Department, first beheld the glories of the Canadian day. In after years the votes of his fellow natives in the village of Eganville, helped George P. Graham, win the riding of South Renfrew in a historic bye-election held soon after the general election of 1911.

Youth of Future Statesman.

Naturally those who are familiar with this family history ask Mr. Stevenson for information as to the boyhood of his distinguished relative, and whether George P. in his youth gave any indication of possessing the ability which later in life fitted him for a high place in statesmanship.

Mr. Stevenson says that George P. was very much of a human boy, no better and no worse than the average. For one thing he early developed a boylike aversion to attending school, and this trait gave his parents considerable trouble and uneasiness.

Mr. Stevenson recalls that on one occasion he was visiting Rev. and Mrs. Graham when they were living at Odessa, George P. being 15 years old at the time. One morning the boy went on strike, and refused to attend school, professing contempt for education. Thinking to cure him by the application of a practical remedy, the mother set him to work digging potatoes, but the boy cheerfully assumed the task and welcomed it as a relief from the routine of school. As he afterwards qualified for a school teacher, it is inferred that he must eventually have overcome his distaste for erudition.

When George P. was 25 years old he made his first run for the Legislature, but was defeated by the late Sir James Whitney, who afterward became Premier of Ontario.

Mr. Stevenson says that the defeated candidate accepted the reverse like a dead game sport, and boasted that it took one of the handsomest and gifted members of the Legislature to put him down and out.

A Son of His Father.

Mr. Stevenson says that the Hon. George P. Graham inherited his outstanding talents and indomitable will from his father, who was one of the brightest men whom he ever met. The statesman who from the beginning of his public career has been one of the main props of his party, who has inspired his political opponents with terror and admiration, who is acknowledged to be the best after-dinner speaker in Canada, and who on the platform or on the floor of Parliament is skilled in the use of every legitimate weapon of debate, can thank his brilliant father for all his gifts.

Always a Liberal.

Mr. Stevenson cast his first vote in 1862. His ancestors had always been conservative but Mr. Stevenson who was a close student of public questions, decided to cast in his lot with the Liberals, and has been a supporter of that Party ever since. He was a member of Percy Township Council for eight years, one year as deputy-reeve, and was assessor for four years.

For the past 50 years he has been an official of the Methodist Church.

His Children.

The living children of Mr. Stevenson are James and George B. of Hastings, Dr. T. D. Stevenson of Wetaskiwi, Alta., Mrs. Samuel Merrill of the Wilson Settlement, Mrs. John Fairman, who resides on a farm near Campbellford, Mrs. Harold Eavis of Norwood, and Mrs. A. V. German of Hastings. The eldest son and two other boys are dead. The first of these, George, passed away some years ago.

One Son Drowned.

A son, Samuel, one of the brightest and most promising members of the family, when 14 years old, went to Campbellford to write at the High School entrance examinations. On the evening of the first day, with some other boys, while bathing in the river, he was caught in the swift current and drowned, his body being recovered soon afterwards.

Ernest G., another son, went overseas with the C.F.R. Corps as a lieutenant. He was wounded while in the discharge of his duty, but recovered, only to die of the flu a few days before the signing of the Armistice.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

St. Andrew's Sunday School Entertained—Local Lady Honored—To Present Plays.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4.—The annual entertainment of St. Andrew's Sunday School was given by the scholars last night, and the parents had an opportunity of seeing for themselves the pains that is being taken in the training of the children by the teachers and the Biblical knowledge that is being imparted at the weekly sessions. Reeve J. A. Anderson at the opening of the entertainment made a short address, in which he asked the parents to co-operate with the officers of the school. The attendance was large, and an interesting programme was put on by the different classes. Those who drilled the scholars in their various parts were: Mrs. M. Stephens, Miss Dorothy Milne, Mrs. E. Cochrane, Miss E. Buchanan and Mrs. J. Storie. The programme was as follows:

Chorus, by the Primary Department, and the recital of the 23rd Psalm in unison.

Dialogue, by the Juniors.

"Lily Drill," by Juniors.

Dialogue, by Mrs. Battisby's class of Intermediate girls.

Drama, "The Queen of Sheba."

Tableau, representing the months of the year, by twelve girls, arranged by Mrs. Arthur Armour.

Drill, by Juniors.

Tableau, showing a number of soldiers sitting around a camp fire, the older boys taking part. This number was designed and the boys drilled by Fred. Wigglesworth, the organist of the church.

Pantomime, by the girls of Miss Vera Hay's Intermediate class. Miss Emma Meiklejohn played the hymn, "By Cool Siloam's Shady Rill," the girls in the tableau depicting in pantomime the sentiments of the sacred melody.

The drama, "The Queen of Sheba," was the most ambitious offering of the evening. King Solomon sat in regal splendor on his throne, and the visiting monarch with a retinue of maidens from her court, in resplendent costumes, came to hear for herself the wisdom and to see the grandeur of the King of Israel and to learn that in the reports that had reached her, "the half had not been told." The court maidens joined in reciting the 8th Psalm as a specimen of what they have been learning in the Sunday School, and also rendered in chorus a sacred song.

Another of the special numbers was the drill by the Junior boys, trained by Miss Watson. All of the boys were dressed in the garb of the red man, with war paint on their faces, and were armed with bows and arrows.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, who acted as chairman, stated that the girls who took part in the drama had recently stood an examination in what they had been taught in the school during the first three months of the year, and that their standing ranged from 70 to 90 per cent.

Mr. Wigglesworth has started a singing class for boys over 10 years old, and devotes one hour every Tuesday evening in the school-room to their musical training. This is an excellent chance to secure instruction free of charge.

Honor For Mrs. J. P. Archer

At the regular meeting of the Senior Chapter of the I.O.D.E., Mrs. J. P. Archer, who served four years as regent, was presented with a life membership as a recognition of her work in the interests of the Order.

It was decided to hold the annual Decoration Day services during the forenoon of the 24th of May, when floral tributes will be placed on the graves of departed members and soldiers.

The members of the chapter wish to acknowledge with thanks the following donations to be added to the Soldiers' Memorial Fund: $50 from the Twelve O'Clock Club; $50 from Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E. and $4 from the Girls' Cricket Club.

To Hold Social Session

Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E. of which Miss Hazel Atkinson is Regent, held their regular meeting in the Public Library last night. It was decided to have the next regular meeting on the afternoon of 7th June when a social hour will be spent. This will be the last meeting until autumn.

To Present Plays

Two plays will be presented under the auspices of the Willing Workers of Christ Church in the parish hall on the evening of May 10th May. As the members of this church are locally famous for their dramatic talent a performance alone the average amateur standard may be looked for.

The first play,"A Scheme that Failed," in which there is a cast of six, is a comedy dealing with a tangle that arose in the domestic life of a young couple who were socially ambitious. An old schoolmate of the husband, accompanied by his mother who is a member of the aristocracy only once removed from a title, is expected to pay them a visit and the couple are besides themselves to provide entertainment for their distinguished guests. Just before their arrival a sister of the husband pays an unexpected visit and is induced to assume the role of waiting maid for the evening, Bridget, the cook being a culinary artist of the highest order but not to be twisted on this auspicious occasion outside the kitchen. When the guests arrive the young man and the acting maid discover that so far from being strangers they are engaged lovers. They keep their secret and many laughable situation develop as a result.

The other play is called "Scien Paile Francais," which rendered in English reads "French Spoken Here" A London householder who takes in lodgers, puts that anouncement in his window hoping to attract the foreign element It does, but here the troubles of the owner of the house begins. He thinks he can talk French. but the natives who express themselves in that language come to a different conclusion after an interview with the keeper of the boarding house. The struggles of those who can speak French but who try to make themselves inunderes try to make themslves understood in English and vice versa, furnishes plenty of rich comedy. There will be solos rendered during the evening by Mrs. George Nicol and Herbert Leonard and Clegg's orchestra will also furnish music.

Timely Utterances by Notable Visitors in After-Dinner Speeches.

TORONTO, May 4.—(Canadian Press).—Depreciation of commercialism in the newspaper profession, consideration of the influence of the "mysterious agency of radio" on the daily journal, great care in expressions of opinion on questions which affect the welfare and life of the country, and an appeal to approach the solution of difficulties which confront Canada's realization of her great heritage not from standpoint of east or west, but of Canada as whole, were some of the points which punctuated addresses featuring the annual banquet of the Canalian Daily Newspapers Association here last night. The speakers were His Honor Lieut-Governor Harry Cockshutt of Ontario, T. H. Preston. Brantford, the new president of association, Hon. C. Seitz business manager of the New York World and Hon. DUSSELDORF, May 4 (United Press).—Germany's industrial heart on which the French, rejecting the latest reparations offer, keep a strangling grip, was squeezed tighter to-day.

The Ruhr Valley witnessed the eviction from their homes of 4,000 railroad workers and their families.

NATURALIZATION BILL DISCUSSED

System Proposed is in Force in Britain and Australia.

OTTAWA, May 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Proposals in the naturalization bill again gave rise to discussion in the House last night. Provision to abolish preliminary investigation by local judges, of applications for naturalization and substitution therefore of action by the Secretary of State direct was especially in view. Hon. A. B. Copp, Secretary of State, declared that his only intention was to make the working of the act as simple as possible and remarked that the system he proposed was in force in Great Britain and Australia. He had no desire to secure powers which should not be his.

Objection to the proposals was based mainly on the claim that they would be placing too much power in the hands of the Secretary of State. "It would permit the minister," claimed Rt .Hon. Arthur Meighen, "to go around the country with the oil of naturalization annointing whomsoever he likes into citizenship of Canada."

A. W. Neill, Independent of Comox, Alberni, B.C., had an amendment with reference to Japanese naturalized in Canada, although Japanese are not specifically mentioned in the amendment .Under his amendment he would give the minister power to denaturalize those who remain, according to the laws of any foreign state subject to that state."

Hon. A. B. Copp promised consideration of the amendment which, with the bill, comes up again in committee later.

MARKS AGAIN FALL.

LONDON, May 4 (United Press) —The German marks fell still further to 180,000 to the pound sterling, approximately 40,000 to the dollar, on the London Exchange to-day.

Extending about a mile, 3,000 mourners were present at a funeral in Derbyshire, England, recently.

Greek Prisoners Badly Treated.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 4.—(Canadian Press.)— The following is an excerpt from a letter written to Miss Emily MacCallum, who is at present located in Piraeus, Greece, to a friend in this city:

"We are feeling very badly about the way in which the Greek prisoners from Asia Minor are coming over. The Turkish prisoners went over well clothed, well fed and comfortable, and these poor victims come over as skeletons, in rags, barefooted, with bleeding childblained feet and hollow sunken eyes and expressions of terror. They have been abominably treated, as you will understand when I tell you that out of 16,000 prisoners in the Brousia District only 300 are now alive. They have been beaten and starved and frozen, driven from place to place and tortured in many ways. And yet people stand up for the Turks."

PREDICTS EARLY FALL OF CUNO GOVERNMENT

LONDON, May 5. — (Canadian Press). — Rejection by France of Germany's reparation proposals was expected here, consequently it was received like all foregone conclusions

So far there has been little comment, but the Liberal press reiterates its opinion that the German note has furnished an opportunity for conversations leading to negotiations.

The Daily News and Westminster Gazette declare that the offer should be used as a starting point. Meanwhile despatches from Berlin predict early fall of Cuno government.

HELD ON CHARGE STEALING BONDS

TORONTO, May 4 (Canadian Press). — Findlay McLeod, aged 40, his son Findlay, aged 17, both of Toronto, and Benjamin Roberts, of New York, were brought back from Hamilton last night by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police on charges of the theft three weeks ago of $100,000 worth of Victory bonds from the mails.

Mrs. Sarah McLeod, wife of Findlay McLeod, Sr., was also arrested on the charge of receiving stolen property.

Findlay McLeod, Sr, was employed as chauffeur at the Post Office, and it is alleged that the bonds, which were included in the bags of mail he was conveying to the Union Station for shipment to New York, were stolen on the trip.

Mrs. McLeod is alleged to have cashed $4,0000 worth of stolen bonds in Toronto.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT MERELY AN ONLOOKER

LONDON, May 4. — (Canadian Press). — The British Government appears for the moment to be playing the part of onlooker upon the new situation created by the German note offering a new reparations settlement. This is the position Britain has held ever since the French and Belgians occupied Ruhr. It seems to be recognized here that the key to the next move is in the hands of France, and that France will play her own cards. It is considered doubtful if the Allied nations which signed the Treaty of Versailles will hold a conference to frame a joint reply to Germany.

THOUGHT KIDNAPPERS HIDING IN CANADA

OGDENSBURG, N.Y., May 4. — (Canadian Press.)— The police said early this morning they believed at least five or six persons to be involved in the kidnapping of Verner Alexanderson of Schenectady, who yesterday was found in a cottage on Indian River near here. Fifty riversmen were employed throughout last night to maintain watch at all river points in an effort to prevent the escape of the two men who are believed to have kidnapped boy or to trail them should they seek to return to this country from Canada, where it is thought they are in hiding.

MANY CHANGES FOR BANK ACT

Published Returns of Banks and the Responsibility of the President.

OTTAWA, May 4. — (Canadian Press).—Two main matters are dealt with in an extensive series of additional amendments to the Bank Act, of which notice was given yesterday by Hon. W. S. Fielding, Finance Minister, in the Commons' Banking and Commerce Committee. These are the published returns of the banks and the responsibility for them of the president, directors and officers of the bank, and the audit of the banks' accounts by independent auditors. These amendments involve changes from the bill to amend the Bank Act as it was introduced in the House this year.

Under the bill, as introduced, an effort was made to hold the president, directors and officers responsible for false statements in the returns by providing that they were "deemed to have ascertained the true financial position of the bank." In the new amendments this is struck out, and it is provided that "the persons respectively who sign the said return shall be held and deemed to be responsible for the truth of the facts certified by them in their respective declarations." It is also declared in the penalty clause that the truth of the declaration shall be judged "according to the latest information possessed by or reasonably available," to the officer concerned.

A number of changes are made in the details of the returns to be made, especially in regard to loans; and among these is an extension of two years of the time during which interest on current loans must remain unpaid before they lapse into the class of over-due debts. The first amendment proposed in the bill fixed this period at one year.

Several changes are made in the items to be included in the annual and monthly returns. In the monthly return the banks are to be allowed to include in their call and short loans, those out on "other securities of a sufficient marketable value to cover," as well as on "stocks, debentures and bonds." The term "non-current loans" is substituted for "over-due debts." In addition, in the annual statement the current loans are to be put at a value which allows for "full provision for all bad and doubtful debts."

SIR JOHN SIMON WAS RECOMMENDED

Was Not Present As Counsel in Case Before House of Lords.

LONDON, May 4. — (Canadian Press).—There was a rather bitter sequel yesterday to the incident in the House of Lords on Wednesday when the Lords sat a judicial court and Lord Birkenhead administered a rebuke to Sir John Simon because Sir John, who was counsel in a case, was not present. Lord Birkenhead, in the course of his remarks on Wednesday about Sir John Simon's absence, said a leading counsel in a case to come before the Lords should apply for the court's indulgence before absenting himself.

Sir John Simon attended yesterday, and in his usual quiet tones explained that he had returned his brief, but Lord Birkenhead had thought fit to make some observations about his having failed in his duty in not attending court on Wednesday.

"I gather that Lord Birkenhead came here Tuesday with prepared material casting reflections upon me," said Sir John Simon. "I am not conscious of having committed any offence against the House of Lords, and I will now address myself to the other peers present, who have had longer experience than Lord Birkenhead, and ask them whether my past conduct in the House of Lords has justified the strictures made by him.

"I have not been given common justice, having had no notice of Lord Birkenhead's intention to make these strictures, which appear to me to affect the general interests of the bar."

Lord Birkenhead agreed that the matter was one of public importance. Sir John's duty, though, was the same as that of any other counsel in a case, namely, to be present to do his duty when his case was called, or be there to ask for the indulgence of the House.

"Call the next case," Lord Birkenhead said sharply.

Sir John Simon retorted that he would apply to the Lord Chancellor or the Attorney-General for a ruling on the matter.

The venerable Lord Finley interposed with an expression of his opinion that there was no ground for the censure of Sir John Simon. It might not be possible always for counsel to attend, he suggested.

Lord Birkenhead said: "There is no occasion to go further into the matter.

Then turning abruptly to the clerk "Call the next case," saids he.

Sir John Simon then withdrew.

Want Ad Tips by John T. Bartlett

A GROUP OF WANT AD REMINDERS.

If your Want Ad offers things readily sold by mail, for which there is likely to be out-of-town demand, remember to put in this: "Mail orders promptly filled." Want Ads often pull mail orders, but they pull by far the most when the advertiser lets the readers know he handles such business. A gardener who specializes in cabbage, tomato and other plants, declares his mail orders increased 35 per cent when he included in his Want Ad, "Parcels Post Prepaid."

Have you a telephone? By all means give your number in your Want Ad. Among telephone subscribers in your city are many possible customers for your article or service. It is the easiest thing in the world for them to take down the receiver and in a moment ask you some important point they require information on. If the reply is satisfactory, very likely they buy. "Phone inquiries cheerfully answered," is a good statement to put in your message.

How about inquirers who telephone or call? Will someone be at home most or all the time in the next few days? An inquirer who either calls in person or telephones, and finds "no one in," is a lost opportunity, perhaps, to do business. If you will be at home only a part of the time following the appearance of your Want Ad, instruct inquirers when to call.

Say, "Every afternoon this week" or, "Call Bay 123 after 6.30 p.m." Make in effect, a Want Ad appointment with inquirers. One Want Ad user had a single hour in which he could meet inquirers. He inserted his Want Ad for several days, saying, "Call Wednesday noon." He made a satisfactory sale.

If your address is on a little known street, make it easy for inquirers to find you by giving directions. "Eight blocks South, 1 West, of Pickering Square," tells readers instantly where the advertiser can be found, whereas the street and number might mean nothing to most readers.

A little thoughtfulness goes a long way in making Want Ads produce fine results.

SOUL KISS IN REAL LIFE

M-m-m-m-m! Smack! This wouldn't get by the censor. It's Theda Bara, screen vamp, kissing her husband, Charles J. Brabin, director, upon his arrival in Los Angeles from the east.

there are cigarette cases and cigarette boxes and cigarette lighters galore. And, as one would expect, any number of clocks, and a set of silver candlesticks.

But these candlesticks are different. They have a history and a tradition and a legend. Given by Lord Iveagh, they are among the finest specimens of old Irish silver dating from the period when the Irish aristocracy indulged in gorgeous extravagance. They came into the Iveagh family by way of a butler ancestor who was in the service of an old Huguenot refugee family which went by the name of La Touche. The butler in those days brewed the family's beer, and one day he burnt the beverage. But the burnt beer was just to his master's liking, so much so that he waxed generous and there and then presented the butler with the silver candlesticks.

Then there is a lithograph of George IV. given by Lady Maud Warrender which is of historic value.

It was once possessed by Mrs. Fitzherbert, who was married to that monarch.

A Chippendale mahogany table made by Chippendale himself was the gift of Lord and Lady Stanley. Earl Farquhar, in addition to handing over White Lodge, Richmond Great Park, of which he was life tenant, so that the Duke and the Duchess could have a home, has made many substantial presents of furniture to both the bride and bridegroom. One article is a Dresden China clock and mantel ornaments which date from the time of King Augustus the Strong, a contemporary of Louis XIV. of France.

Various delegations have gone up to Buckingham Palace and formally congratulated the Duke on becoming betrothed, and cities and organizations all over the land have presented congratulations through the mail. The Duke has had to write letters of thanks, of which the following is a sample:

"Dear Lord Provost: I wish to thank you, and through you the magistrates and councillors of the city of Dundee, for the congratulations which you have addressed to me on my approaching marriage. I value very highly the loyal expression of good wishes and goodwill which you have offered to me, and I value it especially as coming from those whom I may call the neighbors and fellow citizens of my future wife.

"The Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon joins with me in thanking you and those whom you represent for this congratulatory address which it has been a very real pleasure to us both to receive."

CUTTING THE COSTS AT OLYMPIC GAMES

Suggestions Whereby the American Team Might Be Relieved of Financial Worry.

Members of the executive committee of the American Olympic Association have decided that too much money was spent on the American athletes in Antwerp during the last Games in 1920, and that the boys who go to Paris next year will have to be satisfied with less luxury.

It will be possible to get along with less money next year if the committee will not take along so many athletes who haven't a chance to get into the games. Strength does not rest in the quantity, but in the quality of the performers. Finland, with a team less than one-fifth the size of the American team, won as many first places in the Antwerp Games the last time.

If the size of the team is reduced, as is being considered, the size of the committee in charge should be doubly decreased. The committeemen also may reduce expenses if they can find it possible to exist for a month without all the members of their family.

As the Games are to be staged in Paris, the committeemen also will not be required to spend so much time in collecting souvenirs on the French battlefields and they will not have to take a train to see the sights of Paris.

With all the sights of Europe close at hand, the committee may have more time to see the athletes in their charge receive the proper attention.

If there is a crying need for retrenchment the committee should start wielding the knife among themselves. If they attempt to cut down the food and the quarters' allowance for the athletes, the boys will have to take their own lunch-baskets and pup-tents along with them.

The athletes who went to Antwerp probably haven't eaten a sardine in the last three years, and it is likely they got enough in the Belgian city to satisfy them for a lifetime.

PRACTICAL GIFTS

Secretaries Possibly Can't Find Use For All the Presents—Duke Gets 14 Walking Sticks.

LONDON May 4 — (Associated Press).—If the Duke of York and his fiance had nothing to do but thank people for the wedding presents, which pile up daily, they would be very busy. Secretaries help some, of course. But secretaries can't find practical use for the presents, and that is going to be a task in itself. For instance, no fewer than fourteen walking sticks for his Royal Highness are listed among the many duplicates.

For the most part the presents are what people call practical. And, naturally, they are somewhat above the ordinary. No salt shakers or cut glass nut bowls or leather bridge sets have yet been counted among the articles received by the Duke or Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon. But

By Peter B. Kyne

Parker nodded and the conversation languished. The car had climbed out of the San Gregorio and was mounting swiftly along the route to La Questa, affording to the Parkers a panorama of mountain, hill, valley and sea so startling in its vastness and its rugged beauty that Don Mike realized his guests had been silenced as much by awe as by their desire to avoid a painful and unprofitable conversation.

Suddenly they swung wide around a turn and saw, two thousand feet below them, La Questa Valley. The chauffeur parked the car on the outside of the turn to give his passengers a long, unobstructed view.

"Looks like a green checker-board with tiny squares," Parker remarked presently.

"Little Japanese farms."

"There must be a thousand of them, Farrel."

"That means not less than five thousand Japanese, Mr. Parker. It means that literally a slice of Japan has been transplanted in La Questa Valley, perhaps the fairest and most fruitful valley in the fairest and most fruitful state in the fairest and most fruitful country God ever made. And it is lost to white men!"

"Serves them right. Why didn't they retain their lands?"

"Why doesn't water run up hill? A few Japs came in and leased or bought lands long before we Californians suspected a 'yellow peril.' They paid good prices to inefficient white farmers who were glad to get out at a price in excess of what any white man could afford to pay. After we passed our land law in 1913, white men continued to buy the lands for a corporation owned by Japanese with white dummy directors, or a majority of the stock of the corporation ostensibly owned by white men. Thousands of patriotic Californians have sold their farms to Japanese without knowing it. The law provides that aJapanese cannot lease land longer than three years, so when their leases expire they conform to our foolish law by merely shifting the tenants from one farm to another. Eventually so many Japs settled in the valley that the white farmers, unable to secure white labor, unable to trust Japanese labor, unable to endure Japanese neighbors or to enter into Japanese social life, weary of paying taxes to support schools for the education of Japanese children, weary of daily contact with irritable, unreliable and unassimilable aliens, sold or leased their farms in order to escape into a white neighborhood. I presume, Mr. Parker, that nobody can realize the impossibility of withstanding this yellow flood except those who have been overwhelmed by it. We humanitarians of a later day gaze with gentle sympathy upon the spectacle of a noble and primeval race like the Iroquois tribe of Indians dying before the advance of our Anglo-Saxon civilization, but with characteristic Anglo-Saxon inconsistency and stupidity we are quite loth to feel sorry for ourselves, doomed to death before the advance of a Mongolian civilization unless we put a stop to it—forcibly and immediately!"

"Let us go down and see for ourselves," Mrs. Parker suggested.

Having reached the floor of the valley, at Farrel's suggestion they drove up one side of it and down the other. Motor-truck after motor-truck, laden with crated vegetables, passed them on the road, each truck driven by a Japanese, some of them wearing the peculiar bamboo hats of the Japanese coolie class.

The valley was given over to vegetable farming and the fields were dotted with men, women and children, squatting on their heels between the rows or bending over them in an attitude which they seemed able to maintain indefinitely, but which would have broken the back of a white man.

"I know a white apologist for the Japanese who in a million pamphlets and from a thousand rostrums has cried that it is false that Japanese women labor in the fields," Farrel told his guests. "You have seen a thousand of them laboring in this valley. Hundreds of them carry babies on their backs or set them to sleep on a gunnysack between the rows of vegetables. There is a sixteen-year-old girl struggling with a one-horse cultivator, while her sisters and her mother hold up their end with five male Japs in the gentle art of hoeing potatoes."

"They live in wretched little houses," Kay ventured to remark.

"Anything that will shelter a horse or a chicken is a palace to a Jap, Kay. The furnishings of their houses are few and crude. They rise in the morning, eat, labor, eat, and retire to sleep against another day of toil. They are all growing rich in this valley, but have you seen one of these aliens building a decent home, or laying out a flower garden? Do you see anything inspiring or elevating to our nation due to the influence of such a race?"

"Yonder is a schoolhouse," Mrs. Parker suggested. "Let us visit it."

"The American flag floats over that little red school-house, at any rate," Parker defended.

William halted the car in the schoolhouse yard and Farrel got out and walked to the schoolhouse door. An American school-teacher, a girl of perhaps twenty, came to the door and met him with an inquiring look.

"May we come in?" Farrel pleaded. "I have some Eastern people with me and I wanted to show them the sort of Americans you are hired to teach."

She smiled ruefully. "I am just about to let them out for recess," she replied. "Your friends may remain in their car and draw their own conclusions."

"Thank you," Don Mike returned to the car. "They're coming out for recess," he confided. "Future American citizens and citizenesses. Count 'em."

DIES OF INJURIES.

CALGARY, May 4. — (Canadian Press).—Constable Charles Paris died in Drumheller during the night from injuries received when attempting to arrest two alleged bootleggers in an automobile late Wednesday night.

DO JURIES THINK OF ACCUSED'S SEX?

Question Answered By Prosecutor and By Prominent Woman Lawyer.

By Josephine Van de Grift.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Is it hard to convict a women of murder? "Yes," says the prosecutor who recently secured the conviction of Mrs. Lillian Raizen.

"No," says a woman lawyer who successfully defended Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wells from charges growing out of the death of a Long Island innkeeper.

"Yes," says a veteran trial lawyer, who believes sympathy rules most murder juries.

Yet two of the last three murder cases in which women were the defendants ended in convictions. Mrs. Paulette Saludes received a prison sentence of 20 years to life for the murder of her banker-lover, Oscar Martelliere. Mrs. Raizen received a similar sentence for the murder of Dr. Abraham Glickstein.

The trouble with most murder cases in which a woman is the defendant," says Joseph V. Gallagher, prosecutor in the Raizen case, "has been that the dead man was held up for trial instead of the woman. If it could be shown that the dead man was a rotter and deserved to be killed anyway the woman was acquitted and she walked out of the courtroom in the midst of a cheering crowd.

"But that day is rapidly passing. Partly it's the flapper's fault. By her exaggerated conduct she has gradually shaken man from the notion that woman was entitled to some special deference.

"Partly the growth of suffrage is responsible. Along with equal rights women have learned they must accept equal responsibilities and that the law can no longer be expected to make sex discriminations."

Miss Helen P. McCormick, a former assistant district attorney who defended Mrs. Wells, is convinced that public opinion has swung so far the other way that there is danger at the present moment of doing injustice to women on trial for murder.

"This phase will also pass," says Miss McCormick, "and at some time in the future we may expect the ideal condition in which sex discriminations play no part."

But is public opinion changing? The sympathies of the world always have been, always will be with the weaker, declares Max D. Steuer, recognized as one of the greatest trial lawyers in America.

"Some women may admire the swaggering bully," says Steuer. "But men have a horror of him. Confront a jury of 12 men with a woman who has been abused and tormented until finally in desperation she has killed her tormentor —and they will acquit her every time. The attorney for the defense has much the better of it."

ANALYZE BOTH THE WORKERS AND JOBS

EVANSTON, Ill., May 4.— Business stabilization will come just as much through standardizing methods of analyzing jobs, and the men and women who want jobs, as through controlling output, stabilizing the dollar or related financial or economic methods, according to Walter Dill Scott, President of Northwestern University. Dr. Scott says this in a chapter on "The Psychological Factor in Stabilization" in a new book edited by Lionel D. Edie, entitled "The Stabilization of Business."

In his chapter Dr. Scott hews closely to the line advocating careful judgment of employees, and the analysis of jobs they should hold.

"In the past," says President Scott, "there seems to have been almost no systematic attempt to make what we today speak of as job analysis or occupational description. Ten years ago there was not an industrial organization in America that had any serviceable occupational description of its various jobs. Today most of our large industrial organizations are preparing some form of occupational descriptions.

"These descriptions state the preliminary experience necessary or desirable for each job and the subsequent positions that should be considered as in the regular line of promotion. They note the beginning wage, the rate of promotion, the maximum and the average wage, and the collateral opportunities. They describe, so far as possible, everything pertaining to the job. The last and most difficult part of the description is a definite statement of the type of individual most likely to succeed and the types most likely to fail on the job.

"There must also be in each plant an executive in charge of personnel. He must be skilled in training men to fit jobs and he must have authority and skill in adjusting jobs to meet the needs of the workers. He must retain the confidence of the workers and he must be an important officer of the company, for it is his task to attain the ideal of vocational guidance."

President Scott says that the most successful employer will be he who always has in mind the betterment of the condition of his employees and strongly hints that general betterment of conditions in industry cannot be attained unless this golden rule principle is rigidly adhered to.

IS NO NEED FOR ALARM ON EXODUS TO STATES

NEW YORK, May 3.—A review of Canada's present advantages is given by the New York Times in the course of an editorial on recent reports from Montreal and Ottawa of a migration from Canada to the United States of a large number of skilled workers.

The Times discounts the seriousness of the situtiion from the Canadian point of view, declaring conditions in Canada are not such as to warrant any great exodus of workmen.

"It may be that the reports from Ottawa and other cities takes no account of the proportions of an annual spring movement of workers to the United States," the paper continues, "or at least make too much of that of 1923. It is not improbable that more workmen than usual are crossing the border, for our building boom is bigger than Canada's and the wages paid plasters and masons in American cities are abnormally high; but that there is any thing resembling a migration of skilled workers of all classes may be doubted."

Some Opposition to Compensation Bill.

LONDON, May 4. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—There was considerable interest in the parliamentary lobby shown yesterday in the fortunes of the workmen's compensation bill, the second reading of which will be moved to-day by J. H. Thomas on behalf of the labor party. The bill, the text of which was only issued to members of parliament yesterday, is a formidable measure with 25 clauses followed by 17 pages of schedules. Not only does it consolidate the existing law, but makes very important changes. It provides for the appointment of a commissioner to supperintend the working of the act and enlarges the scope of workmen's compensation to include persons employed otherwise than as manual labourers up to a remunertaion of £350 a year and brings in several classes of workers not now provided for. The bill also increases the compensation payable.

There is considerable opposition to the bill on the preliminary ground that the members of the house have had no time to make themselves acquainted with its proposals. The national liberal party yesterday decided to support the bill in principle.

BOYS & GIRLS
A Voting Contest Extraordinary
Autos, Wagons, Kiddie Kars, Roller Skates
FREE

Through the medium of a POPULARITY contest to be conducted for thirty days from the 7th of May, the UNITED CIGAR STORES LIMITED OF CANADA intends to distribute hundreds of dollars worth of free toys to the children of this City and adjoining districts, as well as to the children of cities and towns of Ontario in which we are operating regular Branches.

Every one of you is eligible to enter this contest—there are no restrictions, excepting the Company's employees. Here is the way to get started:—

Take Daddy to one side to-night. Tell him you intend being the best boy or girl possible from now on. Tell him you want one of these prizes, and that you want him to start right in voting for you now. (Daddy will naturally want to know how to vote). Well, here it is:—

Starting on May 7th, for every purchase Dad makes in a United store the salesman will hand him a check showing the amount of his purchase—Dad is to take this check, write your full name, and address on the back of it, and deposit it in a box he will find handy in the store. You are now entered in the contest. From now on Daddy can keep right on voting for you. Your next play is to get all the nice men you know voting for you, of course, you will not overlook big Brother Bob or Uncle Bill. If you are a nice boy or girl you will have lots of friends who will be glad to vote for you. Remember, good behaviour and nice manners make popular children, and Popularity is what will win you one of these wonderful free prizes.

RULES and NOTES

1. To become an entrant it is merely necessary to have someone write your name, and address, plainly on the back of a cash sale slip from one of our registers, and deposit it in ballot box in store.
2. A vote can be cast in any store in any Town or City, for a child living in any other City or Town in Ontario. All purchasers are requested to accept cash sales check from salesman and deposit it for their favorite girl or boy
3. See that cash sale slip shows exact amount of purchase to ensure you obtaining maximum votes.
4. Every five cent purchase entitles purchaser to one vote, as for example, a 25 cent purchase equals 5 votes, a 50 cent purchase 10 votes, and so on.
5. Odd amounts will not be counted as fractions of votes. For example a 26 cent purchase will be counted as 5 votes only.
6. Do not write number of votes on back of cash slip as our own checkers will compute all ballots by means of automatic computing machines. We cannot be held responsible for illegible or incomplete ballots. Write plainly.
7. In the event of tie two prizes of equal value will be given away to make the children happy.
8. The Company reserves the right to make final decisions—a careful count and system will be maintained and all ballots preserved for ten days after close of contest.
9. No claims for errors in count will be considered ten days after close of contest
10. Contest closes promptly at 12 noon on June 7th, 1923.
11. Voting checks must be deposited in ballot boxes within three days of date appearing on cash sales slip.
12. Employees of the UNITED are barred from entering this competition.

DEHORNING OF CATTLE

BOTH BEEF AND DAIRY ANIMALS ARE THE BETTER OF IT

Renders Bull's More Tractable—Caustic Potash or a Sharp Knife for Calves—The Saw or Special Spears for Older Cattle.

It is generally realized that horns on cattle are a disadvantage, and that both feeding and dairy cattle are improved by dehorning, in that they are prevented to a great extent thereafter from causing each other injury. Dehorned cattle also mingle together more quietly and annoy and disturb each other less while feeding and drinking, and as a result make better gains. Another advantage of dehorning is that in shipping fat cattle to market the danger of injuring and bruising each each other is lessened and consequently reduces the waste incidental to the removal of bruised parts from the carcasses after slaughter. The economic waste and loss through bruises inflicted by horn thrusts before slaughter is much greater than is generally realized. Bruises from this cause are known to incur a wastage in some shipments of about one per cent. of the dressed carcasses, incidental to the trimming and removal of the bruised parts.

The dehorning of bulls renders them more tractable and easily managed, and removes the menace of goring and seriously injuring attendants and others. The practice of preventing horn growth is young cattle overcomes the objections of those having sentiments against the operation of dehorning adult cattle. This procedure is becoming generally popular and is being practiced to an increasing extent in calves.

Caustic Potash Treatment for Calves.

The development of horn growth can be effectively prevented in calves by the use of caustics applied to the "horn butts or bubbins" soon after birth. To be successful the operation should be done when the calf is two or three days old and, at least, before it is a week old. Before applying the caustic it is best to clip the hair from around the little "horn buttons" on the head. The little "horn buttons" are then moistened slightly and rubbed thoroughly for a few seconds with either caustic potash or caustic soda. After a short time has been allowed for the caustic to dry, a second application is given as before. The caustic can be obtained in small white sticks, about the size of a pencil, and one end should be wrapped in paper or cloth to protect the fingers while applying it. Two or three applications of the caustic, properly done, are sufficient to destroy and prevent the horns from ever developing. The skin around the treated spots should be smeared with a little vaseline, and the calf should be protected from rain for a day or more after treatment. This is to prevent the caustic being washed off the treated spots and spreading to the surrounding skin and into the eyes.

Cutting with Knives

When calves are allowed to go without treatment until they are several weeks old, and the "horn buttons" have developed into projecting knobs, the caustic treatment is not sufficient to entirely destroy growth, and may permit an irregular growth of horn to develop. At this age, the best method is to remove the projecting horn knobs by cutting them off at their base, close up to the head, with a sharp knife or with a pair of calf dehorners. In the case of male calves intended to be kept as bulls, many prefer to defer the dehorning operations until about the age of two or three years or at a time when the horns are almost fully developed. The deferring of the operation to this time in the case of bulls generally makes them still more tractable than if deprived of their horns while young. In the case of steers and heifers not deprived of their horns while calves, they should be dehorned before they reach the age of three years. In dehorning grown animals, it is essential that they are properly secured and restrained for the operation. For this purpose the animal to be dehorned should be securely fast ned in a rack or chute or a solid stanchion. Once the animal is securely fastened, the horns should be removed with as little bungling as possible.

Using Saws or Strong Shears

For removing the horns, either a sharp meat saw or a pair of Keystone dehorning shears are most commonly used, nevertheless the saw is quite satisfactory and serviceable for small numbers. The main feature is to do the operation as quickly as possible and to remove the horn close up to the head, about half an inch below the hair line, thus removing that much of the skin with the horn. If this is not done there is a likelihood of a secondary growth of irregular horn taking place, forming projecting horn stubs which are undesirable and spoil the animal's appearance. After the horns are removed, no further treatment is, as a rule, required, unless there is severe bleeding. In cases of severe bleeding, the core can be smeared with tar and the opening packed with a piece of absorbent cotton, or with a piece of clean cheese cloth. This dressing can be allowed to remain for a day and then removed and the parts washed off with antiseptic solution, such as a two per cent solution of creolin or lysol. With regard to the best time of the year for dehorning adult cattle, it may be done at any time other than during fly time in summer and during zero weather in the case of cattle wintering outside.—C. D. McGilvray, M.D.V., Ont. Vet. College, Guelph.

MAKE REPAIRS TO RIVERSIDE PARK

Cold Shower Will Be Set Up in Club House for Players.

Jimmy Gates was re-appointed caretaker of the Inverlea Park bathing place at $17 a week, and Thomas Raymond returns to Lake Street beach at $15, according to the recommendation of the Parks Committee.

Frank Convery and Eddie Wright of the Peterborough Baseball Club, requested that certain improvements be made to the Riverside Park stands and grounds. Ald. Turner and City Engineer Parnoa were instructed to make whatever repairs they considered necessary, including a cold shower bath in the dressing room. Twenty-five feet of the west fence that was blown down during the winter will be replaced, and arrangements were made for re-painting and white-washing. Mr. Convery intimates that negotiations were under way for erecting signs along the east side, but in any case that fence will be moved back, allowing a larger parking space for cars.

Officers of Brotherhood Tell Members Eyes of World on National Railways.

The presence of H. M. Hobson, supervisor of track, and thereby a representative of the management of the Canadian National Railways at the meeting of the Peterborough Lodge of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Wednesday night in the Labor Hall betokened the spirit of co-operation, good-will and harmony upon which, it was stated, the Canadian National lines could be operated successfully with their annual deficits wiped out.

Sixteen new members were initiated at the closed session which was preceded by a banquet at Hooper's, and followed by an open session, featured by addresses by W. V. Turnbull, of Verdun, P.Q., grand vice-president, and George H. Cummings, of Bryant's Pond, Maine, general chairman of the Canadian Brotherhood. Forty-five members were present from this district, including the branches from Peterborough to Port Hope, Bethany and Campbellford.

One of the decisions of the evening was the refusal to admit a woman representing the Workers' Party of Canada. The addresses emphasized the benefits of the Brotherhood to its members, recited the improvements that had been gained in the conditions of the trackmen, and in reference to the operations of the C. N. R., urged the fullest co-operation with the management to establish Canada's own railways on a sound, financial basis. Responsibility rested upon every employee to see that the work allotted him was thoroughly performed.

"The eyes of the world are on Canada right now," said one of the speakers. "We are being watched to see whether we are going to make a success of our lines or not. It can be done, and it is up to us to do our share. Remember these railways belong to the people. They belong to you, and it's up to you to make good."

Considerable attention was paid to the attempts of the so-called Workers' Party of Canada to get a footing in the ranks of organized labor; and the members of the Brotherhood were warned to be on their guard, especially to the easy, high-sounding promises tof those whose ideals are imported from the nest of Bolshevism. The freedom of the workers and of the entire population of this country was contrasted with comparative slavery and dictation imposed by the soviet leaders; the sufferings from years of famine, the economic and industrial chaos, the millions and millions of dollars spent by other nations in Russian Relief, thereby proving the real condition of the people; these were some of the actual conditions held up as fruits of the communism the Soviets would lay upon the whole world.

The members of the Brotherhood were adjured to stand fast by their own International in which their claims for a fair wage and happy living conditions could be realized.

HORSEMEN MUST

harnessed their "Sparkies," led them through and then lifted the "gigs" through sideways.

"The only way to keep them out, if they won't be reasonable," said one of the directors, "is to post up a trespass notice and then lay police court information against the first offender."

Others, however, pointed out that if the horse owners did not wish to be friendly they might be dispensed with at this year's Exhibition without any serious loss from the list of attractions. The new baseball diamond will be fit for games before September, it was stated, and a series of exhibition games or a league game or two might erase any memory of the accustomed "keep away from that pole horse" so long a seemingly indispensable echo of the fall Fair. It was also suggested that the purse money might be pooled and spent on a string of jumpers.

In any event the Directors decided unanimously that the gates of the Exhibition Park will be closed hereafter to the horse owners until they make some satisfactory arrangement with the directors in charge of the grounds for the use of the track for training purposes. And in arriving at that decision they stated that they would entertain no worries about any action the horsemen might take.

"The next move is up to Google," said a Director, otherwise they can work out on the highways, was the closing intimation.

FEEL LIKE MY OLD SELF

Hamilton salesman gains five pounds and feels stronger in every way since taking DRECO—Friends comment on his improved appearance—speaks highly of Dreco's benefits.

No occupation calls for a greater degree of physical well-being than that of a salesman. Above all others, he must feel and look well if he is to impress his customers favorably and make a success of his business. How much, therefore, does his welfare depend on the proper functioning of the digestive organs?

MR. A. A. BOURN

Mr. A. A. Bourn, of 93 Charles Street, Hamilton, was in a general run down condition until Dreco cured him off stomach, kidney and intestinal disorders that were rapidly impairing his earning powers.

"For some time," says Mr. Bourn, "I had been feeling terribly weak and run down. I completely lost my appetite and whatever I did eat would form gas, causing me to belch and bloat in a distressing way. My kidneys were so bad that I could hardly stoop, what with the terrible pains across my back and I had to constantly take a laxative. I have only taken two bottles of Dreco, but I have gained five pounds in weight and am feeling stronger in every way. My bowels are regular, I eat well and sleep soundly. All my friends remark on how much better I am looking. It is a pleasure indeed to recommend Dreco, for I am delighted with the benefits it has given me."

There is no need for any man or woman to suffer the miseries of indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, kidney trouble or a disordered liver. These, and all similar complaints, yield quickly to the natural toning and regulating influence of Dreco, the herb and root remedy that has won the heartfelt thanks and recommendation of thousands of Canadians, many of them right in and around Hamilton.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northy, and by a good druggist everywhere.

CLEVELAND, May 4.—Search for some means to make small, stunted boys and girls taller, as well as a comprehensive attempt to classify children for the work to which they are physically and mentally suited, is now being made by the Board of Education of this city.

A few of the questions which the investigation, under the direction of Dr. Bird T. Baldwin, psychologist of the University of Iowa, is expected to answer are:

At what age do children attain their complete physical growth.

What is the effect of physical condition on intelligence?

If a child's weight can be increased by diet, what can be done to increase his stature?

Every child in the five schools, a total of 3,500, is to be examined thoroughly, both physically and mentally. The physical examinations are already under way under the direction of Dr. L. W. Chinds, director of school health work in Cleveland, with school physicians, nurses and dentists co-operating. This investigation wil be followed by a health campaign to eliminate physical defects.

Actress of 60 Turned to 20 by Science

FANNIE WARD (ABOVE) AS SHE LOOKS TODAY AND (BELOW) AS SHE LOOKED WHEN A STAGE FAVORITE 25 YEARS AGO.

LONDON, May 4.—Science at last has reached the stage where it enables man to defy death!

It actually has succeeded in staying the chilling hand of old age which stiffens and twists the frame hardens the face, dims beauty and clouds the buoyant emotions of youth.

Conservative physicians in Europe today admit all that and they point to Fannie Ward, American actress, long resident in Europe, as a living proof.

Miss Ward is known to be in the neighborhood of 60 years old—she was a stage favorite more than a quarter of a century ago.

But today she presents the appearance of a woman of 20, on the threshold of life.

Menaced by Age

Miss Ward has not stayed young all her life. Old age began to creep up on her as it does on every living thing.

Wrinkles began to mar the beauty of her face. Her limbs began to lack the vigor of earlier days. Her interest in the life around her lessened. Her thoughts, like the thoughts of most elderly people, began to turn always to the past.

Miss Ward had almost resigned herself to letting youth slip by when she heard of the rejuvenation experiments of Professor Eugen Steinbach, Viennese biologist.

She submitted herself to the Steinach operation—an operation that is said to involve no risk to life or health.

Youth Comes Back

After the operation she found her body—and strangely enough, her mental processes—undergoing a marvelous change.

Her face regained color. Wrinkles vanished. Her contour became that of a young woman. Through her veins flowed life!

Her mind dwelt no more on the past. Instead, she looked ahead. Youthful emotions came back and with them the joy of living.

Today, she presents all the outward appearances of a woman 40 years her junior.

Physicians are keenly interested in the case. Steinach, inventor of the rejuvenation process, made his method known in 1913, but it has been rarely used.

Miss Ward's husband, Robert Deane, is as interested in rejuvenation methods as is his wife. He was one of the first men to undergo the injection of paraffin to remove wrinkles.

FAIR PROGRAMME ALREADY BOOKED

Big Attendance of Exhibition Directors Last Night.

Webber Turner's programme of attractions for this year's exhibition was accepted in its entirety by the Fair Directors last night. It includes as a special spectacle an airplane flight with three parachute drops from a height of 2,000 feet directly in front of the grand stand. The vaudeville acts also recommended themselves to the Board, and Mr. Turner also announced that he had booked a carnival show which he felt confident would keep its engagement. It has no concessions but only the amusement features of whip, ferris wheel and similar features.

The contract for the printing of the prize lists was let to the Examiner, whose tender was the lowest received.

Farmers are specially reminded of the field crop competition in fall wheat and oats. Entries must be in before May 24 and it is hoped that many of the farmers of this district will take part in this competition.

The request of a deputation from the Royal Black Preceptory for the use of the park on Civic Holiday, Monday, August 13th, for the celebration of the relief of Derry, was referred to the Grounds committee with power to act. It is expected that possibly 4,000 persons from the district will attend the celebration which, in Belleville last year, drew a crowd of between 2,500 and 3,000. The deputation was composed of George Porter Robert Manley and J. H. Spence.

The Board adopted the suggestion of W. R. Shields for a special competition in the swine class for youthful exhibitors between the ages of 10 and 18 years. Pigs clubs are fairly well organized throughout the district, and a prize of $100 with others in proportion is offered for the best carload of hogs shipped to Toronto from any of these clubs. Mr. Shields remarked that the hogs in this district were among the best in the province, and advised that the board offer ten prizes for the best pairs of hogs exhibited by young members of these clubs. This idea was unanimously endorsed, and the pens in the swine row at the Exhibition park will be extended during the summer for the larger number of exhibits which T. W. McIndoo was assured for this show.

Praise From Judge.

J. A. Cerswell, of Beeton, Ont., replying to T. W. McIndoo's letter conveying the Board's appreciation of his services as a judge last year wrote: "Peterborough had one of the best exhibitions in sheep last fall that I have seen in three years' judging with the Department. I may also say that your exhibition all through is a model for others to try and copy."

Mr. Cerswell expressed a wish to return to Peterborough this year.

Extend Poultry Building.

The grounds committee was instructed to extend the poultry building, which will be practically doubled in size.

Last night's attendance of members was almost one hundred per cent. There were several absentees, but the crowd in the Board room of the Chamber of Commerce looked so much like a full house and a complete roster that one might have expected Reg Turner to have started that robust paean and ancient chantey, "Hail, hail the Gang's All Here" without any deletions or a diminuendo on the last line.

The men were convicted of bribery and corruption on April 14, and were put to death by a firing squad on Wednesday night.

GYM. EXHIBIT OF INTEREST

Boys at Y. M. C. A. Excelled Themselves in Athletic Skill and Training Last Night.

"That's the sort of thing that develops courage and self-confidence in growing boys, as well as bodily strength, and you want plenty of self confidence to get through life," was the remark of one gentleman who watched the boys of the Y.M.C.A. in their swift-moving, interesting exhibition last evening in the 'gym' of the Young Mens' Christian Association.

The un-self-conscious attitude of the boys, the confidence with which they displayed their athletic skill and training, the ease with which they executed difficult exercises, was an eloquent tribute to good training and manifest enjoyment by the boys themselves of opportunities for physical development.

The exhibition took the form of a circus, with a group of clowns, led by Gordon Manning, caricaturing the efforts of the performers and providing laughs with their capers and funny antics, making an entertaining background for the physical exercises and drills. "Happy" O'Toole was the red and green suited darky, who did a languid shuffle and generally added pep to the show.

The flying rings and paralleled bars the games and the lantern drill were especially good. Skill, ease and confidence were manifest in the difficult manipulations of the Seniors on the flying rings, with Howard Young reaching the ceiling in one breath-taking curve. In this exercise, as in the quick, active use by the Seniors of the paralleled bars and the high bar, Gordon Pogue, the youngest of the class, and one of its latest beginners, was noticeable for athletic ability. In the tumbling by the Junior School, in which some of the playful clowns distinguished themselves by their 'wire spring' somersaults, two specially long dives over nine intervening forms were made by Howard Young and Russell Pogue.

Nimble and Quick

Side horse drill, nimble, quick, was another contribution of the Junior class, while the Beginners had a jolly series of games, 'skinning the snake' 'passing the ball,' 'over and under,' relay running and walking.

The lantern drill, with lights off, each boy carrying an illuminated colored lantern, was particularly pleasing. The graceful manoeuvres of the drill, which became a hollow square, a star, or an entwining cocoon of green and red lights, were greeted with applause.

The young, straight backed, firm-footed figures in their 'gym' suits, muscles standing out on tanned shoulders, gave place to calico aprons and sunbonnets, red ties and hitched-up trousers, in the barn dance of the junior school, with its jolly rythm.

The intermediates and seniors gave the 'elphant,' and a gingham drill, the latter a flag number, costumed in gingham dresses and straw hats.

The Grand March

The opening grand march brought in the entire seventy-five or more boys, from the ten-year olds to the seniors, who took part in the exhibition.

Douglas Loomis, who supervised the entire exhibition, has the training of the various classes, with the exception of the juniors, who are in charge of Fred McNeeley.

Accompanist for the lantern drill and the barn dance was Arthur Townsend, the balance of piano music being supplied by M. Todd, one of the Normal School students.

The Gymnasium circus and exhibition will be repeated this evening.

Report of Special Committee on Universities Was Tabled in the House Yesterday.

TORONTO, May 4.— (Canadian Press.)—The report of the special committee of the Legislature on universities and on the University of Toronto was tabled in the House yesterday. It finds that the relationship between the university proper and the federated colleges is eminently satisfactory and that it should not be disturbed. It is recommended that the present method of financing be continued.

Other recommendations as made in the report follow: That plans for new buildings and alterations be subject to approval by the Senate before acceptance by the Board of Governors; that the department of education provide throughout the province facilities for taking first year university work in High Schools and Collegiates; that generous provision be made for the furtherance of the efforts of those engaged in scientific research; that the city of Toronto contribute towards the support of the university; that the Minister of Education be not a member of the Board of Governors; that the Federated Alumni Association of the University be entitled to elect eight representatives of a total of 24 to the board of governors; that the question of permitting representation in the Legislature to the University be given earnest consideration by the government; re Toronto General Hospital, that the reorganizations in medicine and surgery 1919 and 1920 be referred back to the proper authorities for consideration; that the method of removing certain doctors from the staff was unfortunate; that a new agreement regarding hospital appointments be entered into by the University and the hospital; that hospitals receiving government aid guarantee against the practice of "fee splitting" by doctors practising therein; that an effort be made to devise a means whereby doctors not on the university staff may have access to the public wards of the hospital.

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

STOCKS HAMMERED.

NEW YORK, May 4.— (United Press.) — Professionals hammered stocks again to-day and succeeded in depressing prices on the New York Stock Exchange. United States' Steel Common was at a new low for the year, 101 3-8, while Stewart-Warner was off nearly five points. Nearly all sections of the market suffered. Further adjustment of impaired accounts resulted in considerable irregularity in the first hour trading, but selling pressure tightened before 11 a.m. and the general list showed a better tone. Impressive support was given to certain stocks controlled by large interests. This was true to United States' Steel, General Electric, Copper issues including Utah, Kennecott and Magna, General Motors and Sinclair. Standard Oil fact gave rise to reports that Morgan and Standard Oil interests were working on the constructive side of the market. Another outburst of selling after 11 a.m. carried Steel Common to a further new low for the year at 101 3-4 and resulted in general recessions throughout the list. With a few exceptions stocks in both the Industrial and Rail groups lost additional ground. Bears used U.S.A. background for this drive, the fact that reserve statements for this week showed an increase in rediscounted paper, with ratios at slightly lower levels, the systems ratio this week is 75.2 per cent against 77 a week ago, wholesale margin calls were sent out following the further drastic decline in the session yesterday and heavy liquidation took place in the early dealings for the account of traders who were unwilling or unable to furnish additional protection. Stewart-Warner was one of the weakest features, dropping to 99 1-2, a loss of more than 20 points since last Saturday. Consolidated Gas also reached a new low on the movement, breaking to 63 1-2 on the news that the $1 gas bill had been reported out of committee. In the face of urgent selling, Studebaker, Baldwin, Standard of California and several other speculative leaders were steady.

SAYS EAST MUST

freight rates. He regretted that our Government Railways have apparently been part and parcel of the Lake and Ocean combine which seeks to deprive the farmer in the West of his hard earned success.

The fiscal policy of Canada began with the avowed policy of building up an industrial country. In the West the people need relief from the tariff exactions. They must pay the tariff on all implements, and they get no protection. They must meet the handicap of paying a high tariff exaction on their supplies but must meet the American farmer in open market cometition. At the time the fiscal policy of Canada was adopted the West was a wilderness. "Times have changed," the speaker said, "and some special consideration must be given to the primary producer."

Two Great Divisions.

Canada's problem is a geographical problem. There are two great geographical divisions. In the United States there is no sharply drawn dividing line, but the industrial East merges gradually into the farming West. In Canada there is no middle west. The two are separated by a thousand miles of wilderness, forming a great obstacle to national unity. The French Canadian problem, in the opinion of the speaker, is not Canada's great problem. It is East versus West. There is also this additional problem: In 1915 thirty-seven per cent. of the people of Western Canada were of alien birth. Many of these people have little interest in Eastern Canada and therein lies the chief danger of the situation. It is time, said Captain Shaw, and now is the opportunity for men of courage to get together and realize that super-imposed on the unfortunate geographical problem is the foreign problem; and they should try to get the viewpoint of the other part of Canada. The people of Canada were united in suffering during the war, and see no reason why we should not make a greater effort if necessary in the cause of Canadianism."

The speaker concluded by paying tribute to the great opportunity we have as Canadians, referring to the vastness of our resources, and urging that every man play his part that Cnaad may achieve her destiny and be of service to the world.

Kiwanian James Rollins acted as chairman, and the booster of the day was Kiwanian Vern Morphet, who in his one minute speech told of the extent of the work of the Quaker Oats Co.

Orchestra Congratulations

The congratulations of the club were extended to Rupert Gliddon, a guest, to-day, who conducted the orchestra which won first honors in competition in Toronto. In replying Mr. Gliddon referred to the splendid achievements of Miss Agnes Logan, in winning first prizes in five different classes. One of the ajudicators, E. Granville Bantock, remarked that Miss Logan's playing style reminded him of Rubenstein's. In a class open to all of Canada, Miss Logan obtained 95 points.

The Kiwanis Club will meet Miss Logan on her arrival at the C. P. R. station on Monday.

Six Little Visitors.

Six little boys from the Children's Shelter were the happy guests of the club, and enjoyed their experience to the full under the fatherly care of Roy H Parsons, who devoted himself specially to their service.

Two new members were received into the club, receiving a royal welcome. They were Jack Jeffries and Wilfrid Huycke.

A party of Kiwanians will help in the inauguration the new Belleville Club on June 16.

Visitors at to-day's luncheon were Captain A. T. Shaw, K.C., M.P., of Calgary, Magistrate A. O. Langley, Rotarian Douglas Lawrie, Dr. Harold Young, dentist; Reg. Turner, V. J. McElderry and Rupert Gliddon, all of Peterboro; and Laurie Stark, of Toronto.

THE CHILDREN'S AID CORRECTS STATEMENT

The Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society would like to correct a statement regarding the disposition of the children from the Shelter after Wednesday evening's fire. The published report credited Mrs. J. Kendry and Mrs. Walter Belleghem with looking after twelve of the little ones. The ladies of the Board state that Mrs. Herbert Kendry, Dennistoun avenue, has taken eight of the children, while the rest of the little ones are being looked after by Mrs. G. W. Powell, Mrs. J. S. Fanning and Mrs. Darcy.

The Board of Management wish to record their gratitude to Mr. John Rowe, a neighbour of the Shelter, who did such good work in helping to keep down the fire by using the institution's hose, before the fire department arrived.

IN MEMORIAM

REW.—In loving memory of Henry George (Harry), dearly beloved husband of Gladys M. Cole, and youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Rew, 65 Crescent Street, who died 4th May, 1922, aged 22 years 7 months.

In health and strength he left his home,
Not thinking death so near.
It pleased the Lord to bid him come,
And in His sight appear.
'Twas hard to part with one we loved,
But wait for us with God above.
—Sadly missed by Wife and Parents, Sisters and Brothers.

LEE. — In loving memory of our little son, Howard Lee, aged 3 years 6 months, who died 4th May, 1922.

Our darling little Howard,
The idol of our home,
Has left his little cot
To rejoice on the Lord's great throne.

The tiny voice is silent,
That he loved so dear,
The little chair is vacant
Tha he loved so dear.

The patient, little darling
Bore all his pains so brave,
And now he is so peaceful
In the cold and silent grave.

The little arms no longer will Embrace the loved ones here
But cling to God above until
He calls his parents dear.

The little head that weary was
Is resting on His breast
Who always has His own good cause
To call us to peace and rest.
—Father and Mother, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lee, Auburn.

The open evening held by the King George Home and School Association of Ashburnham in the school hall last evening was attended by a large crowd of parents and friends who filled the hall. Mr. Leo Copp, second vice principal of the school, occupied the chair, and opened proceedings with a brief speech. A very enjoyable musical programme was given, as follows:

Vocal solo, Miss Florence Harrison, accompanied by Miss Margaret Flowers; impersonation of Harry Lauder, Mr. Robt. Hendry, which met with hearty response; Highland Fling dance Jean King, Minnie Ebbs and Hilda Adams; piano and violin duet, Margaret and Roy Rome; Sailors' hornpipe, (in costume), Evelyn Armstrong and Margaret McCulloch; gypsy dance, (encored), Gertrude Gimblett and Irene Cale, accompanied by Gwen Donley.

And His Merry Robbers with

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

AS THE BANDIT CHIEF

"Robin Hood" is coming to Peterborough for One Week, beginning Monday, May 7th. Of course, it will be shown at the Capitol where the foremost attractions are presented.

This gorgeous spectacle has been booked by The Famous Players Canadian Corporation, at an exhibition price that would almost stagger those unfamiliar with the buying of motion pictures for Peterborough.

In the larger cities of the United States, "Robin Hood" is now being shown in the so-called legitimate theatres at admission prices of $2.00 and more for all seats.

The Capitol Management have advanced admission prices on very rare occasions, but in order to secure this magnificent production and to give the public a chance to see it at reasonable prices, instead of paying $2.00, Mr. Fairbanks has agreed, to allow us to present it at the following prices:

EVENING & Saturday Matinee	35c, Balcony	50c, Orchestra	65c, Chairs	25c Children
MATINEE Monday to Friday	35c Adults	25c Children	TAX INCLUDED
Children's Matinee	Wednesday 4.15 p.m. Saturday 10.00 a.m.		15c Children	35c Adults

The Management of the Capitol desires to announce that "Robin Hood" will be the most important offering of the current season—and probably the finest entertainment to be presented in Peterborough for years to come, unless some new discovery in the amusement world makes possible a greater attraction.

MEET EUROPEAN LEADERS IN SCIENCE OF MEDICINE

Canadian Press. — Just before Legislature reset at 6 o'clock last night, Premier Drury tabled a report of the special committee, considering a bill to provide recognition for Dr. Banting and C. H. THEATRES

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS IN "ROBIN HOOD" ACHIEVES GENUINE WORK OF ART.

Among the many famous figures of song and story who stand out in the record of mediaeval England, none is so luminous in the qualities of romance as that of Robin Hood. Looking down the dim centuries, the heroic and mysterious forest chieftain and his lovely sweetheart, Maid Marian, still live in the imagination of to-day. Time and the vagrant ways of fiction have surrounded them with perfect halo of thrilling adventure, lent them innumerable dignities, and made them the centre of a dozen lost causes. What more appealing, therefore, than Robin Hood and his gallant band of Sherwood Forest as the subject for a romance of the silver screen?

Douglas Fairbanks chose his subject well. The story told upon the screen, moreover, is an ingenious and unceasingly attractive combination of various romantic incidents which have been associated with the name of Robin Hood. It accepts the legend which held him to be the Earl of Huntingdon, returned from the Crusade and assuming the disguise of a forest bandit in order to checkmate the schemes of the usurper, Prince John, brother of Richard Coeur de Lion. Maid Marian is the Lady Marian of King Richard's Court. Guy of Gisbourne is the villain behind whom stands the sinister figure of the covetous and evil. John King himself, a great, bluff, hearty figure, holds Huntingdon close to his heart, but is led through Gisbourne's treachery to believe him unfaithful, when he seeks leave to return to England. Prince John pursues his wicked ways, and plans the death of Lady Marian, but Robin Hood and his merrie men, with whom is the mysterious knight later revealed as Richard comes home to rescue her. Summary justice is meted out to the evildoers, and the story ends on a note of pure romance — Robin and Marian in the great bridal chamber of Nottingham Castle, with the moonlight flooding in through the open casement, and a jocularly irate monarch knocking in vain at their door.

Fairbanks himself in the role of the redoubtable Robin succeeds in conveying a sharp sense of a high-spirited, indomitable personality, whose mettle nothing can crush, whose luck is unfailing, and whose daring and heroism meet infallible rich reward. His actual physical action throughout the picture is in itself something to astound, and when he accomplishes such feats as compel one's sober judgment to stamp as incredible, the illusion is so wonderful that judgment and the evidence of the eye are utterly at variance again and again. His acting is by far the best he has ever accomplished for the screen. He literally lives the part from beginning to end.

Anyone who is in search of a bran new film love would do well to visit the Capitol this week, and become infatuated with Oscar. There are few of the real, bona fide romantic heroes of the silver sheet who are as interesting as Oscar, with his cheerful demeanor, his almost human cleverness and his funny look. With an appearance of dancing along through most of his scenes, and an air of thorough enjoyment, Oscar, the grey elephant who is really the star of "The Soul of the Brute," couldn't fail to win the affections of any audience. To see him peer with one huge eye through a small window, in search of a full beer-glass to follow the drink he has just tossed off, to watch him respond to the caresses of his small mistress and drench the villain properly through a huge spraying trunk, is enough to make anyone pay a repeat visit just to watch the sagacious animal. A novel and decidedly entertaining twist is given to a very interesting production by the inclusion of the elephant in the picture. Ruth, played by Madge Bellamy, is the dainty, appealing star of a swift-moving feature, with splendid photography in its clearly-lit scenes, and Paul, the lame young fiddler, playing in the tavern to maintain himself and his pet, Napoleon, the white rabbit, is the hero. The two helpless young things are pursued by Hamm, the circus owner, and Caesare, the bullying French-Canadian. In a final desperate flight, the lame Paul and the bully engage in a desperate knife duel, and just here is where Oscar scores heavily.

With its Canadian outdoor scenes, its pretty, elusive romance and virile action, and its huge grey star performer, "The Soul of the Brute" is one of the most attractive pictures seen here in some time.

The Capitol Theatre was crowded last evening with an extremely appreciative audience, who cheered Oscar and laughed at Charlie Chaplin to their hearts' content.

Written by Chaplin himself, "The Pilgrim" is one of the funniest things he has ever appeared in. Without so much of the slap-stick brand of fun, it teems with the sort of unconscious humor that tickles the imagination of spectators, and keeps them chuckling from start to finish.

As a runaway convict who wears a clergyman's garb, Charlie is mistaken on his arrival in Devil's Gulch for Rev. Mr. Pim, the new clergyman. In his usual inimitable style, he goes through a Sunday morning service, his mind confused by the juror-like appearance of the "twelve good men and true" in the choir and the associations surrounding the sight of the "Book." In true form, he preaches to an astounded congregation on "David and Goliath," and pursues the tall deacon with the money-box. At his boarding-house, later, he becomes involved with a demon child, and a derby hat, which transforms itself into a pudding. His spooning in the moonlight is rudely interrupted when a former jail-pal of his drops in to visit his hosts. Charlie succeeds, after much exertion, in foiling the plans of his former 'buddy,' and the finale has a real Chaplinesque touch.

Just to add a bit more to an especially good double programme is the "heavy drama in light mud," illustrating the "turning" of the worm."

AT THE ROYAL.

For thrills, both melodramatic and emotional, there has not been a motion picture production made in years that can compare with "Brawn of the North," the second Laurence Trimble-Jane Murfin production starring Strongheart, the wonder dog, which opened yesterday at the Royal Theatre for a stay of three days.

Brawn is a dog owned by Marion Wells who goes to the north country to aid her brother and fiance to develop a mine. The wild country has exposed her fiance for what he really it —a petty souled rascal— and a fight ensues from Marion's refusal to marry him, in which the brother is killed and the fiance is drowned as far as Marion knows. But he comes back and Brawn evens the score for the brother's death, and later when Marion is happily married to the hero the dog rescues her baby from a pack of starving wolves.

And the wolves are really there — more than a dozen of the gaunt beasts that live up to the reputation of being sharks of the wooded country. The way in which they play their part in the vital drama is a tribute to the genius of Mr. Trimble in getting animals to do exactly what is required to give a story genuine entertainment value.

There is also another round of the new "Leather Pushers," with good fight scenes and the usual quota of laughs, a thrilling chapter of the serial, "The Radio King," and a Campbell comedy in which a cast of kiddies and animals provide lots of amusement.

AT THE GRAND.

The Grand opened last evening with two great stars in two great pictures, Norma Talmadge in "Love's Redemption," and Priscilla Dean in "Under Two Flags."

The scenario for Miss Talmadge's picture was made from Andrew Soutar's story, "On Principle," and never before has she had a role to surpass this, the quaint characterization of Ginger, the girl of Jamaica Island, who finds life's solace in a man's reformation. Harrison Ford makes every opportunity count as leading man and Montagu Love is a thoroughly acceptable villain.

"Under Two Flags" is an excellent picturization of the famous novel of the same name. The scene is laid in French North Africa amid picturesque surroundings and the action moves with dash. Miss Dean gives a wonderful portrayal of the unique character of Cigarette, "daughter of the regiment."

ST. JOHN ISOLATED

ST. JOHN, N.B., May 4.—(Canadian Press).—River continues to rise at the North End of St. John and last night was eighteen inches higher than on Wednesday. The whole of the water front was submerged with motor and rowboats in the streets. The town is practically isolated and no trains left here all day.

U. F. O. LEAGUE HAS BEEN REORGANIZED

First Meeting of the East Peterboro League Held Last Evening—Officers Were Elected.

The re-organization meeting of the East Peterborough Baseball League was held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms and while there were representatives present from only two teams, it was decided to go ahead and to endeavor to get at least two more teams to enter. Officers of the league have already one or more teams in sight and expect to operate a four team league. Owing to the fact that these new teams may not be confined entirely to East Peterborough it may be necessary to make some slight changes in the constitution of the league before going ahead with the season's schedule.

Steps are being taken in this direction and a special meeting will be held on Tuesday evening at which final action will be decided upon and the schedule drawn up.

The officers elected last evening were:

President, J. J. Howden, of Otonabee; Vice-President, C. S. Tanner, of Lakefield; Second Vice-President, E. H. Barnes, of Keene; Secretary, Charles Curtis.

The meeting passed a hearty vote of thanks for the efficient manner in which the officers of last year had carried on the work of the league.

HECKMAN WILL START AGAINST LEASIDE TEAM

Peterboro's Right-Hander Will Be Opposed By Lefty Maguire in First Game of the Season.

BIG CROWD LIKELY.

"Batteries for Leaside, Maguire and Hoose; for the home team, Heckman and Swanston." With that announcement from Umpire Alex Kay the local baseball season will be ushered in tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the Leaside team of the Western section of the Central League will clash with the Petes at Riverside Park.

With fine weather the indications point to an unusually large opening day attendance and the fans should see a snappy ball game as each team is out to prove its own section of the League is the best and they will battle their prettiest for a win.

The game will afford a good line on the teams and will also provide a fine opportunity for trying out all the new material which both clubs have on hand. Leaside and the Petes will each introduce some new players for the approval of the fans and the game is of special interest on that account.

Both clubs have been hard at work getting into shape and tomorrow's game will be battled out as if the championship were at stake.

Mick Murray will of course be here with the Leaside team who will arrive at noon tomorrow with their whole string of players, including a couple of new pitchers, who are counted upon to be a big help to "Lefty" Maguire the Leaside southpaw ace who will in all probability start tomorrow's game against the Petes.

Manager Solomon has not yet definitely announced his line up but it is likely the whole squad he has signed will get an opportunity to show their wares tomorrow.

The following squad are asked to be out at 2 o'clock sharp:

Swanston, Heckman, Summerfeldt, Comolli, Harrison, Johnston, Ansaldo, Collins, Helson, Legon, Wolfe, Lowe, McElroy, McNeeley, Solomon.

"What is the height of happiness?" mused the philosophical girl.

"Well, in my case," laughed the pretty bride, "he is about five feet ten."

BELMONTS STILL RETAIN THE LEAD

Heavy Hitting Defeated the Rangers Last Evening.

By trimming the Rangers to the tune of 27 to 6 the Belmonts last night maintained their place at the top of the league in the Club section. The Gunners are now the only team having a chance to get on even terms for first and they have a stiff game to play when they meet the Firecmn on Saturday.

There was never any doubt of the outcome of the game last evening. The Belmonts scored practically at will, sending eight across the pan in the first inning and following that up with five in the second and nine in the third. Heavy hitting was responsible for all the runs for the Belmonts took nicely to Calladine's offerings and walloped the ball to all corners o the Armoury. A little closer fielding would have cut off many of the hits, but even at that the Belmonts had a big margin of the play. Jobbitt was particularly effective with the willow and scored five times in six trips to bat.

The players were:
Belmonts—Jobbitt, 3b; Stuart, 2b; Heckman, lf; Lowe, 1b; Haskill, c; Hollyman, p; Batten, ss; Thompson, ss; Fanning, rf.
Rangers—Calladine, p; Shelvin, ss; Dwyer, lf; Grant, 1b; Hensby, 2b; R. Dwyer, rf; Hamblin, c; Thomas, 3b; Varty, ss.

HASTINGS SPORTS.

HASTINGS, May 4.—New sweaters for the intermediate lacrosse team have arrived and are on exhibition in F. W. Hawkins drug store window.

These are the gift of one of the team's supporters, Mr. J. J. Mastinson. The colors are cardinal and green with the letter "H" in the the centre. They are made of the best material and the team is indeed grateful for the generous gift from Mr. Masterson.

Besides playing lacrosse with the Beaches lacrosse team Stan Stevenson is billed to play for the Leaside Central League ball team and will accompany the boys to Peterboro Saturday.

Oshawa Is Strong For Canada's Game.

OSHAWA, May 14.—(Special)—Gossip has it that the local lacrosse intermediate are to be well grouped this season with the following teams Hamilton, Maitlands and Danforths of Toronto, Leaside, Todmorden and Oshawa. A number of gutted stick artists were out at the park last evening having a preliminary gallop while later on "Posie" Ellis was seen sorting out the intermediate and junior slips for the boys to attach their autographs. It looks like a come back for Canada's national game in the motor town.

BELLEVILLE MAY BE OBJECT OF DEMANDS FOR HOUSE CLEANING

Lindsay Calling For a "Cleanup" in the Central Ontario Circuit After Losing Two Players.

PETERBORO O.K.

The following "howl" is clipped from a Lindsay paper and as usual the scribe had to indulge in a few shrieks about Jake Solomon, manager of Peterboro's baseball hopes. It seems as if the baseball writers throughout the Central League Circuit have poor Jake ticketed as the man to take a slam at when they can't think of anything else to do.

Lindsay's trouble is not Peterboro, it is Belleville and most of the fans throughout the circuit know it. The threats to "Clean up" the league means nothing to Peterboro in spite of the broad insinuations indulged in by some of our contemporary papers. President Dedman knows as well as any one that the players on the Peterboro team are perfectly O.K. and that amateur cards will be forthcoming in due time and in perfect order.

Lindsay's idea in yelling for a clean up is very evidently to catch Oulette and Brownscombe who are living in Belleville and expect to play in the 'Big Four" section of the Central circuit. These boys were both living in Belleville before January 1 and so qualify under the O.B.A.A. residence rule. Lindsay will miss them, so badly, therefore the "clean up" is demanded.

In the past two or three years conditions have developed to a point where any person who deigns to even look at a baseball and has occasion to move from one town to another is accused of all manner of professionalism. His erstwhile team mates demand vociferously that he be investigated forthwith. If he had even borrowed a postage stamp it would be construed as a heinous crime and some sore head would demand that he be deprived of his amateur standing forthwith.

Will there be a regular house cleaning in the Central League this season?

Will President Dedman run the vaccuum?

Whisperings from the President's office on Kent street would indicate that something is going to happen, and happen soon. He has intimated that not a single player in the Central League will receive a certificate until he has also secured his amateur cards. Last year these cards were secured quite easily, but from indications they will not be so easily trotted through this season.

It looks as if Jake Solomon, the 2nd Vice President of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association who has lined up a squad of players in Peterboro that resembles the New York Giants on their training trip, and who has thus compelled other teams in the League to sit back on their haunches and forced them to resort to strictly home-brews, must clean up his own quarters first. Jake will have to have everything in "apple pie" order this season. But then those who know Jake also know his ability to do many things.

Belleville, Cobourg, Oshawa and Kingston will no doubt experience difficulty in getting cards for some of their players.

President Dedman is taking the stand that if the fans in the Central League want amateur baseball, and that is what they have been demanding, then he is going to do his best to give the fans what they want, regardless of where the axe falls. If the imports in various places can take their affidavits, all well and good.

So far so good, but while we would like to see conditions straightened out in the Central League, we are doubtful if conditions in this League are any different than in Toronto League or in the western Ontario Leagues, or the Niagara League. If there is to be a house-cleaning in this League there should be in the other Leagues as well. Why weaken one League, and lessen its chances to win the championship of Ontario while allowing other leagues to carry on in a somewhat wholesale manner?

There is a rule in the Central League which prevents any player wandering from one club in the League to another in the same League without first giving reasons to the home club and to the Executive. Why should not the City of Toronto, for instance, be treated as one League, and all players moving from one of the many leagues in the city to another league in the city secure proper releases before doing so.

House-cleaning is all right, but it should extend to all the Leagues, and it should start from headquarters, namely the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. They should not issue amateur cards bolus without investigating. They have a permanent paid secretary and other officials who are naturally expected to make an effort along this line.

TO SIGN TO-DAY.

CHICAGO, May 4 (Canadian Press). — Articles closing the agreement for the fifteen-round battle between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons, at Shelby, Montana, on 4th July, will not be signed until to-day, it was announced late yesterday.

The postponement was due to a protracted discussion of the referee question, the promoters having been unable to agree as to the third man in the ring.

Some Fast Games For Softballers

Victories for the Belmonts and Gunners last evening left these two teams to fight it out for first place in the club section. The Belmonts now hold first place while the Gunners still have a tie game with the Firemen to play off. This game will be staged on Saturday evening and should the Gunners win they will play off with the Belmonts on Monday for the Club section championship. If the Firemen are the victors it will mean that the Belmonts win the title.

The winners of the Club section will play off with the Woollens, champions of the factory section, on Wednesday and Friday evenings. If a third game is necessary it will be probably played on Saturday.

OSHAWA SOFTBALL WINNERS COMING

Will Play Picked C. G. E. Team at Armouries on Saturday Night.

A picked team from the C.G.E. soft ball teams will play the Oshawa town league winners at the armouries on Saturday night beginning at 7 o'clock. The visitors are reported to have a crack pitcher, and their line up includes several former Peterboro boys. The C.G.E. nine will be selected from the Engineers and Tool room teams. This should be one of the best indoor games of the season, and the C.G.E. are expecting a big turnout.

ROTARY PUT OUT BY THE GUNNERS

Defeat Last Night Put Rotary Out of Running For Section Honors.

Rotary followed Kiwanis into oblivion as far as the leadership of the Club section of the Soft ball league was concerned when the Cog Wheelers went down to defeat before the attack of the Machine Gunners last evening. The score was 8 to 1 but the game was much better and faster than the score indicates. Piercy and Matthews were both in good shape though the Gunners hit Matthews offerings freely on occasions. Wolff was the most successful with the war club. He collected four hits with a homer, three bagger, two bagger and a single. Doughty got the only other really good wallop which went for two sacks.

The Rotarians scored their only run in the first inning when MacDonald completed the circuit, but from then on were shut out. Air tight fielding on the part of the Gunners was what kept them in check. The Gunners also showed their greatest strength at the start of the game, getting six of their runs in the first three frames, but were held pretty well in check from then on.

Piercy and Mathews both had four strike outs and neither issued a single pass.

The players were:
Gunners—Ranger, c; Coursey, 1b; Wolff, 2b; Dundas, ss; Doughty, 3b; Galvin, ss; Piercy, p; Simmons, rf; Gilders, lf.
Rotary—McPherson, ss; MacDonald, 3b; Mathews, p; Young, 1b; Graham, c; Dobbin, lf; Primeau, 2b; McHardy, ss; Laurte, rf.
Score by innings:

LINDSAY SOFTBALL LOST TO THE PETES

Two C.N.R. Teams Met in One of the Fastest and Best Games of Season—Score Was 2 to 1.

The Peterboro C.N.R. soft ball team again demonstrated a superiority over the Lindsay railroaders in a clash at the Armouries on Wednesday evening.

The game, which was one of the closest contests of the season, resulted in a 2 to 1 score for the home team in nine innings which took only 35 minutes to play.

Orr pitched a steady game for the visitors. He was hit hard, but received airtight support. Delahaye for the locals pitched his first game as a member of the team, and held the visitors to three scattered hits. His pitching was the big factor in deciding the game for the Peterboro boys, and with him behind the ball there is no doubt that the team will make a good showing in future games.

The players were:
Lindsay—Fee, 1b; Dovey, ss; Williams, 2b; Bryans, c; McMahon, 3b; Slater, lf; Orr, p; Heels, rf; Hutton, ss.
Peterboro—Corneil, 1b; Rundle, ss; Morden, 2b; A. Delahaye, c; Miller, 3b; Houlihan, lf; H. Delahaye, p; Tripp, rf; Boyd, ss.

The players express their thanks to A. Kay for acting as umpire.

The Raybestos City League team will practice at Riverside Park immediately after the Leaside-Peterboro game tomorrow afternoon. All Raybestos players are asked to be out.

PERSONALITY OF OWNERS DRAWS FANS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, May 4 (United Press). —Baseball club owners, by tradition and practice, are supposed to be only club owners. It is their function to talk gate receipts all summer and wag their tongues all winter in political battles designed to keep the game in print.

It is seldom that the personality of a magnate injects itself so into the team that is an asset and a drawing card. The personality of Charley Comiskey was always an asset for the Chicago White Sox until the "Old Roman" became disgusted with star chamber politics and practically retired.

Star players are the biggest factors, of course, in drawing crowds into the parks. Millions have been packed into stands to see Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, George Sisler, Rogers Hornsby and Christy Mathewson, and the same millions would have paid in their money even if it did go into the hands of an intensely unpopular club owner.

Babe Ruth, beyond all doubt, is the biggest asset the New York Yanks possess and, for that matter, he is baseball's greatest drawing card. The ability of the great Swat King to draw in customers on the road has meant almost as much prosperity to the other American League clubs as it has to the Yanks, considering the difference in the size of the parks.

The personality of the Yankee team is not confined, however, to Ruth. The popularity of Colonel T. L. Huston and Jacob Ruppert, the two club owners, has been no small factor in raising the Yanks up to the biggest thing in baseball.

In the comment that was aroused over the dedication of the new Yankee stadium, the finest sport structure in the world, when 74,200 fans saw the game and 15,000 were turned away, it was remarked on all sides:

"Those colonels surely deserve it."

No figures are available, but nothing can be recalled to refute the statement that no such support and commendation have been volunteered by the general run of fans to any other club owners.

In addition to being citizens and sportsmen of the very highest type, the two colonels are big chance takers and if anything appeals to the New Yorker it is a game gambler who plays big stakes on a tough bet and gets away with it.

It has been frequently related how Ruppert and Huston paid $400,000 in 1915 for a team that had nothing more than nine men to put on the field as a technical qualification for a team. It has been told how wise business men hinted that the colonels had "gone loose" when they paid $150,000 for Babe Ruth. The echo has not yet died out of the wise guys' wail that they were dippy when they started to build a two-million dollar stadium that would seat 70,000.

Practically every move taken by the Yankee club owners has been a big gamble on the surface, but back of it was a shrewd business head that was prying three years ahead of their fellow magnates into the future. They won because they felt confident in their judgment and they were game enough to go ahead.

Hardly had the vast multitudes of fans trickled in the gathering dusk after the opening game when the colonels announced they would have plans drawn to increase the capacity of the park another 10,000.

Then, for the first time, they heard the verdict that they were right.

Ruppert and Huston have done other things for baseball. Their generosity and their consideration for the comfort and convenience of their fans have done much to remove the taint of commercialism from the game, because New Yorkers know that they are not in baseball primarily for the money as both of them are immensely wealthy and have big business interests outside of baseball.

The Yank colonels also brought baseball out of the secrets of the meeting rooms and they fought the politics that ended Comisky's regime until it has been almost entirely eliminated.

What satisfaction they got out of baseball was expressed by Colonel Ruppert when he and his partner were entertaining after the dedication of the new stadium.

"I am in baseball for the associations and the friends I have made."

CAN AN AMATEUR BE COMPENSATED?

Decision of Olympic Committee Has Only Been a Temporary Settlement.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, May 4 (United Press). —Some astonishment resulted at the last session of the International Olympic Congress in Rome when the delegates from Sweden suggested that it was ready to discuss some means of compensating amateur athletes for the time they lost in competing in big meets.

The suggestion was followed with horror among some of the other delegations and in the characteristic fashion of most of the sport governing bodies in avoiding big new problems, it was decided that each nation could draw its own definitions of amateurism.

The problem, being thus disposed of, will be settled only temporarily, as there is bound to be a lot of complaint if Sweden should decide that it is not improper to compensate an athlete, and her paid athletes should some time be called upon to meet representatives of other nations of contrary belief.

It seems that some equitable basis should be found upon which an amateur athlete could get some remunerative reward for the time and trouble spent in developing his talents.

It is only fair that an athlete who is called upon to leave his work for a week or more should be compensated in the sum that he would have earned if he had remained in the pursuit of his method of livelihood.

The present system of allowing the athlete only his actual expenses only encourages a little "cheating" on the side, whereas the above plan might serve to remove all temptations.

Beyond whatever glory there is in it, the young athlete gets nothing for the time that he might better spend in advancing himself in a professional or commercial business and whatever glory he does acquire is short-lived, unless he is of such exceptional ability that he can establish a record of long standing.

Most of the amateur athletes cherish their status as an amateur, and many times in the face of great temptations. Charley Paddock, for instance, was offered $30,000 recently to engage in a three-weeks' series of races on a circuit in California. He declined.

The sprint king has received numerous other offers in the past to engage in professional work, and he might have earned $100,000 for such services if he had chosen to leave the amateur ranks.

Considering that the gate receipts for big meets run into large sums of money annually, it does not seem just that such loyalty should go totally unrewarded.

EXHIBITION GAME SATURDAY EVENING

Oshawa Champions Will Meet a Picked C. G. E. Nine in An Exhibition Tilt.

Arrangements have been made for an exhibition game of soft ball to be played on Saturday evening from 7 to 8 o'clock between the Williams Piano Company team of Oshawa, and a picked team from the local C. G. E. plant.

The Peterboro team will be chosen from the members of the Tool Room and Engineers teams in the local soft ball league.

The visiting team won the championship of the Oshawa town league without a defeat and has visited and defeated a number of out of town teams. They are bringing two pitchers with them, one of whom is credited with a twenty-one strike out game. The line-up of the visitors will be:

TWO U. S. GOLFERS DIVIDE THE HONORS

Francis Ouimet and Dr. O. P. Willing Tied For First For Royal St. George Challenge Cup.

SANDWICH, England May 4.—(Canadian Press)—Francis Ouimet, Boston and Dr. O. P. Willing, Portland, Oregon, will play an 18-hole match to-day to decided which of them will have the honor of being declared the winner of the Royal St. George's Brand Challenge Cup. The winner will be the first foreigner to take the trophy out of the British Isles.

Ouimet and Willing tied yesterday with 153 for low scores for the 36 holes play which was begun Wednesday morning and finished yesterday afternoon. They defeated a field of 120 golfers, among them most of Great Britain's best amateurs and ten of the best golfers from the United States.

Ranking next to Ouimet and Willing in the two days of medal play was Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, former United States champion, with a score of 154. Behind Gardner, six English and Scotch players were clustered in a tie for fourth place with scores of 157. They were—Bernard Darwin, Dr. H. D. Gillies, Harry Braid, who is a son of the pro ous professional. James Braid; Roger Wethered; Willis Mackenzie and Noel Layton.

Willing could have won the Cup outright on the home-stretch by sinking an 8-foot putt, but the ball stopped twelve inches short Michael Scott, Wethered, and Torrance, all three of whom came in after Ouimet and Willing had finished each had a chance when they turned homeward on the tenth tee, to beat out the players from the United States. But the game of each of them collapsed on the lost long holes, where good golf would have meant victory.

Ouimet did what was expected of him in being at the top of the field, but Willing's achievement seems to have been somewhat of a surprise, even though he had led in the first round with 74. He was believed to have surpassed himself Wednesday. Yesterday, however, he was able to hook and slice drives and yet come home with a good enough card to get his fingers on the rim of the Cup. Once more yesterday he used his putter like a magician.

Ouimet shot the white ball round the course with soundness and consistency, only occasionally lightened by a stroke of brilliance.

EXHIBITION GAME.

The Adanacs and Westclox indulged in a five inning practice game yesterday afternoon in which the Junior team were the winners by a score of 10 to 1. Austin, DeGraw and Wolff did the hurling for the Westclox while Shaughnessey and Hardill were on the hill for the winners.

OFFERS NEW HAT.

James A. Ferguson, King Edward Barber Shop, has offered a new hat for the man who makes the first home run in any of the Central Ontario League games here this summer. The offer is a tempting one and will be watched with interest, who is the first to get it, a local man or an outside man.—Kingston Whig.

DURHAM LEAGUE HAS FIVE TEAMS

New Intermediate Loop Will Include Whitby, Orono, Bowmanville, and Two Oshawa Teams

OSHAWA, May 4 (Special to The Examiner). — At a meeting of the executive of the Durham and Ontario Counties Intermediate Baseball League held in the County Chamber, Bowmanville, last night, with President L. J. Raffauf in the chair, Whitby was admitted into the League with a single schedule in place of the double as originally drafted.

Francis McIntyre was present, and presented the Ontario county town's case, after which he retired while the delegates discussed the situation.

Bowmanville and Orono were against their entrance, while the two Oshawa teams favoured same.

The hosiery town's representative contended that as the League was only in the experimental stage, and as Whitby was asked to join at the organisation meeting he thought five teams with a double schedule was too much, but on the suggestion of a single schedule being proposed, he at once moved that Whitby be admitted, and it was carried unanimously.

The following are the games and dates as arranged:

Thursday, 24th May — Oshawa Motors at Whitby, morning game; Bowmanville at Oshawa Red Sox, morning game.

Wednesday, 30th May — Oshawa Motors at Orono.

Monday, 4th June — Whitby at Oshawa Motors; Orono at Bowmanville.

Wednesday, 13th June — Oshawa Motors at Bowmanville; Oshawa Red Sox at Whitby.

Saturday, 23rd June — Bowmanville at Oshawa Motors.

Wednesday, 27th June — Bowmanville at Orono; Whitby at Oshawa Red Sox.

Monday, 2nd July — Oshawa Motors at Oshawa Red Sox; Whitby at Bowmanville.

Wednesday, 11th July — Orono at Oshawa Motors; Bowmanville at Whitby.

Wednesday, 18th July. — Orono at Oshawa Red Sox.

Wednesday, 25th July — Whitby at Orono; Oshawa Red Sox at Oshawa Motors

RUTH IS GIVING PUBLIC HIS BEST

(By Henry L. Farrell, ... United Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, May 4 (United Press). — When Babe Ruth started the 1923 season with one of his longest homers in the opening game, the sharp tongues of some of those who look upon everything as a "job" had something like this to say:

"He laid down in the exhibition games to get 'em to pitch to him."

While it is impossible to fathom the mental processes of the Babe at the bat, such statements must be considered far-fetched if not actually foolish.

The biggest factor in the comeback of the Babe was a newborn sense of duty toward what he now regards as HIS public.

The belief that the Babe finally has come to the realisation of what the public expects of him and how he has failed to keep faith with it, is not propaganda from the club or from the Babe himself. It is the conviction of the veteran baseball writers, with trained powers of observation who have watched Ruth all year on and off the field.

The Babe actually considers he has a greater duty toward the fans in the tank towns, because their opportunities to see him and big league baseball teams is confined to one day a year, while the fans in the bigger towns can suit their own convenience.

If the Babe failed to deliver in the exhibition games it was not the fault of his heart, but was the result of a slow moving process in overcoming the effects of illness and of getting himself back in his old form.

It is not just to insinuate that Ruth "pulled his punches" in the exhibition games, because he never could have been accused of not trying, even if he has been guilty of almost everything else in the past.

As far as the intimation that he was trying to coax the pitchers to give him a chance, it is absurd to even thinn of such a thing. The Babe can't pull his punches if he tried. He wouldn't have to do it to get the pitchers to pitch to him. With his showing in the pennant race last year and his miserable work in the world's series against the New York Giants, he has established a slump that was sufficient to encourage any pitcher to take a chance with him, regardless of what he did in the training season. Work in early spring exhibition games is never reliable ground for accurate judgment of a player's real form.

Short Term Credits Needed For Farmers.

OTTAWA, May 4. — (Canadian Press).—Before the Special House Committee on Agriculture yesterday afternoon, Allan Farrow, chairman of the Agricultural Development Board of Ontario, urged the need of short term credits for farmers.

There were many cases, Mr. Farrow said, where farmers, requiring to buy cattle, had to do so through a third person, paying him one cent per pound commission in addition to interest on the loan. This commission was frequently sufficient to wipe out a man's profit. In some cases dealers advanced money for cattle and the farmer had to re-sell to them.

MODERN GOLF

By W. J. & Frank Thompson
NOTED CANADIAN GOLFERS

The golf season is on. Business men are putting on their short pants once again. Wives are kissing their husbands goodby for the summer, the country club lockers once more resound with arguments over fair prices for Scotch, and from hill and dale come the sound of peerless prevaricators lying about their scores.

Golf is the only game in the world at which a man can get worse the longer he plays.

It is played with a ball, some wool len stockings, a half dozen sticks, a set of excuses, an irrepressible thirst, and an utter disregard for truth and veracity.

In the words of George Jean Nathan, golf is "a little onion pursued by a big one." A number of little pills chased by a lot of big pills. One egg after another.

A golf ball is several ounces of gutta-percha rolled into the only form in which it will bring from seventy-five cents to a dollar and a half from a man in his right senses.

The idea is to smack the ball full amidships with a club and see how far it will go without further assistance. One of these balls can be sent from Ottawa to Vancouver by parcel post for less than a dime, but it costs the average golfer from $25 to $30 to send one around an 18-hole golf course.

These balls do not care much for the game and have an incurable tendency to hide. They love the brush, but hate the great wide open spaces. Every time one of 'm hides successfully it sets the owner back a dollar or so.

A golf ball that could sell for 10 cents was put on the market last year, but it proved very unpopular, due to the fact it made it possible for a man to play golf and still buy food and lodging for his wife and children.

Golf to be good must be prohibitie. The minute you make it cheap you throw it open to a class of people who may come in, and play really well in long pants, a flannel shirt and derby hat.

The hardest thing about golf is the dues. The dues at the average club run higher than most of the scores, which is higher than you have any idea.

The next hardest thing about golf is the membership committee. Nobody is taken into a golf club who can easily be kept out. When you put in an application for election to a golf club the membership committee gets the idea you are running for president. It delves into your life and family history way back to the time your wife's aunt's great grandmother's sister Sarah ran away with the beer waggon driver.

This complaint will keep you out. If Sarah had run off with a Scotch whiskey drummer it would have been all right.

It takes about 10 years to get by the golf club membership committee, although six is considered par.

Warts will keep you out of the ultra smart country clubs. So will sunbreum, rickets, mastoids, boils, chilblains or a cast in either eye. Buck teeth, prominent ears, bunions and loss of thirst will also render you non plus pluribus unum and pate de foie gras.

You can't pass the membership committee of a golf club if you stutter. Once you get in, however, they expect you to stutter.

Mr. A. E. Wartman returned on Monday evening after spending a few days in Peterboro.

BASEBALL

The Petes are unusually well fortified to meet left-handed pitching this season, as they have a larger percentage of right-handed hitters than has been the case for some time. Johnston, Comolli, Ansaldo, Harrison, Heckman, Legon and Helson all swing from the starboard side of the plate, while Swanston, Collins, Wolfe, Summerfeldt, Lowe, McElroy and Manager Solomon himself are port side batters. Against left-handers, the Petes will therefore be in a position to swing seven right-handed batters into action.

Although Manager Solomon has not made any positive announcement it is likely that Hap. Harrison will be used in the outfield in to-morrow's game against Leaside, with Leo Comolli covering first. "Red" Legon will make his senior debut in left field, while Herb. Wolfe will, in all probability, be in centre garden. The opposition will earn all the hits they locate in the neighborhood of that part of ball hawks.

The infield against Leaside to-morrow will consist of Comolli first, Johnston second, Ansaldo short and Collins and Helson third base, both the latter players being given a chance to perform. Heckman will start the game on the rubber, with Swanston as his battery mate, and "Sandy" Summerfeldt will also do his stuff before the game is over.

Leaside will have Maguire and Hamilton as pitchers, Hoose behind the plate, Joe Dillon at first, Pat Mahoney at second, Bill Lennon at short and Mickey Murray on third, while the outfield will include "Nipper" Jones, Culleton and Norman Curzon.

The game will be in charge of Umpire Alex. Kay, and will get under way at 3 o'clock sharp.

GOOD MANNERS.
In the selection of stationery, as in everything else relating to social usage, what is fantastic or over-conspicuous is poor form.
For instance such a combination as white ink on deep purple paper, while it would attract attention by its eccentricity, would give also an impression of bad taste on the writer's part.

The Amsterdam Telegraph stated Thursday that hereafter Wilhelm and his bride must pay income taxes to the Dutch Government as well as to the municipality of Doorn. In view of the fact that the decision is retroactive, the ex-Kaiser must pay taxes on his income for each year since the war. The Dutch Government estimates Wilhelm's income at about fifty thousand a year, while Princess Hermine will be assessed to her separate income of forty thousand dollars a year.

FRANCE BRINGS GOVT AT ANGORA TO ITS SENSES

Ground For Belief That Display of Force Will Induce Turks to Sign Treaty.

ANOTHER SET BACK

LONDON, May 5.—(Special).—There is good ground for the belief that Turkey will sign the Lausanne Treaty without interposing any more serious objections. A new Chanak situation has developed in Syria, where France's immediate action in sending two divisions under General Waygand has brought Angora to its senses.

After last September the Turks believed that France was especially friendly to her owing to the refusal of Poincare to cooperate with Lloyd George and they also thought that French occupation of German territory would preclude action by the Allies jointly in the Near East. France has now realized that her inaction has robbed her of some prestige.

When the Turks massed troops on the Syrian border, France, however, did not hesitate for a moment to take drastic steps. Turkey has recently received another set back through the refusal of the Allies to allow the Russian representatives to Lausanne their passports, thus preventing their attendance at the conference.

Without her alleged ally the bogy of Bolshevizing Turkey lost its substance and Turkey found that she was not in a position to resist the demands of the Allies. Italy's attitude at Lausanne is still uncertain. Italy is straining every nerve to secure a trade revival. She has been negotiating for some time past with Turkey in the matter of large mineral contracts and for the erection of public works by Italian labor in Turkey.

On the other hand, Italy does not want to part company with the Allies just now. In diplomatic circles, it is regarded as certain that Turkey will not delay much longer in accepting the Allies' terms and signing the Treaty.

ANOTHER AGENCY IS ESTABLISHED

During the past few years the name of Firestone has become established in Canada, as one of the highest grade tires to be had, up till very recently they have been sold at higher prices than any other makes but now, owing to the fact they have established one of Canada's largest tires factories in Hamilton they are in a position to supply tires at the same prices as other standard makes.

To the great numbers who have have been using Firestone tires it will be a source of satisfaction to know they can procure their supply from A. BROWN & CO., 383 Water street, Peterboro, who have been appointed exclusive agents for this city.

WATER SUPPLY IS SAFE HERE

Little Chance of Disease Being Carried Through the Water.

The citizens of Peterborough are given the best possible protection against disease carried through water, Mr. Ross Dobbin told the Examiner to-day. The water supply is filtered in a modern plant, and when necessary it is also chlorinated. The water is tested from the mains in different parts of the city three times daily, eliminating any possibility of contamination spreading.

The great benefit obtained from proper care of the city's water supply is gathered from the official report of the epidemic which has swept Cochrane in the past weeks.

According to this report, which appears in the current number of "Engineering," the lake in which sewage as dumped was about seven feet higher than the lake, fed by springs, from which the water supply was obtained. The overflow from both these lakes met in a stream some miles below the lakes. During the winter the water in the spring lake was lowered by the fact that the dry season had resulted in a smaller flow of water from the springs; the creek below the confluence of the two overflow streams became choked with ice and this caused the water from the sewage lake to flow back into the spring water lake, contaminating the supply.

Peterborough, taking its water supply from a flowing stream, is free from dangers of this kind, and ample protection is given against other dangers. Chlorination is not carried to excessive lengths such as are complained about in other centres, but is used as an auxiliary safeguard in certain seasons. Approximately 75 per cent. of the water used by the Ontario municipalities is chlorinated, and in both filtering and chlorinating the supply, this city is in line with Toronto.

AT MARK STREET.

To-morrow will be a red-letter day at Mark Street Church. Communion service in the morning. The male voice choir will render a song service at night, under the leadership of Mr V. Boorman. Everybody welcome.

RETURNS HOME AFTER A TRIP TO OLD LANDS

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Aylmer Bring back Pleasant Memories and Souvenirs of Trip Abroad.

VISITED FRANCE

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Aylmer are back from an exceedingly pleasant trip abroad, with plenty of agreeable memories, dozen of views of places visited en route, and souvenirs from the former French battlfields, including one of the clever satirical efforts of French brass-workers, in a tiny ash tray with a double representation of the head of the former Crown Prince facing a central German iron cross His "Paris-emblazoned countenance, with its elongated nose and jaunty cap, bear a broad smile, but his "Verdun" face is pictured with real brass tears rolling down the full cheeks.

After a long rest at Beaulieu, in the south of France, Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer's trip on the Continent included visits to Mentone and Nice Monte, Carlo and Monaco, where the Prince holds luxurious court on his rocky promontory, to Algiers and Morocco and Gibraltar, to Capri and the island of Madeira, with its curious ox-carts. In char-a-bancs, they visited the battle-scarred areas around Rheims, where the traces of conflict still exist in the enduring out lines of dugouts traced in the chalky hills. In Rheims itself, twenty thousand workmen are busily engaged in obliterating the signs of war and re-building the ruined city, where skeletons of houses still loom on side streets. Against the skyline, motoring into the city, the cathedral has all the appearance of an untouch ed edifice, but a nearer view reveals the ghastly and irreparable damage sustained in the four years of incessant bombardment to which it was subjected.

Through the Alps.

Trips through the Maritime Alps were taken by motor, and winding mountaineous roads followed to the castled crags where the ancient Saracens built their homes of enduring stone. The railways of France were commended, but at the border, where French trains stop to transfer their passengers to waiting Italian coaches, the road-beds commenced to deteriorate. Italian travel over lines untouched for many years, was not so pleasant.

In Italy, Mr. Aylmer forbore wearing his favorite red tie, on account of the significance attached to various colors by the four parties striving for power. Here the travellers visited Naples and Florence, with its wonderful art galleries, and spent three days in Rome, where they saw most of the famed cathedrals and the Colosseum and descended into the ancient catacombs beneath the city.

During their stay in Paris, Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer visited Fontainebleau and saw the wonderful "gold room" of Henri Second. At Versailles, Mr. Aylmer stood on the historic spot in the Galerie des Glaces where the French were so mortally insulted by the Germans in 1871. It was in this room that the first Emperor of the Germans, grandfather of the present ex-Kaiser, was formally crowned as King of United Prussia. To wipe out the memory of such an offence, the French brought the very table which stood on this spot at the time of William's coronation and compelled the Germans to use it in signing the treaty after the late war.

In France, Mr. Aylmer remarked the people as contented and happy, the crowds in the cities enjoying their sports and games in the public parks, the people generally in country and town working industriously to retrieve the franc from its present low value of seven cents. Every inch of arable land is being intensively cultivated, all signs of the great struggle are being removed and the people are working with cheerful and intense effort to make themselves self-sustaining.

In London, where the travellers spent three weeks in touring the city and its environs, the signs of unemployment were not especially noticeable, according to Mr. Aylmer who observed here also the same spirit of cheerful endeavor, and an expressed opinion by the man on the street, of sympathy with the efforts of the French in the Ruhr, even though public opinion doubts the wisdom of the venture.

OPENED BOATING SEASON.

Boating on the river off Rye's Pavilion at the foot of Lock Street was once more informally opened by two young ladies who have for some years been forerunners of the summer crowd of paddlers. Miss Eva Ontram slid the first canoe into the water on Thursday, and Miss C. F. Littlefield, of the Y.W.C.A., followed on Friday. The river is rather high at present, but presented no fears to these fair devotees of the open-air idea.

CONSTABLE'S QUICK WORK PROBABLY AVERTED BLAZE

Actor Sleeps Peacefully Within Few Feet of Incipient Bedside Fire—Upturned Electric Iron Starts Fire.

Cooking fish on an upturned electric iron might have resulted in serious injury to S. Emerson early this morning, but for the sharp eyesight and quick work of Constable Matthews.

At 2.45, while Matthews was patrolling Aylmer Street, he noticed smoke issuing from a window of No. 344, a boarding-house opposite the Fire Hall. He immediately alarmed the Fire Department; and the occupants of the house, who were asleep.

On entering the room occupied by Emerson the firemen found it filled with fumes, and the tenant asleep. On a trunk was an ordinary electric iron, propped up between pieces of lumber, and on top of the iron was a shrivelled meal of fish. The iron handle and surrounding wood were blazing and the owner slept peacefully within a few feet of the incipient, death-dealing force.

The fire was easily extinguished without damage, except to the iron, and Emerson was taken to the Police Station to account for the peculiar proceeding. He is an actor, and stated that he fell asleep while his meal was cooking.

HORSEMEN MAKE CLAIM TO RACE TRACK AT PARK

Assert That They Have Kept Track in Condition and Turned Over Racing Charter to Ex. Board.

COUNCIL MEDIATE

Objections of local horsemen to the reported action of the Exhibition Board in conditionally refusing them permission henceforth to use the race track for working out their horses induced the Finance committee of the Council last night, after hearing the representations of a deputation from the race horse owners, to offer their services as an intermediary in an effort to bring about an understanding at a special meeting to be held to-night.

Mayor Taylor, Alderman Phelan and Alderman Crowe were appointed to meet representatives of the Exhibition Board and the horsemen at the city hall to-night, at eight o'clock when both sides of the controversy will be heard, and, it is hoped amicably adjusted.

The claims of the horsemen were laid before the Finance committee last night by a delegation of five, of whom Messrs. Jas. Sutherland, Eddie Jones and Frank Montgomery were the speakers. They contended that they had not been fairly dealt with by the Exhibition Board, and as ratepayers they felt that they had a right to ask that the city's grant to the Exhibition be withheld unless provision was made for their use of the race track.

"A few years ago," said Mr. Sutherland, "we had a charter that is worth some money to-day. The Exhibition Board wanted us to turn the track and the charter over to them, and allow us to continue using the track. There was no written agreement about it, but we did that Now they want to start and charge us. They said they wanted us to pay $10 a horse and as some of us have as many as three horses that looked kind of unreasonable. We have harrowed the track and kept it in shape, and they have done no work on it. We think it is unfair when the Exhibition Board gets a grant from the city to use the horsemen that way. We are willing that they get the grant providing they use the horsemen right."

Big Attraction.

Mr. Jones said that the horse races were a big attraction at the Fair and the horsemen had to pay their entry money in every race they started their horses. They received no concession from the Fair Board in that respect but had to pay the percentage whatever it might be, five or ten per cent. of the prize money. Mr. Jones emphasized his statement that the horsemen kept the track in shape, and that the Exhibition Board didn't spend any money on it.

Mr. Montgomery declared that the horsemen wouldn't object to paying a rental if the Exhibition Board kept the track in shape for workouts. At Picton, Orillia, Lindsay, Oshawa and Toronto the stables were free to the horsemen, but Peterborough was the only place where the horsemen were charged.

Charter Valuable.

It was stated that a racing charter had recently sold at Windsor for $30,000. It was valuable because betting was permitted under it. Some of the work of putting the track in proper condition for the horses had been done no later than Friday afternoon.

Mr. Sutherland said the horsemen desired to continue using the course at once, and in the hope of securing an immediate settlement the subcommittee was instructed to try to arrange for a meeting this evening.

ROLLING PINS WERE OFFERED LOCAL MARKET

GREEN PRODUCE

There were two distinct summery notes about the farmers' market this morning. The chirping of wee chicks and the fresh green of young plants on several of the carts were a strong evidence of the onset of warm weather. The small yellow feathery Leghorns and Wyandottes, the Barred Rocks, with soft black foreheads dotted with golden fluff sent their shrill chirpy notes out from the large basket in which they reposed in the upper section, and proceeded down the stairs and out into the sunshine in the little box carried by a small boy, and the basket which a young man rounding the corner guarded with zealous care. For one dollar, a purchaser might take home five of the little things, and they "do much better without a hen" was the recommendation of the lady who sold them.

Butter was plentiful, and so were eggs, the former selling at 35 to 37 cents a pound, eggs at 26 to 30 cents per dozen. One woman in the basket section had apple jelly at 15-25 cents a jar, and catsup at 30 cents tall bottle. White beans were 15 cts. a measure.

Syrup Still Here

Two or three dealers on the open market were selling maple syrup at 60 cents a quart, and one man had dark brown sugar at 40 cents for a large cake. Potatoes were fairly plentiful, at $1.25 a bag or 30 cents a peck in the carts.

Small sleeping pigs, survivors of the litters which have been hit rather heavily this year by intense cold, were selling at $12, $13 and $14 a pair. A couple of bright small bantams in a coop were $2 for the pair.

"A dollar's worth of fish for a quarter," was the cry of the eloquent gentleman who discoursed on the merits of his Ontario mullet; five for a quarter, and another dealer had suckers at a nickel apiece.

For twenty cents, one might buy flowering primroses in small pots, or fifteen cents would purchase the small green fronds of real Scotch 'mums, from Mr. Joseph Grierson's gardens in Ashburnham. Here also were delphinium, peony, phlox, larkspur, and poppy roots at 15 cents apiece, apple trees at $1 each, and raspberry shoots at 50 cents per dozen. A neighboring dealer had Columbia raspberry runners at 75 cents a dozen, while another sold his supply in bundles of 25 for 50 cents.

Green onions were 5 cents a bunch and black wax beans for seed, 20 cents per quart.

Anything from an automobile to a hammer might be bartered for at the auctioneers' stands this morning. When last seen, one silver-tongued gentleman was discoursing on the merits of the kitchen utensil which had made Maggie Jiggs famous.

Boys Arrested in Connection With Fire on a Dredge

The fire which partially consumed a dredge on the Trent canal on Wednesday had its sequel to-day in the arrest of the boys who are said to be responsible for it.

These young boys were playing on the dredge on Tuesday, and lighted a fire in the boiler room. When they were about to leave the barge for the night they dumped the fire into the bottom of the dredge, expecting that the water there would extinguish it.

It is not yet known what will be done with the boys, as they are very young, but the Crown Attorney is being consulted.

RULES CHANGED FOR LIFT LOCK

For Convenience of Tourists Using Motor Boats Regulations for Operating Have Been Amended.

G. N. Gordon K.C., Member for West Peterborough, interviewed the Minister of Railways and Canals, and succeeded in getting regulations relating to the operation of the Life Lock changed for the convenience of tourists using motor boats.

In the foregoing connection a letter from George P. Graham, Acting Minister of Railways and Canals, outlining existing regulations for passing over the lift lock, will be found informative:

In order to prevent any complaint from American visitors or others on longer trips who might be unnecessarily delayed at the Peterborough Lift Lock, the regulations governing such Locks were amended in 1918 as follows:

Vessels of 5 tons and under may be locked at any hour during the day proving they come under any of the following class:

(1) Vessels from Lake Ontario bound for points north of Lakefield;
(2) Vessels from Hastings or points east thereof bound for Lake Simcoe;
(3) Vessels from north of Lakefield bound for Lake Ontario;
(4) Vessels from Lake Simcoe bound for Hastings or points east thereof.

In January, 1922, the regulations were further amended to permit of vessels under 5 tons engaged in commercial business between Peterborough and Lakefield or more distant points being handled over the Lock at any hour during the day.

It has been decided, however, in addition to the present hours of 9 a.m. and 7 p.m., to handle small boats over the Lock in question at 7 p.m. In this connection, it is considered that 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. should be convenient hours to leave Peterborough for the Lakes, while 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. appear to be convenient hours for returning; the present regulations permitting of American visitors or others on longer trips to be handled over the Lock at any hour during the day.

The wear and tear in connection with the operation of this large and expensive machine is an item which should not be lost sight of, all repair parts of which are very costly, having to be specially made; and, in view of this fact, it is considered that the use of the Lock should be restricted to a certain extent in so far as pleasure craft is concerned.

BELGIUM TURNS DOWN REPARATIONS SCHEME

BRUSSELS, May 5. — (Canadian Press). — The Belgian Council of Ministers to-day examined officially the German reparation proposals, and unanimously decided that they were inacceptable.

April 16, 1923.
To the Gallagher Remedy Co.
Dear Sir:

To whom this may concern. Two weeks ago Mr. Hugh McCullough called upon me, representing the Gallagher Remedy Co. of Peterborough. I told him that I was troubled with gas on the stomach. I never thought I could get relief. Because I had tried several things which didn't even give me relief. So when he had convinced me about his medicines, and what it had done for hundreds of others, I was sure I wanted to try it. I have only taken it two weeks. Now I can eat anything and that is something I haven't been able to do for a long time. And I must say I feel a different woman for my age. That awful pain has vanished. I remain, yours truly,

MRS. JAMES ENGLISH.

MONEY WASTED TO SUIT FANCY OF THE POLICE

Finance Committee Assert That Chief Newhall Should Employ City Solicitor.

NOT G. W. HATTON

A bill for $105 from Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., for his services in prosecuting O.T.A. cases at the request of Chief Constable Newhall, raised the question at the meeting of the Finance committee of the Council last night why the city should be put to this extra expense which, it was stated, could be saved by Chief Constable Newhall's employment of the City Solicitor.

It was stated that, owing to certain causes, Chief Newhall had seen fit not to use the services of the late City Solicitor, but in view of recent appointment of Mr. Joseph Wearing the members of the committee wondered whether Chief Constable Newhall would accept him.

"I think the City Solicitor should do the work," commented Mayor Taylor.

"I think it's a darn shame he doesn't," added Ald. Holloway.

The committee decided to ask Chief Constable Newhall himself, and City Clerk Armstrong brought back the reply that the Chief would take the matter up with the Police Commission.

"He'll fight us, that's what he'll do," said Ald. Crowe. "But the blame should be placed where it belongs, and that's with the Police Commission and not with the Chief."

Ald. Holloway— If the Commission told him to do it he'd have to do it, that's all.

Ald. Phelan—The Chief of Police was appointed by a by-law of this Council to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act. If he refuses our City Solictior, I think we should appoint some one else.

Ald. Stocker—Why not have the Mayor take it up with the two other members of the Police Commission.

Ald. Holloway— He can't carry the other two.

Would Lose Fines.

It was suggested that License Inspector Stewart might be appointed, but in that event, it was pointed out, fines would go to the province.

Ald. Holloway—The business of this Council is to pay the bills and keep our mouths shut.

Ald. Crowe—I'd give him twenty-four hours to get out of town.

Ald. Phelan—When an employer doesn't do what is wanted of him, the way to do is to take the bull by the horns and appoint somebody else.

Ald. Holloway — If the Chief doesn't use Mr. Wearing in these cases have we to pay like this for somebody else? There's no use throwing the city's good money away to please his whims and fancies. He won't even talk to you after you appoint him.

Ald. Phelan— He's running the Council and everybody else.

To the proposal that this matter might be taken up when the Council and Police Commission meet around the table, Ald. Crowe replied that it was unlikely that the Commission would "show up."

Mr. Wearing's Advice.

It was finally decided to approve the account from Mr. Hatton as recommended in the following letter from City Solictior Wearing:

"In answer to yours of the 5th inst. with regard to Mr. Hatton's bill my opinion is that it will be necessary for you to pay this bill as required by Sec. 65 of the Ontario Temperance Act. My interpretation of this section is that where the Crown Attorney is employed by an officer appointed by the Council to prosecute under the O.T.A., which in this case is the Chief of Police, then the Crown Attorney is bound to act, but I do not think that it is essential that the Chief of Police employ the Attorney, and I see no reason why he should not employ the City Solicitor if the municipality would prefer the City Solicitor to be engaged. This same section applies to the License Inspector, but the License Inspector here does not employ the Crown Attorney, but employs me. The reason I mention this is because I understand that the Chief of Police was requested some time ago to employ the City Solicitor instead of the Crown Attorney, but had not complied with this request. I do not know that the Council can force the Chief of Police to carry out their wishes because, as I understand it, he is under the direction of the Police Commission rather than the City Council, except that in the matter of prosecutions under the O.T.A. he is appointed by by-law of the Council, and being appointed directly by the Council should be subject to their control. With regard to the enclosed bill however, there is nothing that can be done except pay it."

NEW TOWN PLAN CAMPBELLFORD

Fraser Aylesworth of Madoc Presents Scheme to Council—Appeals Against Assessment Disposed of.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 5.—The town council met as a court of revision last night to hear appeals from the assesments for the payment of the Front street sewer. The members present were Reeve Anderson, Deputy-reeve Wilkinson and Councillors Dorie, Allan, Carter and Burke, Reeve Anderson occupied the chair in the absence of Mayor Meyers who arrived some time after the meeting had been called to order and who, for the remainder of the session, sat among the members at the table.

New Town Plan.

Before the regular business of the session was taken up the members listened to an address by Fraser Aylesworth, a well known land surveyor of Madoc, who has held the presidency of the Land Surveyors' Association, both in Ontario and the Dominion. Mr. Aylesworth came to town on the request of Registrar Willoughby, of Colborne, who has for some time been urging that a new plan of Campbellford be drawn up. Mr. Aylesworth is ready to undertake this work if satisfactory time can be arranged.

The cost of a new plan, the speaker said, would depend upon the type. If corrections are made in the present map the expense will not be heavy. A general survey, which would include putting up posts to show the boundaries of every lot would not only entail a large outlay but would be inadvisable. Putting up posts would mean interminable trouble for the town, as the problems these are intended to settle would in the case of dispute, have to be disposed of by the courts. All that is necessary is to complete the plans for the guidance of the assessor and registrar. Posts are no longer used in any towns or cities in Ontario.

Mr. Aylesworth expressed his readiness to furnish the council with levels for sewers but said he would not undertake to draw up a plan for a complete system.

After Assessor Mulhearn had been hear with regard to the difficulties of carrying on his work under the present plan and Town Clerk McGregor had explained some of the defects, it was decided to have another conference with Mr. Aylesworth, who will come to town any time for the purpose.

Three Appeals.

Three appeals against the assessment for the Front street sewer were heard, all of them being disallowed. Thomas Barrie complained that the entry to the sewer opposite to his property was so placed as to render it almost impossible for him to connect up his residence. He asked for a reduction in his assessment on this ground, but his request was refused on motion of Councillors Dorie and Carter.

Ross McComb submitted an appeal similar to the above, but it was dismissed on motion of Councillors Allan and Burke.

Vincent Farrell claimed that his assessment was too high in comparison with that of other property owners who had larger lots, but no change was made in the figures, on motion of Mayor Meyers and Councillor Dorie.

DOG STEALS NEWS.

WINNIPEG, May 5.—(Associated Press)—The culprit who for a month had been stealing morning papers in Armstrong Point, an exclusive residence section of Winnipeg, has been found.

A careful search was organized by delivery boys and district managers of newspapers, who resented the charge that they had been negligent in the performance of their duties.

The culprit is "Colonel"—possessor of a black fur coat, twinkling eye, stubby tail, a bark and a nose for news. He was arrested, spanked and released, after he had been seen snatching freshly delivered newspapers and burying them.

Chinese Immigration Will Be Limited

OTTAWA, May 5.— (Canadian Press.)— The House of Commons yesterday passed a bill which will practically limit Chinese immigration to merchants and students. Hon. Charles Stewart, Acting Minister of Immigration, intimated that a Canadian official would be stationed in China and anyone seeking admission to Canada would be required to convince that official of his bonda fides as a merchant in the import or export trade with China. Peddlers, hucksters, laundrymen and so forth would not be admitted.

THE LEGISLATURE FINISHES BUSINESS

Formal Closing Proceedings Will Be Held Next Tuesday — Bills Withdrawn.

TORONTO, May 5. Canadian Press.— — The last session of the fifteenth legislature of Ontario came to a close after ten o'clock last night as far as actual business is concerned. The formal closing proceedings will be held next Tuesday.

Yesterday was a busy day although the government got through all its business in the afternoon. The night was given over to the clearing up of the members' business on the order paper. All contentious resolutions and bills were withdrawn, including resolutions for a wine and beer referendum, redistribution and a bill which would put Separate school debentures on the same basis as the Public school debentures.

It is expected that dissolution will be announced within a few days and the elections held late in June. Most of the members left last night, although more than a quorum was present up to the last minute.

J. McNamara, Riverdale, got through his motion that Ontario take immediate steps to cooperate with the Dominion government and the government of the United States in the St. Lawrence power development.

CAR AND BOATHOUSE BURNED AT DEER BAY

Mr. C. S. Tanner Lost Summer Home Effects—Small Blaze in Lakefield Home.

LAKEFIELD, May 5.—The brigade was called out to a small blaze in the roof of Walter Madill's house on Queen street last evening about 6.30 o'clock, but neighbors extinguished the flames before the firemen arrived. It was thought that the fire was caused by sparks from the chimney, but the prompt assistance of friends quickly put it out.

Mr. C. S. Tanner's combination boathouse and garage at Deer Bay was destroyed by fire on Thursday afternoon with the loss of his car in which he had driven up from Lakefield, also several skiffs and canoes and other smaller articles. The cause of this fire is unknown, but it is believed to have originated in some way from the automobile which Mr. Tanner left in the garage while he was at work around his summer home.

Pavilion Opened

The first dance of the season at Riverside Pavilion was largely attended last night, many of the visitors having motored up from Peterborough.

FLOODS ARE AGAIN THREATENING WEST

Water in the Assiniboine River Has Reached a Menacing Stage—Water Still Rising.

WINNIPEG, May 5. —(Canadian Press.)— Conditions along the Assiniboine river west of this city, where thousands of acres of farm lands were inundated, residents forced to vacate their homes and thousands of dollars damage done to railways and highways recently, again reached a menacing stage yesterday with a general rise reported.

The situtions is again bad at Brandon and vicinity with a rise of 5 1-2 inches recorded since Thursday night. Residences in the flats district of the city have been forced to move and the highways leading into the city from the north have been flooded, and hundreds of acres of farm lands are in danger.

Pressure caused by the inrush of water has broken the walls of the Belcourt Dyke, seven miles east of St. Eustache, and as a result thousands of acres of farm land in that vicinity is under water, in some spots to a depth of eight feet. Several farmers have been driven from their homes. At Iberville, where the Hutterite Colony is located, Mill Creek has again overflowed its banks, flooding adjoining lands.

Doctors are banned, by the ethics of their profession from giving interviews to newspapers under their own names, as this is considered a form of advertising.

CONFERENCE IS AGAIN FACED BY A BAD RUPTURE

FOREIGN ARRESTS.

LAUSANNE, May 5.—(Canadian Press.)—The delegates to the second Near East Peace Conference are desperately seeking a solution of the situation to prevent the rupture feared in consequence of radical difficulties between the Turks and the Allies and the United States over the special guarantees to be accorded to foreigners, instead of the former consular courts abolished by Turkey as part of the capitulations.

The controversy hinges on the authority to be granted the foreign legal advisers which Turkey agreed to employ, and also on the impossible obligations incurred by the Allies in their feverish activities at the last conference, when the French and Italians, aided by the United States representative, intervened at the last minute in an unsuccessful attempt to prevent the collapse of the conference.

Ismet Pasha again yesterday offered to sign the Italian formula which was accepted then but which the Allies have now withdrawn the British never having ratified it. Ismet declared during the proceedings that the Americans had distinctly approved the Italian draft.

Sir Horace Rumbolt, the British High Commissioner at Constantinople, said the promise had been effected after Lord Curzon left Lausanne. Therefore it was after the close of the conference and was not binding. He read a somewhat revised version of the original demands under which arrests, searches and seizures of foreigners in Constantinople and Symrna could be made only with the consent of the legal advisers, but arrests elsewhere in Turkey should simply be brought to the attention of the advisers Sir Horace was supported by General Pelle, the French High Commissioner at Constantinople, and others of the Allies, who said it was only reasonable that foreigners should ask for special guarantees for some years after the abolition of the capitulations.

Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, accused the Allies of bad faith. He declared vigorously that Turkey regarded the legal adviser question as closed and said she must refuse to discuss it again. Sir Horace Humbold retorted that if there could not be discussion then it was impossible to continue the Lausanne negotiations.

The Turks said last night that they woud make no further concessions and that they would return to Angora if the Allies insisted on re-opening the adviser question.

The conference broke up in great confusion without fixing a date for the next meeting. The experts are continuing their work, but unless the adviser problem is compromised it is admitted there is danger of a collapse of the conference.

BUILDINGS TOPPLE FROM FOUNDATIONS

Earthquake and Tidal Wave in Chile Result in Enormous Damage.

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 5.—(United Press.)—The State of Atacama was shaken by a strong earthquake in Northern Chile, toppling buildings from their foundations and causing great damage.

A tidal wave which followed, swept over the city of Carrivalillo, inundating a large area. The population fled in panic from the place and sought refuge in nearby hills. Homes were destroyed and many were believed to have been caught in the sudden inrush of the sea.

At Vallenar, a coast village, the chief buildings of the town were shaken on their foundations and lay in partial ruins. Despatches say there was great damage there, especially to irrigation ditches. No estimates were made as to the loss of life. The quake was at 5.40 last night, it was said.

BRITAIN STILL HOPES TO BRING ABOUT PEACE

Disappointed at France's Reply to the German Note But the Note Left No Other Course Open—Still Working For Peace.

LONDON, May 5 Canadian Press. Up to a late hour to-night the text of France's rejection of the terms embraced in Germany's recent note on reparations has not reached London.

France, apparently rejected the German overture, if not without actually consulting the British government, certainly without paying much deference to British views, and her precipitate action, although not completely unexpected, has served to disappoint the hopes of those who had looked upon the German initiative again to bring the allies to the conference table.

The present British cabinet is distinctly proFrench in sentiment and the opinion is held in some quarters that, if its influence failed to induce the French government to give further consideration to the German note prior to rejecting it, little hope remains. Foreign Minister Curzon, however, in whose hands the British position is now left during the absence of Premier Bonar Law, refuses to be downcast by the French rejection of the German terms. In a speech made yesterday at the Primrose League, Lord Curzon announced the government was in close touch both with France and with Belgium and he seemed to intimitate a hope that concerted action by the Allies still might be possible as a means of confronting Germany with such influence as to induce that country to take steps to advance the reparations question toward a satisfactory settlement.

The haste of France in rejecting the note is deplored in London especially in Liberal circles, because it is feared it may precipitate political developments which may cause the fall of the Cuno government, in Berlin, and the substitution of a purely Socialist administration. At the same time the political leaders consider as tactless that part of the German note regarding continued passive resistance. They declare it was virtually a demand for a climbdown on the part of France in the Ruhr and that it has brought inevitable rebuff in its train.

The British Cabinet is expected to consider the German note and the French reply together with the object of seeing if anything still can be saved out of the wreckage by further consultations with Italy and if possible also with Washington.

TRIAL OF GERMANS OPENED YESTERDAY

French Are Trying to Fix Blame For Blowing of the Sirens Which Caused the Clash With Troops.

WERDEN, Germany, May 5.—(Canadian Press.)—The first day of the trial before a French courtmartial of Dr. Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, president of the Krupp company, five Krupp directors, and four workmen, was spent largely by the prosecutions in pressing questions designed to place responsibility for the blowing of the Essen's plant sirens, on March 3.

The blowing of the sirens bringing out thousands of Krupp workmen on the arrival of a detachment of French soldiers is held to have been the determining factor in the clash with French troops which ensued.

The directors testified that the sounding of sirens as a danger signal had been in practice for years and was initiated and controlled by the workmen's council. One of the witnesses said the workmen would have come out anyway as there was intense interest over the expected visit of the French troops.

Forty witnesses were summoned, but only a few of them were heard yesterday. The trail, which it was expected would be finished last night, will continue to-day and probably Sunday.

HENPECKED CLUB.

YORKSHIRE, May 4.—(Associated Press)—The members of the famous Yorkshire organization known as the "Henpecked Club" had their "once a year outing" recently.

To an isloated hamlet, miles to the west of Halifax, the president of the club invited his "fellow bondsmen of the scrubbing brush and pail" to gather, and as every member was loyal to his pledge of secrecy, the "henpecked" were not disturbed by the "henpeckers."

The club is counted as the oldest in existence, Adam being claimed as the first member. Every year new members are enrolled, but applicants have to pass a severe test providing absolute proof that on every day in the year except the day of their outing they are "slaves of the apron strings and domestic drudgery."

Women Will Now Use Minimum of Sweets.

NEW YORK, May 5. Canadian Press. — One-fifth the blame for the price of sugar was placed on the tariff yesterday by the Federal Sugar Refining Company, while the cost of refined and raw sugar swung further downward and the boycott inaugurated by the women assumed a national scope.

More than 2000 delegates to the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, voted to use a minimum of sweets and called upon President Harding to see that the sugar investigation went to the bottom of the bin.

His Body Cut in Two Beneath Moving Train.

ST. THOMAS, aMy 5. Canadian Press. — Albert Clements, a yard switchman, in the employ of the Pere Marquette allway, was almost instantly killed last evening when he stumbled and fell beneath the wheels of a moving train. His body was almost cut in two, and he died before he could be removed to the hospital.

Police Have Declared War on the Bandits

WINNIPEG, May 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Along with the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta, Manitoba will take active means to prevent border banditary this summer. A fleet of especially equipped motor cars, machine guns sawed-off shotguns, heavy calibre rifles and tear bombs will be used by the Provincial Police border patrol while a motorcycle squad will be maintained. The patrol has been re-organized and a secret service organization has been built up for the purpose of getting information of intended raids.

Provincial Police Commissioner H. J. Martin has issued instructions to his men to "shoot to kill" and all motor cars failing to stop when ordered to do so, will be fired upon.

Last year the southern portion of the Province was terrorized by safeblowing and holdup episodes.

CLEAN UP BOOTLEG RING IN CHANDOS

Provincial Officers Secure Two Convictions and Seize Quantity of Liquor

Bootlegging cost Edward McCaskey and John Simpson of Chandos Township $400 and costs each when they were caught and haled into court to answer the charge of making and selling.

The round-up was made after two days and nights of investigation by License Inspector Joe Stewart, Inland Revenue Officer W. Buller and Provincial Constable George Cookman. The offenders appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley in County Court yesterday, Joseph Wearing conducting the prosecution.

McCaskey is the proprietor of a summer hotel on Loon Lake, and the liquor was sold in Apsley, Coehill and the district between. In a test yesterday morning at the Custom House the liquor showed 25 or 30 under proof.

Both offenders pleaded guilty, and were each sentenced to a fine of $200 under the Inland Revenue and $200 under the Ontario Temperance Act, and costs.

It is understood that a number of names of purchasers were learned, and that these, being in the Coehill district, were handed over to the Provincial authorities in Hastings County. The still was not recovered, its location not being divulged by the offenders.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., May 5. — (Canadian Press.)—The trail of the two men sought as kidnappers of six-year-old Verner Alexanderson, son of E. F. W. Alexanderson of Schenectady, last night definitely led to Canada, according to Mr. Alexanderson.

Police detectives and the forces of the Royal Mounted Police now are seeking Stanley Randall, of Rochester and Waatertown and Harry Fairbanks, of Ogdensburg and Alexandria Bay, who are believed to have abducted the boy. Co-operating in the search is Owen D. Appeal By Beaverton Veterinary Dismissed.

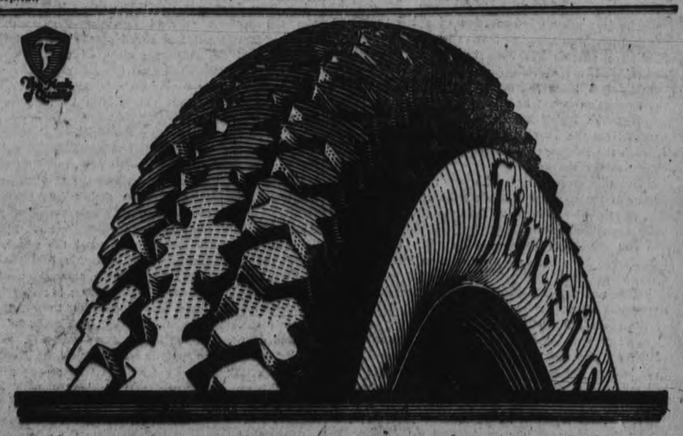
LINDSAY, May 5. — A case which has caused considerable interest in this section was disposed of and an appeal heard by Judge Ruddy at Whitby a few days ago.

Chester D. Baldwin a Beaverton veterinary was recently fined $200 and costs by Police Magistrate Clark for purchasing 26 bottles of whiskey in one month for use in his business for the disposal of which he did not account. The magistrate held that when he used such a large quantity the onus was on him to that it had not been mis-applied. The decision was appealed but the appeal was dismissed.



WHAT Does Air-Bag Curing Do To a Tire?

Firestone Cord Tires are cured under internal expansion on air-bags. Each cord is held straight and taut during vulcanization, giving perfect alignment, preventing creasing and avoiding the possibility of the cord fabric buckling.

Air-bag curing is a costlier process, but it adds carcass-strength and wear to the tire that increases mileage and cuts user costs.

The uniform dependability and wear of Firestone Cords, their popularity among the more discriminating car owners from Victoria to Halifax, their never-waning reputation for Most Miles per Dollar—are significant facts for the tire-buyer who is still dissatisfied with the tire-service he gets.

Firestone Cords deliver longer mileage, thereby reducing the cost per mile. The unusual facilities and efficient organization of Canada's most modern tire plant make possible vital economies in manufacture that Firestone passes along in finer quality sold at standard prices.

You may buy cheaper first-cost tires than Firestone Cords, but in the final reckoning Firestones will always be found the most economical.

Their past record is your assurance for the future.

USING THE LIBRARY.

Librarian F. M. DelaFosse's statement to the Young Men's Section of the Chamber of Commerce that many more citizens might avail themselves of the advantages of the Public Library than do so at present, is undoubtedly accurate.

Although 85,000 books were passed out to the public last year—and the figure seems large—yet that total only represents an average of four books a year per capita, or perhaps twenty books per family every twelve months.

As many patrons of the library take out two or three books at a time and call every day or two, it is obvious that there are hundreds of families in Peterborough who are receiving no benefit whatever from the institution—yet they have to help pay for its maintenance.

The opportunity to secure the free use of good books should not be overlooked by the citizens of Peterborough, nor should the other advantages offered be neglected.

Peterborough's library is modern, well looked after and complete, and there is no reason why it should not be of more general community value.

THE SILENCER APPLIED.

In this column yesterday the suggestion was made that all proceedings of the Gregory Commission should be suspended until after the election, the article being written and in print before it was known that Premier Drury had surrendered to the wishes of the Liberal and Conservative opposition and had promised that future sittings of the commission would be held in camera.

With that course there will be general agreement.

To have held public sittings of the Hydro probe while the campaign was in full swing would have been a proceeding not only unwise, but capable of harm to a scheme in which the Province is vitally interested.

Premier Drury has acted wisely in silencing his pet commission for the present.

Whatever justification there may be for holding the investigation at any time there is certainly would be none for continuing the public sittings when the matter under discussion is likely to be one of the live issues in the campaign.

The Gregory Commission has cost Ontario a lot of money, and there is enough criticism of its operations now without providing fresh material for its opponents by allowing it to carry on as a side show to the political circus with which Ontario will be engaged for the next two months.

CLASS LEGISLATION.

The last minute introduction of a bill to relieve the counties from any contribution towards the Ontario Highways scheme has been labelled a "pre-election dodge" and the Government will have difficulty in convincing a large percentage of the electorate that the accusation is not accurate.

Had the legislation been foreshadowed in the speech from the Throne, or even referred to half way through the session, there might not have been so much colour to the charge.

But this eleventh hour attempt to discriminate in favour of the counties as against the urban municipalities, certainly lends itself to the description coined for it by opposition speakers.

The secret, of course, is that Mr. Biggs' road scheme has been decidely unpopular in the rural sections.

Wherever the farmers got together there have been complaints about the cost of the work and criticism of the general features of the Biggs' plan.

The present bill is intended to take the sting out of the criticism by refunding to the counties all they have had to pay for Provincial roads since last May, and relieving them of any share of the cost in the future.

It is class legislation that relieves the rural section at the expense of the municipalities.

It would be objectionable enough at any time, but coming just before the dissolution of the House, has every appearance of being nothing else than bait for votes.

THE WORKERS' PARTY.

The Trades and Labour Council of Peterborough has given convincing proof of its sanity and level-headedness in shutting the door against emissaries of the Workers' Party of Canada and in passing a resolution denouncing the policies of that organization as Bolshevistic and hostile to the real interests of the Labour unions.

The Workers' Party seem to be directly linked up with Sovietism.

Their doctrine leads nowhere else but to a revolution, and they are endeavouring to bring about their aim by working themselves into the trade unions with the object of eventually getting control of the Labour machinery.

They preach nothing but class consciousness, and their official organ—The Worker—is an irresponsible and violent sheet that screams hatred in every line.

There is no place in Canada for such an organization or such a paper, and the local Trades and Labour Council has once more proven that there is no Red tinge to local labour by denouncing the Workers' Party in no uncertain terms.

The members of the Workers' Party should be invited to study the Sovietism of which they profess to be so fond at close range in Russia, the country where it is in full blossom, and where an opportunity is afforded of seeing the full beauty of the Red theory as it works out in practice.

An "On-To-Russia Week" for the Canadian Communists should be the next special week inaugurated.

IT IS TIME TO CLOSE THE DOOR.

To what poor, low depths has discussion sunk in the Ontario Legislature, asks the London Advertiser, when the dying hours of an assembly that is maintained by the money of the people are used to discuss these questions:

Did Andrew Hicks say what he meant about Mr. Drury, or was there anything more that he could say that was left unsaid?

Did Mr. Casselman tell something that took place in a secret U. F. O. caucus?

Did Mr. Casselman get a notice to attend caucus two days after other members were told to be present?

The Ontario Legislature is a place to transact the business of the Province—a meeting-ground for men sent there to enact wise legislation—a forum for the sane and reasonable discussion of our common problems.

It is not a place for men who nurse resentment to the point of hatred to empty the contents of their vials of wrath.

It is not a place to discuss what took place at a U. F. O. or a Liberal or a Conservative caucus.

It is not a place to wash the soiled garments of disgruntled members.

It is well that the key is to be turned in the door in a few days. The situation has gone beyond control, and the public is suffering, rather than benefiting, by the continued sitting of the legislature.

A DOUBTFUL PLAN.

While the need of curbing the speed maniacs who delight to drive at a mad rate along the highways is generally recognized, the method chosen by the Province of Quebec by which constables will be authorized to collect a $10 fine from the offenders on the spot instead of bringing them into court, is a questionable means of dealing with the matter.

In the first place, the widespread advertising of the fact that the fine is to be $10—no more and no less—is in itself sufficient to make speeders of a certain class more careless than ever about breaking the law.

A fine of that size is no deterrent to motorists of that type.

Again it seems a most unwise proceeding to set up hedge courts where constables are given the authority of a magistrate and the power to collect fines.

There will be constant temptation for such officials, as it will be difficult to eliminate attempts at bribery, and, at the same time, the motoring fraternity will be more or less at the mercy of these motor policeman, who with the law in their own hands are very likely to take unfair advantage of the responsibility that is being placed upon them.

Special traffic courts with magistrates empowered to inflict stiff fines where the circumstances warrant such punishment would seem to be a much more satisfactory way of handling the speeding problem than the plan that has been adopted by our sister Province.

SIR HENRY THORNTON'S PROBLEMS.

The visit of Sir Henry Thornton to London has drawn attention to the problem which he has on his hands. He has tackled what is generally regarded as the biggest railway problem in the world today. Canada has a population of under 9,000,000 people and yet has a bigger railway mileage than Great Britain with 46,000,000 people or France with 50,000,000 or Germany with 70,000,000.

Agnes C. Laut, the well-known Canadian author, writing in Forbes Magazine, points out that he has more than a job of putting a non-pay system on a pay-as-you-go basis and more than a job of transfering deficits of $100,000,000 into profits. Sir Henry has on his hands the solution of a world question: Can nationalized rails be made to pay as they go and at the same time render as efficient service as privately managed roads?

After reviewing the problem Sir Henry has undertaken, Miss Laut says that "if he solves it it will make him the greatest railroad executive the world has known. It will put him ahead of the Pierpont Morgan class, of the Harriman class, of the Rockefeller class, of the Henry Ford class."

Turning to the optimistic side, and there is need for optimism in Canada today, Miss Laut points out that:

"Sir Henry takes over a double-barreled transcontinental system of over 20,000 miles—22,000 if you include the unoperated portions—no one section of which has as sparse a population as along the C. P. R., when it stretched its first 3,000 miles timidly into the wilderness. On this road today the employees outnumber the population of the West from which the C. P. R. first drew its sustenance—109,000 men—and the population lining the Canadian Nationals today is 8,000,000—all of Canada. Its ships, too, ply the seven seas. The Canadian National marine has 60 ships; but they have not been co-ordinated into one great transportation system to get the maximum freight both outbound and inbound, as the C. P. R. system is co-ordinated."

Referring to the spirit in which Sir Henry is undertaking the task, Miss Laut says that he cannot afford to be beaten, as Canada will be beaten with him. However, Miss Laut is no pessimist as to Canada, and declares that the Dominion is a safer bet for a comeback than she was 10 years ago when the whole country was riding on the crest of a boom bubble. She closes in the following terms:

"Canada's currency has come back quickest to par of all the nations engaged in the war. Her trade per capita today is the third highest in the world, and while the low prices for her agricultural products are not giving them such swollen totals as they had for 1915 and 1920, the aggregate of her farm products is still colossal enough to wipe out all the capital debt of her National Railways in one single year. She is a slumbering giant just awakening as England awoke in the days of Queen Elizabeth."

This optimistic note is one that sounds cheerful and encouraging in these days when there are a lot of croakers abroad in the world. Sir Henry Thornton will find that he has Canadians of all classes and politics back of him in his effort to make the Canadian National a success. If it can be made a profit-making institution it will mean the removal of a burden from the backs of the Canadian taxpayer.—London Free Press.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Another level crossing fatality is reported, this time from St. Thomas. The need of unusual care at such danger points is once more illustrated.

Candidates are picked now, and in June a lot of them will be pickled by the electors.

Every community that gives Sir Henry Thornton a banquet seems to expect a new station in return.

The language of the Legislature is constantly being enriched. "Brass monkeys" and "tin soldier" are the latest addition to the list.

With five candidates running for the mayoralty, a very small vote is reported in St. Catharines, which evidently is troubled with the same apathy as characterizes Peterborough electors.

MRS. T. W. B. MARLING HEADS CONSERVATIVE WOMEN AT LAKEFIELD

Officers Elected at Rousing Meeting—Addresses By Women Prominent in the Political Arena.

LAKEFIELD, May 5.—A meeting was held in Leonard's hall on Thursday afternoon in the interest of the Women of the Liberal-Conservative party. There was a good attendance of ladies who were very attentive listeners and showed great enthusiasm for the cause. Mrs. Fallis of Peterboro presided and these officers were elected:

President, Mrs. T. W. B. Marling; 1st vice-president, Mrs. S. S. Spence; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. E. W. Bailey; secretary, Mrs. F. J. Burgess; treasurer, Mrs. (Rev.) A. W. Mackenzie.

After the election of officers Miss Boulton of Toronto addressed the ladies and urged strongly that the women accept the responsibilities which the granting of the franchise has put upon them. She said in part: It is distressing to see so many women, who are prominent in social, patriotic and citizenship work, not willing to be partizan in politics. Politics and government are one and the same and the country must be governed and women should shoulder their responsibilities in the matter. We have had an example of group government in the past four years and we have seen that the smallest group (the Conservatives) are the strongest for they have ever held up the rights of democracy.

The so called democratic U.F.O. government attempeted to bring in a redistribution bill to take away from many citizens the right to vote, but Howard G. Ferguson, who is always dignified and courteous, and his faithful lieutenants, fought against it day and night and eventually blocked the scheme. Mr. Drury actually said that Toronto people did not need representation because they had the seat of government at their doors. The charge against G. Howard Ferguson, re the Shrevlin-Clarke timber charges, has fallen through and the honorable gentleman has been completely exonerated.

When the U.F.O. gained power in 1921 the provincial debt amounted to about $92 millions; now after four years the debt is $240 millions. This affects every home in the province. Fifteen new methods of taxation have been imposed on us, and we, as individuals, have to pay.

Who raised the cry of class distinction between city and country but the farmer. There is no distinction as the city needs the city, try and the country needs the city. The farmer cried down a government which contained lawyers and yet the Farmers' Government have employed fifty-six lawyers and payed them a million and a quarter in the past four years. We need a mixture in one party not occupational groups; we need a strong party in power and opposition to keep them straight. The Conservatives have been true to their promise and stand by their platform.

Miss Boulton here outlined a program for organizing the forces for the coming campaign.

Her First Vote.

Mrs. Fallis of Peterboro was the next speaker, and she referred to her first vote which was cast in Saskatchewan, the frist province to give women the franchise. In the West the women were more enthusiastic than in the East, probably because condition there were so unfavorable to women.

The country has been flooded with foreigners, she declared, who were voting while Canadian-born women had no vote, so it was no wonder that there was enthusiasm among the women when the franchise was granted them. Some people say that politics are too sordid for women to soil their lily white hands with, but women always were better at house cleaning than men, she said, and they can clean up corrupt politics. Of course, every added advantage means added responsibility and we owe it to ourselves and our country to give more of our time and talents to the affairs of our own country.

The speaker eulogized the Conservative leader, G. Howard Ferguson, as a very able man and no novice in politics, being trained by Sir James Whitney, of whom there was none better. As to Arthur Meighan, we are all proud of him and he is second to no man in Canada. The Conservative party always stands pat, she went on to say, and we may all be proud of the party which gave us confederation and the National Policy. In Canada there is a strong revolutionary party which is growing in strength every day, especially in our cities and we need the stability of the Conservative party to combat it.

The Farmers' Need.

The farmers' need, Mrs. Fallis asserted, a strong organization for business purposes, and they signed their own death warrant when they entered politics, as their party has done little or nothing for the farmer They have failed to realize that city and country are inter-dependent and the only policy which stands the test of ages is the one which means the greatest good for the greatest number.

Referring to the enomous increase in the national debt, Mrs. Fallis said that while the Drury government claimed that their system of taxation hit only the big interests, we all pay and none can avoid it. The old party is not talking economy as an election promise, but will go to the country on its past record, which needs no defence.

Encouraging Words.

Mr. Roland Denne, president of the West Peterboro Liberal Conservative Association, addressed a few encouraging words to the ladies, after which Mr. J. C. Strickland, who is a candidate for the East Peterboro nomination, made a bright little speech urging the ladies to get behind the committee, and carry things through.

Both gentlemen offered the ladies their assistance and support.

The ladies put themselves on record by voting that a letter be sent to Donald Sutherland urging that Peterboro be left as a riding with its present county boundaries. A vote of thanks to the speakers and the singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting.

HEAT WAVE HAS INVADED LONDON

Canadians in Metropolis Search for Shady Nooks and Cooling Beverages —Ice Cream Popular.

LONDON, May 5. — (United Press).—Canadians in London this morning searched everywhere for cooling drinks and shady nooks. All heat records for the past fifty years were completely smashed this morning, the thermometer showing a temperature of 78 in the shade and 123 in the sun before noon. The sultryness added to the discomfort of residents and visitors.

London is inadequately equipped to deal with a heat wave just now. The biggest ice cream makers have broken all their past records to-day, with over five thousand gallons sold this morning at a conservative estimate. The chain of Lyons' restaurants sold sixty-two different mixtures from forty newly installed soda fountains, and London threatens to become as big a consumer of ice cream and soda fountain drinks as Canada or America. There is still, however, no ice in the hotel bars, and Americans found this an inconvenience and a hardship.

The Canadians in some offices defied tradition and discarded their coats and rolled up their shirt sleeves, but their example was not universally followed. It is not done in England.

IMMIGRANTS AT TORONTO FOR INDUSTRIAL CENTRES

TORONTO, May 5.—(Canadian Press).—Upwards of fifteen hundred settlers arrived in Toronto yesterday, the largest number to reach this city in one day since prewar days. Of the number about 350 remained in Toronto and the balance was booked for London, Hamilton and Ontario manufacturng centres.

Local railway and immigration officials state that they have never seen a better class of settlers than those who comprised yesterday delegation.

A TIMELY TALK BY JACK MINER

Large Audiences Greeted Famous Lover of Birds in Lakefield — Story of His Life.

LAKEFIELD, May 5.—Large audiences greeted Jack Miner on Wednesday, when he made his first appearance in Lakefield. In the afternoon he addressed a large and enthusiastic audience of school children in the Queen street theatre and in the evening a large audience (in which adults were in the majority) in the Methodist church.

Mr. Miner tell his story in his own inimitable way and it hardly needed the pictures to bring the scene clearly before one. The lesson of his lecture was plain for every boy or girl to read, the protection of birds. It is particularly timely at this season, when the birds begin nesting. Even the common woodpecker has its useful place in God's great place and instead of being hunted to death it deserves our protection. The robins, which can be tamed and made delightful pets, were shown with their little human friends, who gave protection and love to the feathered creatures and received in return love and confidence.

His Own Life.

Mr. Miner gave a brief account of his own life which was interesting. He was born of English parents, in the state of Ohio, near Cleveland and was one of a family of ten. His father found it almost impossible to make a living there and in 1878 he moved to Essex County, Ontario and hewed a home out of the bush. The family moved there April 23, 1878, and after years of hard work they made good. What good times that family had in spite of being poor but as the speaker said, "it's not what we have but the appetite to appreciate that counts."

In 1912 Mr. Miner had four wild duck eggs and he put them under a Wyandotte hen, who hatched them out and mothered the ducklings. He named theese ducks, Polly, Delilah, Susan and Helen. When fall came they left their stepmother and migrated south, they were all tagged and Mr. Miner received word that a man in Chatham had shot Helen. On March 14 of the following year Polly returned, in four days Delilah came and twelve days later Susan re-appeared. Susan was shot the next year but Delilah and Polly returned again. In 1915, Polly had part of her beak shot away so she wintered with the domestic fowl in the hen house. Delilah returned for the six time and raised five families 2 eights, 2 nines and 1 twelve.

Wild Geese.

So much for ducks, and now for the wild goose, or properly speaking the Canada goose. They have a language of their own undoubtedly. The gander in giving the alarm gives also the location of the enemy. Mr. Miner says the gander is the most godly principled creature he ever knew. He protects his mate during the time of incubation and also assists her in the care of the young. He is faithful till death many times. It was in 1908 that Mr. Miner had his first visit from wild geese and he prophecied their return the next spring and was the with of all the cheap humor of the locality but his prophecy came true as, on March 18, the next year back came the geese in increased numbers. This went on year by year till now the geese come in thousands, almost more than they find. One gander had a wing badly shot and came to his door; he amputated the wing and the gander remained there. Another gander became great friends with the injured one and when the fall came he remained with his friend and spent the winter with the hens. They called them David and Jonathan, and the frienship was a beautiful thing. Finally Jonathan was killed by an owl in protecting his friends, but this faithful bird had not lived in vain as the neighbors got up a petition and with the co-operation of the Essex County Wild Life Conserving Association petitioned the government to make Jack Miner's farm a sanctuary for wild life.

An Unique Epistle.

Mr. Miner has tagged a number of geese and has received letters from many places in Eastern United States and Canada. Many letters hve also come from the Hudson Bay district and one rather unique epistle from the convicts in Arkansas State Prison. Of later years Mr. Miner has stamepd a Bible text on the tags as well as the original "Box 48, Kingsville, Ontario."

Mr. Miner is a remarkable man and his plea for God's wild creatures is one not to be overlooked. D. H. Webster operated the lanterns for the pictures.

TO FOSTER DEVELOPMENT INTER-IMPERIAL TRADE

LONDON, May 5. — (Canadian Press.)— Presiding at the annual dinner of the London Chamber of Commerce, Lord Kylsant emphasized the potentialities for development of inter-Imperial trade, and said that essential foodstuffs and raw materials were procurable within the Empire to a far greater extent than ever before.

The Duke of Devonshire, Secretary of State for the Colonies, said the Government attached the most serious importance to development of inter-Imperial trade. Sir William Johnson, Postmaster General, promised to use every endeavor to further and better communications with the Dominions.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 5.—The first half holiday of the season was generally observed yesterday and was thoroughly enjoyed, the fine spring-like weather making it pleasant for all kinds of outings. There were numerous auto trips to Crow Bay, Trent Bridge and other nearby popular resorts and the members of the golf club were out in force on their links which command one of the finest views in the town. Several members of the Bowling Club indulged in their favorite pastime. TORTURING SCIATICA

A Nerve Trouble Due to a Watery Condition of the Blood.

Fierce darting pains. Pains like red hot needles being driven through the flesh—in the thigh, perhaps down the leg to the ankle—that's sciatica. None but the victim can realize the torture of this trouble. But the sufferer need not grow discouraged; the trouble is due to the fact that the nerves are being starved by poor, watery blood, and when the blood is enriched the pains of sciatica will disappear. As a blood enricher and purifier no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They bring to the blood just the elements necessary to restore it to normal richness and redness. That is why so many sufferers from sciatica, and other forms of nerve trouble, have found relief through taking these pills. Mr. D. M. Anderson, Beachburg, Ont., tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for him as follows:—"Some years ago I was badly afflicted with sciatica. I could hardly walk and suffered great pain when I did so. I went to a doctor, but his medicine did not seem to do me any good. A man who was working with me told me he had once been like that and that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had made him all right. I began to take them, continuing to work, and the trouble disappeared, and I did not lose a day, although sometimes I suffered terribly. Later I had another attack, and again the pills came to my relief. Now I take three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills every spring and fall, and I have had no attack of the trouble since that time."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

INSTINCT REVIVES IN CAGED ANIMALS.

Hunting and Killing Instincts Are Upon Them in Dark Hours.

LONDON, May 4.—(Associated Press).—Wild animals in captivity live at night an imaginative life entirely different from their dull day hours when the curious file by in front of their cages, according to R. T. Pocock, superintendent of the Zoological Gardens of London who is about to retire after many years of service. At night the inborn habits of the jungle show themselves in striking fashion, and the beasts throw off the sleepy veneer of indifference they seem to adopt when humans stand in front of their enclosures and speculate upon what might happen were the animals suddenly given their liberty.

Speaking of the differences he has noticed in the behaviour of wild beasts by day and night, Mr. Pocock says:

"If you go into the lions' house during the day you are nearly always impressed by peaceful way in which the animals regard you. But visit them in the darkness and instantly you are aware of the change.

"As if by magic their instincts to hunt and to kill have returned. Nothing is more weird than to walk past the cage of a lion or a tiger and then to turn around. To your astonishment you see that the animal, as you went by, has been stalking you, just as if he were still living in natural surroundings. On the instant you turn your head he drops flat on the floor of the cage His great, lithe body remains perfectly still as he lies there intently watching you. I do not think wild animals like these ever lose their instincts, no matter how long they are kept in captivity. And at night, when all is still and there are none of the distractions of the daylight, they can live again in the world from which we have brought them."

"In a climate like that of London," says Mr. Peacock, "animals in captivity must always be a source of anxiety, and the wonder to me is that they live so healthily. Most people, for some reason, appear to think that animals should never be ill, but that of course is absurd. My experience is that the weather affects them to precisely the same extent that it does human beings. Fog proves most depressing to all the Zoo inhabitants, while dry, sunny weather cheers them up and their happiness is undoubted.

"When you see a big lot of deaths recorded in the newspapers, you will note precisely the same mortality rate at the Zoo. Our birds with a covering of feathers, are, on the whole, very much abler to withstand cold and exposure than beasts protected by hair. You can keep tropical parrots in the open all the year round with comparative ease, and although you can do the same with a good many tropical animals covered with hair, you are never sure that what applies to one member of the species will apply equally well to others."

Mr. Pocock does not believe that wild animals ever make good pets. "No wild animals, in my opinion," he says, "can be relied on as a pet. Man already has domesticated practically all that can be domesticated."

OBITUARY

MRS. ISAAC.

COBOURG, May 5.—Mrs. Isaac, wife of Mr. Geo. Isaac, of Harwood, and before her marriage Miss Jennie Forbes, passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Scott, Port Hope. She was a daughter of the late Thomas Forbes and Mrs. Forbes, and was 47 years of age. Mrs. Isaac's death took place after an illness of several months. Towards the end of the year she was taken to the Port Hope Hospital for treatment, and about a month later was removed to the home of her sister, where she passed away. Besides her husband and an adopted child, Mrs. Isaac is survived by her aged mother, four sisters and two brothers: Mrs. Wm. Scott and Mrs. Sylvester Isaac, Port Hope; Mrs. Lockhart, of Peterborough; Mrs. Huggins, of Lakefield; Mr. James Forbes, of town, and Mr. Joseph Forbes, of Alberta.

Mrs. Isaac was a lady who was held in very high regard, and the regret is general over her passing, while much sympathy is felt with her husband, her aged mother, her brothers and sisters.

The funeral took place Thursday afternoon from the residence at Harwood to the Bethesda Presbyterian burying ground. Rev. Thomas McCord conducted the services.

As Economical As They Are Beautiful

Another Vulcanite Patented Shingle

The Vulcanite Self-Spacing Shingle—the self-spacing shoulder makes laying easy and economical and seals the roof against the worst ravages of the weather by sealing the upper half of the slot between shingles and effectively prevents rain, snow or sleet from being driven through to the roof boards.

YOU cannot place too much importance on the subject of the right roofing for your home. You know how very much an attractive, distinctive roof adds to its appearance. And also, how important it is to have durable, sealed-tight, fire-resisting protection.

Vulcanite Hexagon Slabs give you these desirable features in a way which no other shingle possibly can. The pleasing design, in either jade green or Indian red, makes an especially attractive roof. And the patented construction gives you a double thickness at every place. It also reduces the expense of application, for each slab automatically spaces itself. A Vulcanite roof resists fire and the cutting wear of weather, and costs less in the long run. It always lies flat and is an enduring source of satisfaction.

Ask your dealer to tell you about all the Vulcanite Roofings. There is a wide range, from roll roofings, both slate surface and smooth finish, for large buildings and small, to individual shingles and four-in-one slab shingles, for the most decorative roofs. You can identify the genuine by the Vulcanite name and the Beaver trademark.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, May 4.—On May 2 the grocers, hardware men, jewellers, butchers, drygoods merchants and others observed the Wednesday half holiday for the first time this season, and will continue to do so, it is expected, until October at least. Most of the local factories take Saturday afternoon off.

Prize Monies

In 1906 when the first Cobourg horse show was held prizes amounted to $1,000. Last year they amounted to $8,000. Some of the most successful exhibitors were: T. A. Crowe, Toronto, $786; G. W. Beardmore, $605; R. J. Fleming, Toronto, $160; Geo. Lucas, Toronto, $205; Frank Proctor, Toronto, $500; Mrs. Lulu Coombs, Lee Summitt, Mo., $695; Mrs. L. A. Livingston, Pontiac Stock Farm, Cobourg, $485; E. F. Stephens, Richmond Hill, $145; P. Duff & Sons, Myrtle, $235; Capt. Fletcher, $300.

President J. D. Hayden, in his address, showed that the horse show had lost heavily since its inception by deaths. Recently Mr. John Cunningham, the capable caretaker at the park, passed away. Other late prominent supporters were the late Chas. Donnelly, Alex. Pratt, W. R. Thompson, George Plunkett, Fred Jones, James Murray, Hon. Senator Beeth, Charles Widmott and others, all of whom had given to the Cobourg Horse Show generous and ready help.

Horse Show Park and its buildings are now free from debt and the property of the association. The success of the Cobourg Horse Show is not attributable to any fakirs as special attractions, for never in the fourteen years of its existence has any game of chance, midway or similar attraction been admitted to the grounds. This is a record that few other associations have achieved. People who visit the Cobourg Horse Show come to see the show alone, and there is usually evidence that they are fully repaid for doing so.

First Game in League

The town baseball league will open the season at the Victoria Park diamond on Saturday with a game between the Canadian National team and the Cobourg Dye Works. It is expected to attract a lot of fans.

Orphanage Children Guests

A kindly act was done Wednesday afternoon when the little children from St. Joseph's Orphanage here were admitted free to "The Girl in Red," a popular musical comedy put on here by the Cobourg Baseball Club under the direction of Mr. Theodore Bird. About one hundred and fifty local people are taking part.

Fishing is Better

Local fishermen report that fishing in Lake Ontario in this locality is now improving. It is thought that the warmer weather entices the fish to come nearer the shore.

Use Horse Show Grounds

The Cobourg Baseball Club has been given permission to use the Horse Show Park for ball games again this season. These grounds are among the best on the Central League Circuit.

Congregational Meeting

The annual Congregational meeting of the Methodist Church was held and passed off very successfully and enjoyably. The pastor, Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, B.A., B.D., made a capable chairman, and reports from the different departments showed that the work is being well sustained. These included the Mission Band, Mission Circle, Young People's League, W. M. S. Ladies' Aid, The Home Department of the Sunday School, the Mothers' Department, the Sunday School, the S. S. Orchestra, the Church Choir, the Poor Fund Committee, the Gymnasium Building Fund Committee and the Finance Committee. At the close of the business session the ladies of the church served dainty refreshments in the gym. A much-enjoyed musical programme was rendered also

Euchre and Dance

The local Catholic Women's League held a euchre and dance in the C. M. B. A. hall recently that passed off very successfully.

A Late Season

Although from some quarters there comes the statement that the present season will not be much later than many others, there has not been much seeding done by local farmers up to the present time. Most of the farmers have been on the land for a week or more ploughing and cultivating, and state that the ground is working up grand. Fall wheat, rye and clover are said to be looking comparatively well.

Mr. Gibson Secured Contract

At a special meeting of Hope township council held on Saturday afternoon, the contract for a new bridge at Canton was awarded to Mr. W. G. Gibson of Port Hope.

That there is considerable speeding on the provincial highway that must be stopped is the ultimatum of provincial officers. It is probable that there will be a number of summons issued to residents of both town and county.

TWELVE ACRE ATHLETIC PARK IN MAKING AT FAIR GROUNDS

Directors and Farmer Friends Have Worked Wonders on Ground Within the Race Track Enclosure — Will Seed and Roll It.

LAY OUT DIAMOND

Plowed and levelled from fence to fence, extending in all directions over its twelve broad acres with the sweeping smoothness of a parade ground, the west half of Exhibition Park within the enclosure of the race track presents a really wonderful transformation as a result of the fall and spring "bees" of the directors assisted by sympathetic, industrious farmers.

"It will be a lovely field," President Denne predicted last night, and any one who visits the Park will immediately visualize its finished appearance after the further work of rolling and seeding is completed next week. The rough spots have been ironed out, the little hollows filled in, and over all is an expanse of dark, loamy earth that will soon be verdant with new grass. And as further evidence of the thoroughness that characterizes all their undertakings the Board last night sanctioned the purchase of a horse-drawn lawn mower, four feet wide, to keep the grass cut under the favoring rains that are expected to be sufficient for normal growth.

Last fall, it will be remembered, the Directors made a preliminary start on the grooming of the grounds with the prospect that they would be used this season by the Central League baseball team. The band stand was moved away off to the east side, and plows turned up the sod, leaving everything ready for the continuance of the project this spring. And the present accomplishment speaks for itself and for the determination and willingness of the directors and their most helpful friends. Letters of appreciation will be sent out to all the farmers, those who are members of the Board as well as those who lent their teams and implements and labor freely and generously for the advancement of Peterborough's exhibition and the exhibition plant. Their services were given voluntarily and without charge, and for this material help the directors are deeply grateful.

The harrowed ground will be seeded and well rolled, and members of the baseball club have promised to lay out a diamond at once in order that it will be permanently placed and suitable to the surroundings. Ald Phelan and Frank Convery informed the Board last night that the baseball club appreciated their efforts to create an athletic park, and would contribute a fair share to the cost that has been entailed. It was suggested that the ball club might assume half the expense, but this detail was left in abeyance until the complete outlay is known.

"We made the overtures and we feel grateful to the Board," said Ald. Phelan, "and we wish to reciprocate within our means."

Reg. Turner remarked that the grounds might have been put into satisfactory shape for the opening of the baseball season had there not been signs and intimations that Riverside would again be used this season.

Vincent Eastwood said that all the members were sympathetic to the ball team. It was a factor in the community and citizens generally were interested in it. The grounds were being put in condition for athletic purposes, and in view of the likelihood of the games being played there in the near future it was expected that the team would assist in defraying some of the expenses of the work.

Mr. Convery believed that it was altogether likely that some games would be played on the new diamond some time this year to try out the grounds and get a line on them. This, however, is another matter for further consideration, and it was even proposed that ball games might be a feature of the exhibition attractions.

Any citizen who visits the Park in its present condition should be delighted with the improvements and changes that have been made. Those twelve acres stir the imagination to pictures of several games in progress at once, if necessary. There seems to be accommodation enough, and when the surface packs down under a green sward Peterborough will possess in this enclosure one of the finest athletic parks in the country, a community asset that is being built not merely for the present, but for the future and out of the long thoughts of the Exhibition directors, for that Peterborough and its legions of youth who are the promise of an early tomorrow.

END

The world will come to an end Dec. 12, 1954, predicts Father Genaro Rivera, Mexican monk and astronomer. He figured out the exact date by years of very complicated study of the stars through his telescope. His prediction is making quite a sensation in Mexico.

The end of the world has been predicted more times than you have hairs on your head, but the world still goes along as usual.

One of these days man will be able to understand the fourth dimension. Then our material universe—as we "see" it now, a three-dimensional existence—will undergo such a transformation, in our comprehension of it, that it in effect will "come to an end." Einstein is a voice in the wilderness. Unexplainable psychic manifestations are fourth dimensional phenomena.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

Sir:

Will you allow me now, on the brink of an election, to call the attention of the electors to a new issue. I have shown in my two previous letters that Mr. Drury permits a wine of a highly intoxicating nature to be sold under his prohibition act, thus deceiving the people in order to gain the support of the grape growers of Western Ontario.

We all admit that until prohibiton is changed by an express vote of the people itmust be honestly and faithfully enforced. But there is more than whiskey that should come within the range of prohibition so long as we have prohibition. For example, young girls saunter the streets at night or otherwise continue to get picked up by motor cars. It is well known that this has become a veritable plague and that it is primarily the fault of the female element in the community. Drunkenness has been stopped so to speak by prohibition. This other form and much more terrible form of debauchery must be prohibited also.

How? Just as whiskey is prohibited, that is by prohibiting the just and the unjust alike. Nobody shall be allowed to have a female in his car and no female shall be allowed to go in a car after, say, 7.00 p.m. The argument that this interferes with private rights will be trotted out again as in prohibition, but private rights no longer count.

Then (not to make my letter too long) consider for a moment the disease of divorce which is the prime curse of this continent. All families should be open to inspection at any time a government officer sees fit. All family quarrels and shortcomings should be dealt with just as whiskey is dealt with. This is carrying prohibition to its logical conclusion and manifestly it cannot be allowed to stop at whiskey. If we can stop vice by legislation we must do so. Yours respectfully,

J. H. Burnham.

BICYCLING ENTHUSIASTS FORMALLY OPEN SEASON

Each year for the past eight years, the spring and summer season of cycling has been formally opened by the country-wide observance of National Bicycle Week, the slogan for which is 'Ride a Bicycle.' The special week is being held in all provinces this year, with the exception of British Columbia, from Saturday, May 5, to Saturday, May 12, inclusive. On the Pacific Coast, an earlier date was chosen because of the more advanced weather conditions.

During Bicycle Week all of the leading bicycle stores are appropriately decorated, while special advertising is used in newspapers and otherwise to draw attention to the wonderful advantages to be gained through the use of the simple and economical bicycle.

Bicycle Week is a formal call to all people to get out into the great outdoors for exercise and pleasure. After an unusually severe winter, there are indications that every person will be more anxious than ever to seek the great open places. This is where the bicycle fits in for old and young, men, women and children.

Cycling is in a class by itself. It affords unusual economy in spite of the fact that it greatly extends the horizon of life for every devotee. The bicycle is an aid to healthful exercise, and it provides the cheapest form of personal transportation known. With a bicycle, a person enjoys advantages of economy, utility, sport, pleasure, exercise, convenience, independence and other benefits.

The popularity of the bicycle has become permanently established. It has been predicted many times that nothing will ever be invented that will exactly take the place of the bicycle. It has come to stay. There will be more cycling in Canada this year than for many years past.

"The World Moves on Wheels" is the slogan which was adopted recently by a prominent bicycle organization. Basic principles of the automobile and the areoplane were first developed in the bicycle. And the bicycle remains as the most simple form of vehicular propulsion.

In various cities of the Dominion, bicycle races, bicycle picnics, outings and stunts of different type will be staged during Bicycle Week and succeeding weeks to demonstrate the wide usefulness of the wheel. For many years, people have been taking the bicycle for granted, more or less, and the events which will be staged in many sections of the country will serve to remind people of the primal benefits of an old friend, the trusty two-wheeler.

FREAK

An auto that will travel on four legs instead of wheels! James William Bryan claims he has invented it. His description says the legs operate somewhat like human legs, going ahead without raising or lowering the body of the car. The speed? Bryan promises 81 miles an hour.

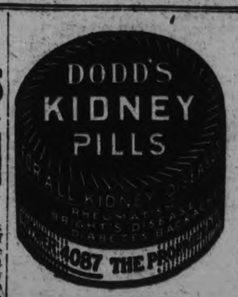
If there is anything more interesting in this week's news, we failed to see it. Recalling the derision that rose when the invention of the first wheeled "horseless carriage" was announced, we play safe and leave the commencing to you. Since a horse can travel on four legs, why not a machine?

PRICES

Housewives in Chicago, with great glee, are pinching themselves to see if they're awake. They can buy two loaves of bread for a nickel!

The low price is due to a war between two chain store organizations. One kind of war in which the average customer does not believe in peace conferences.

What's going on, in Chicago, tells you more about the benefits of competition and the disadvantages of monopoly than a professor could get in a five-pound book.



GOOD MANNERS.

It is no longer customary to require children to say "Yes, sir," or "Yes, ma'am," in answering their elders.

Still, some deference should be shown. Good form is "Yes, father," "No, mother," or "Thank you, Mr. Smith."

Manner is as important as the form of speech. The child should be courteous and respectful in conversation with those considerably older than himself.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

To "propose" the Austrian peasant hands to the girl of his choice a silver coin, wrapped in white paper and tied with a brilliant ribbon. The girl consults her parents.

In the event of a refusal, some male relative of the young woman returns the coin within three days. If that length of time passes without an answer, the suitor concludes that his offer has been accepted.

TIME TO PREPARE AUTO FOR TOURING

How to Avoid Accidents on Long Trips.

Time is drawing near to prepare for week-end and longer touring trips.

That means tuning up the car for long driving and rough wear and preparing for all sorts of emergencies.

Before starting on any trip the automobile should be thoroughly overhauled. All parts should be well lubricated, transmission greased, crankcase and gasoline tank cleaned out and new oil and fuel put in.

The gasoline line ought to be blown out, the vacuum tank cleaned and the carburetor put into shape for warm weather driving. A heavier oil should be used for the summer days.

Avoid Squeaks

Test the wheels for wobbling, tighten up all nuts and bolts to prevent rattling and squeaking, have the engine cleaned of carbon and tuned up.

Besides, there is oiling of springs, adjustment of various parts, tightening the steering mechanism and filling the battery.

After this, the car is fit to leave home for a long drive. But the wise motorist prepares himself for all sorts of needs along the road. He looks over his tool kit and sees that all tools he might possibly use are there.

List of Tools

A complete list of tools includes wrenches, pliers, a hammer, screwdrivers, files, wire, nuts, bolts, cotter pins, tire valves, pressure gauge, spark plugs, rim lugs, talcum powder, tape, an extra valve and spring, grease gun and an extra spring clip and bolts.

All these, besides spare tires, tubes, blow-out patches, tire pump, jack, chains, a box of cup grease and a can of lubricating oil. It is also good practice to take along a short plank to be used as a base in getting out of mudholes.

Careful driving and attention to all details in running the car will assure pleasure on long trips.

Allied court-martial sent a prison board to jail where they no doubt received a very warm welcome.

"I Had Terrible Backache From Kidney Disease"

Mrs. M. A. McNeill, Canaan Sta., N.B., writes:

"I was troubled for years with terrible backache, resulting from kidney disease. At times in each month I remained in bed, the pain was more than I could stand, and to walk was almost impossible. I used about $50.00 worth of other medicines, but with little results. Now I am completely better, after using only five boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

College Chumps

by Jack Lait

ONE of the main advantages of college for the youth lies in giving him a chance to sow his wild oats out of town, where the neighbors aren't in on all the details. Among those who don't get all the inside information about sonny's escapades during this period is mother. Dad usually knows. Little adventures cost money, and dad writes the checks and sends warnings and sage advice; but he winks as he tells his cronies at the club how the kid is reminding him of his own days, the young scamp.

Wild oats in a college town do not grow as tall and dense as they do in the cities that brag of their population. The deans keep an eye open, gossip spreads rapidly, and the townsfolk, reared and inured to successive classes and generations of students, have a knack of handling and understanding youths of the college genus.

Put a garrison of soldiers in a town for a couple of hundred years, and uniforms will be no novelty of themselves. Of course, the personal equation will survive, in or out of mass formation or group similarity. But a college boy in a college town is no more exciting, per se, than a millionaire on Wall Street, an actor in Hollywood or a tin lizzie in Indiana.

Throw a dozen people at random on a farm, and if one of them is a Harvard junior or a Princeton froshie, there will be a buzz among the hoydens and the matrons. It sounds so classy. But in the environs of their colleges, the male flappers are regarded as halfbaked citizens-yet-to-become, birds of passage who are here to-day but will not settle down to run drug-stores and garages here tomorrow like respectable locals, other people's wayward sons sentenced to college as good riddance.

The students, on the other hand, assume an attitude of superior tolerance against the merry villagers, assuming them to be hard-boiled natives of low brow and no sense of humor. Fraternizing is mutually discouraged. The constables represent the community spirit by riding the collegers incessantly where they would let the residents get away with murder, and the students combine against the town and jeer at its laws and customs.

All this, of course, with one important exception, the girls.

When a Yank army occupies enemy territory and comes back with wives, children and even mothers-in-law from the land of the foe, it isn't likely that flocks of young fellows can be sent away from home into American communities, where the average number of American maidens grow up and flourish, without the normal and customary manifestations of human nature.

Whereas it is true that college-town girls are not impressed by college boys just because they happen to be wasting their time instead of working in stores or factories, it is still indisputable that where you gather a thousand boys of every sort and a couple of hundred girls of any sort there will be skylarking and lollygagging—yes, and scandals and elopements and romances in every shade and grade.

The "college widow" type is in the minority. Propinquity is still the most potent influence of young love or any other kind of love. Most girls spoon with and marry neighbors, those whom they know most about. Chorus girls, who are generally advertised as hoodwinking the unsophisticated bulls and bears and the tired millionaires and the prodigal farmers, wed forty actors to every layman—the ones they come in closest and oftenest contact with. Any actor will "knock" chorus girls to you, and most of them will marry at least two or three. College-town girls will sneer at undergrads, who will give you the hoarse haw-haw at mention of them, but turn them loose on the Main street of a Saturday evening, and they will flirt and get together like any other male and female youngsters, anywhere.

And this story tells of it, which clinches the proposition.

In a little freshwater burg known beyond its borders only because it housed a seat of learning that had been cemented into the nation's history, dwelt Ma and Pa Newcomb and their attractive grand-daughter, Lottie Farris.

The grand-parents had a dislike for college boys that was not purely academic—it was personal, specific and enthusiastic.

Lottie's mother had married a boy who had come to that town to go to that college. It had been a most unfortunate, disastrous romance. Genevieve Newcomb had been without a disputing rival the prettiest girl of her decade in that region, had been courted by every well-to-do bachelor who could get close enough to her to make known his honest intentions; she could have had a Congressman, a banker, a mucilage-manufacturer, and any number of upright, reliable, homespun young scions of nearby estates and industries.

But—no! She had met Homer Farris, the son of a Chicago publisher, and the whole vista within the horizon of the town had gone blank to her.

Against the bitter opposition, the tearful pleas, the unequivocal interdictions of her parents, Jenny Newcomb, the flower of the county, had run off with this alien stranger. He did marry her—somewhere along the line—and that was about the only decent thing he had done. Within a year she was a deserted, acidulated wreck, with an infant, back home; a few years later she died. What had become of Farris no one exactly knew or much cared. He never came, he never wrote, no word of him trickled through his oblivious absence since the day when he had given the crushed flower a cruel farewell in a distant city.

The grand-parents had raised Lottie. They had dedicated her to a hatred for college boys and had dinned into her ears from babyhood that the college boys were of another race and kind—hostile foreigners who were not to be regarded like other young men, but to be viewed like huns and vandals, godless and mischievous invaders.

During her early years, little Lottie, who worshipped her adoring grandparents, subscribed to their prejudice with vigor. She threw surreptitious snowballs at the enemies, put out her pink tongue at them, slammed the gate and ran into the shelter of her home whenever one attempted to toy with her girlish curls, and deliberately left them out of her prayers when she asked divine mercy on sinners.

When she grew to be a rangy, jointy girl of fourteen and began to realize what the boy thing was all about, her childish feud against them crystalized into an adolescent enmity more substantial. She was beginning to be flirted at, and she could now give back something to make these loafers understand how and where they stood with her. She now threw the snowballs with her pretty eyes and no longer needed to put out her tongue to indicate with her pink mouth that their overtures were distasteful, and many a soph who had thought rather well of himself furrowed his forehead when he got from Lottie an expression of contempt such as no child can and no woman will return for an unwelcome approach.

He Stood for One Flash Stupefied, Then Burst Into a Silly, Flabbergasted Grin.

Lottie's chums were already exchanging whispered confidences about mysterious flirtations and "dates" and notes and bumpings of their hearts when she was still solidly true to her colors—thumbs down on college boys was her principle.

Meanwhile she grew prettier and prettier. Every fellow in the school knew of her. It came to be more than a chase—it was a challenge. Long-lived fame as a Romeo awaited the chap who could be seen walking down the street with Lottie Farris.

Her history was well known. That she was the daughter of an alumnus of the school and a village peacherino made her a college-boys' sweetie by inheritance and tradition.

Mash-notes were no novelty to Lottie before she was seventeen. Telephone calls were almost daily adventures. Out-and-out flirtations in public places were the regular thing and Lottie handled them with a system—the "turndowns" were obvious and deliberately rude; so that in time the student who gave Lottie the familiar "works" knew that he would be razzed on the campus and in dormitory. But still they tried, for in every man somewhere is that germ which survives good advice and repeated proofs, and still cries in voice audible only to the egotism it inhabits: "That may go for those other chumps—but not ME." Men rob and murder after they have heard of a million who were punished for such crimes; fools rush into the stock market and angel musical shows and marry frivolous girls and do all sorts of rash things because, while they cannot miss knowing that others have been burnt, they still believe themselves asbestos-skinned.

And so the freshies grew to sophs and the sophs to juniors and the juniors to seniors and the seniors to departing grads, and each class handed to its successor the "dave" to interest, if not to capture, Lottie Farris, daughter of the class of '04, Beta Theta Kappa. From the town girls who did give ear and cheek and lips to the students, cases were kept on the state of Lottie's heart. And the reports rarely wavered—she was still free, available and unapproachable.

The boys sucked their pipes and shook their heads as they passed the window of the Newcomb house at nights; the piano lamp alight, the cozy rocker and the hospitable davenport mocking them, and perhaps Lottie, with her back turned, reading or crocheting. Each of them dreamed of nonchalantly parading cat-a-corner across the college square, arm in arm with Lottie. The captain of the football team after annihilating the ancient enemy college by running the length of the field would stop dead still in envy of such a one. But—where was he? Who would penetrate the cold armor of steel that encased the tantalising, impervious college orphan?

Fred Hollison would!

The reason why in every man there burns a germ which says "That goes for the other chumps—but not ME," hereinbefore mentioned, is that nothing is impossible; whereas it is true that many accomplishments are difficult and their consummation is a 1,000-to-1 bet as against any individual, there is almost nothing impossible. And here and there does come the man who breaks the bank, the man who beats the law, the man who puts his quota on the minority divisor which goes into the established dividend to make a quotient which, while small, is still bigger than zero.

Fred Hollison, entered from a military academy in the East, a brighteyed and square-shouldered youngster of wholesome stock, was to be the hero of the season.

And, as so tragically often happens in the making of heroes, the fame was to be thrust on him. For Hollison had been in school scarcely long enough to have thoroughly imbibed the legend of Lottie Farris when Lottie, herself, fell desperately in love with him and took the initiative.

They met at church. As warmly as the towns folk disliked the students, they felt it the Christian thing to urge upon them attendance at the houses of worship. Hollison, more because he had been accustomed to regular church-going in the military routine of his preparatory four years than because he was a devout communicant, attended services when he became a college man. And, since he chanced to be of the same creed as the Newcombs, he met Lottie. And Lottie felt herself wingless—felt the steel armor melting away like ice cream on the Fourth of July—when she met Fred Hollison.

There are plausible stories of women who misunderstood the emotions of men—tons of them. But few writers have been foolhardy enough or stupid enough to write of men who long doubted when women loved them. A woman can camouflage anything but that, and do it better than any other sex. But when she falls in love with a man—blah! She cannot disguise it from any one-eyed imbecile in the same county; much less so from the man himself. And, while Holly hadn't run through much experience with girls, he knew it—at once—and with a bang.

Lottie didn't dare invite him to her home—hers and her grandparents'. And maneuvering to meet him elsewhere within the range of village and college eyes was as foolhardy. She knew well enough that her being seen with a varsity boy would assume the exaggerated proportions of a scandal. Her position was a matter of public knowledge and had been one of broad comment.

But Lottie was in love. These incidental considerations counted, but only where they did not stifle the main issue. Meet Fred she would. How was a question to be given deep scrutiny and searching thought—how, but not whether! For a whole week she considered it to the exclusion of all other brain matters. And when she met him again at church she had decided.

It had weighed on Holly's mind, too—plenty. The touch of her hand sub rosa, the look in her lovely eyes, had wakened in him something he hadn't dreamed he had. He was as dizzily in love as Lottie was now. Not a word had he ventured, even to his roommate, Billy Elders. Billy, in truth, had several times that week chanced to mention Lottie, and confided to Holly some boyish plans he was formulating to make himself attractive in Lottie's cold eyes. Holly listened and said nothing. He had problems on his mind, too precarious and weighty to permit jeopardy by impulsive interjections that might precipitate—and disclose—the secret that was swinging him between the heaven of ecstasy and the depths of doubt.

When Holly and Lottie met again it was as though they had talked it all over for hours in the secure seclusion of a rendezvous. Their hands met for one all-answering pledge, and Lottie whispered:

He squeezed her hand for reply. And they both slipped away to join their expected "folks." Neither drew much spiritual inspiration from the sermon or the hymns that afternoon. When it was all over, and the preacher was beatifically greeting his flock out, Holly slipped into the vestry chamber and Lottie into the Sunday school room. When the last of the congregation had left they came out and came together.

"Lottie," he breathed, "this is wonderful of you."

"Freddie," she sighed, "this IS wonderful—but not of ME."

"D-do you l-l-ove me?" he asked, eagerly and earnestly.

"With every drop of my blood," she told him. "And—you?"

"I'm crazy over you—sick over you," he said, with all the manly poesy of a boy. "I can't understand it or realize it. Nothing like it ever, ever happened to me before. I want to die for you."

"Kiss me, darling," she gasped.

And there, on the hard bench worn in grooves by the shifting, squirming generations of churchgoers, he knelt beside where she sat, took her into his strong young arms, and their clean, honest, virginal lips met.

No dramatist can write the glory of the first lovers' kiss. It is not given to youth, which alone can feel and follow love at its noblest and finest, to apostrophize such a moment in the written word; and when the hair is graying and the spirit to write it is at its fullest, the memory can only hasily recall that exuberant moment, after which all life is an anti-climax. Only children know how to love—to love with that blind, all-effacing, hot, decent passion that takes no count of material things and grasps as its own the ethereal, the indescribable, the incredible things!

Holly and Lottie, in that first long, tremorous embrace, wept—both of them.

And when he drew away, slid his two hands down her slender arms until they held both of hers, with his first breath he said:

"You're mine, sweetheart. And I'm yours!"

"Forever!" she echoed. "Forever!"

Then, with a few quick assurances and a parting caress, they separated; for the world was still humming about them and they had their plans to carry out.

For three days Holly was absent at all his lectures. For three days Lottie's domestic routine was shattered by a series of absences and alibis—she was detained here and delayed there and called thither and needed yon. The old folks were shrewd in their own environment and programme of life, but they trusted Lottie, and they were not querulous.

The big moment came on Thursday.

It was at just about the time when a hundred of the students and as many of the steady inhabitants would be out and about that Main street stood stock still. For around the corner came Fred Hollison, and on his arm—beaming and walking on air as though it were entirely the proper thing to do—was Lottie Farris: Lottie the impervious, the unapproachable, the college-boy despair.

The first to spy them was Billy Elders, Holly's roommate. He stood for one flash stupefied, then burst into a silly and flabbergasted grin. Was this an optical bunco—was he seeing things? No. Every one else in sight was simultaneously obsessed, was gawking, was b'-goshing.

Down the street, apparently quite preoccupied in one another, they strolled. Then she said something to Holly, who smiled; and he answered and she giggled.

Elders could stand the suspense no longer. He hurried after them—in a skip, then a run, overtook them, greeted them.

"Oh, hello!" said Holly.

"Hell—hello," stuttered Elders, raising his hat. "Going anywhere in particular?"

"Yep. To the station—to buy some tickets."

"Oh! Traveling? Where to?"

"It's a secret," said Holly. "That is, it isn't exactly a secret where the tickets are for, but the rest is—why we're going, and all that."

"It's too deep for me," confessed Elders. "How—that is—I don't get the angle. How can you and Miss—Miss Farris, I believe—go out of town this way—that is, together—I—well, I hope I haven't said anything out of turn or anything, but——"

"I am NOT Miss Farris," gurgled Lottie.

"And we're going to Niagara Falls," laughed Holly.

"Holy mackerel!" barked Elders. "Are you married—already?"

"I'll say we are," they told him, together.

"I'll say you'd better be," he groaned, "or your reputations are ruined after this—both of you. Good luck, ol' hoss. And my best to you, Miss—Mrs. Hollison . . . hey, there's a crowd gathering . . ."

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

The PRIDE of PALOMAR

By Peter B. Kyne

Thirty-two little Japanese boys and girls, three Mexican or Indian children and four of undoubted white parentage trooped out into the yard and gathered around the car, gazing curiously. The school-teacher bade them run away and play and, in her role of hostess, approached the car. "I am Miss Owens," she announced, "and I teach this school because I have to earn a living. It is scarcely a task over which one can enthuse, although I must admit that Japanese children are not unintelligent and their parents dress them nicely and keep them clean."

"I suppose, Miss Owens," Farrel prompted her, having introduced himself and the Parkers, "that you have to contend with the native Japanese schools."

She pointed to a brown house half a mile away. Over it flew the flag of Japan. "They learn ancestor worship and how to kow-tow to the Emperor's picture down there, after they have attended school here," she volunteered. "Poor little tots! Their heads must ache with the amount of instruction they receive. After they have learned here that Columbus discovered America on October 12th, 1492, they proceed to that Japanese school and are taught that the Mikado is a divinity and a direct descendant of the Sun God. And I suppose, also, they are taught that it is a fine, clean, manly thing to pack little, green, or decayed strawberries at the bottom of a crate with nice big ones on top—in defiance of a state law. Our weights and measures law and a few others are very onerous to our people in La Questa."

"Do you mean to tell me, Miss Owens," Parker asked, "that you despair of educating these little Japanese children to be useful American citizens?"

"I do. The Buddhist school over yonder is teaching them to be Japanese citizens; under Japanese law all Japanese remain Japanese citizens at heart, even if they do occasionally vote here. The discipline of my school is very lax," she continued. "It would be, of course, in view of the total lack of parental support. In that other school, however, the discipline is excellent."

She continued to discourse with them, giving them an intimate picture of life in this little Japan and interesting revelations upon the point of view, family life and business ethics of the parents of her pupils, until it was time to "take up" school again, when she reluctantly returned to her poorly paid and unappreciated efforts.

"Well, of course, these people are impossible socially," John Parker admitted magnanimously, "but they do know how to make things grow. They are not afraid of hard work. For one that is why they have supplanted the white farmers."

"Indeed they do know how, Mr. Parker. And they can produce good crops more cheaply than any white farmer. A Japanese with a wife and two fairly well-grown daughters saves the wages of three hired men. Thus he is enabled to work his ground more thoroughly. When he leases land he tries to acquire rich land, which he robs of its fertility in three years and then passes on to renew the outrage elsewhere. Where he owns land, however, he increases fertility by proper fertilization."

"So you do not believe it possible for a white man to compete economically with these people, Farrel?"

"Would you, if you were a white farmer, care to compete with the Japanese farmers of this valley? Would you care to live in a rough board shack, subsist largely on rice, labor from daylight to dark and force your wife and daughter to labor with you in the fields? Would you care to live in a kennel and never read a book or take an interest in public affairs or thrill at a sunset or consider that you really ought to contribute a dollar toward starving childhood in Europe? Would you?"

"You paint a sorry picture, Farrel," Parker was evasive.

"I paint what I see before me," he answered doggedly. "This—in five years. And if this be progress as we view progress—if this be desirable industrial or agricultural evolution, then I'm out of tune with my world and my times, and as soon as I am certain of it I'll blow my brains out."

Parker chuckled at this outburst and Kay prodded him with her elbow—a warning prod. The conversation languished immediately. Don Mike sat staring out upon the little green farms and the little brown men and women who toiled on them.

"Angry, Don Mike?" the girl asked presently. He bent upon her a glance of infinite sadness.

"No, my dear girl, just feeling a little depressed. It's hard for a man who loves his country so well that he would gladly die a thousand dreadful deaths for it, to have to fight the disloyal thought that perhaps, after all, it isn't really worth fighting for and dying for. If we only had the courage and the foresight and the firmness of the Australians and New Zealanders! Why, say, those sane people will not even permit an Indian prince—a British subject, forsooth—to enter their country except under bond and then for six months only. When the six months have expired—heraus mit em! You couldn't find a Jap in Australia, with a search warrant. But do you hear any Japanese threats of war against Australia for this alleged insult to her national honor? You do not. They save that bunkum for pussy-footing, peace-loving, back-ward looking, dollar-worshiping Americans. As a nation we do not wish to be awakened from our complacency, and the old theory that a prophet is without honor in his own country is a true one. So perhaps it would be well if we discuss something else—luncheon, for instance. Attention! Silence in the ranks! Here we are at the Hotel De Las Rosas."

Having dined his guests, Farrel excused himself, strolled over to the railroad station and arranged with the agent for cattle cars to be spotted in on the siding close to town three days later. From the station he repaired to the office of his father's old attorney, where he was closeted some fifteen minutes, after which he returned to his guests, awaiting his return on the wide hotel veranda.

"Have you completed your business?" Parker inquired.

THE AUTOIST WAS AN AUTOMOBILER

In the Phraseology of Twenty-Five Years Ago.

"Automobilers"—take notice!
Your car must have brake that will stop it within ten feet.
Speed limit is eight miles an hour.
An alarm bell must be carried on each automobile.
No, that's not the latest edict of an enraged community.
It's just the type of ordinance framed by the big cities some 25 years ago. It didn't stay long in force, as present automobile practice shows. But while it was in force, the "automobiler" was under strict control.
"Automobiler," by the way, was the official term, then, for the motorist.

The new toy caused lots of trouble to men and women of note in those days. It developed what a Philadelphia physician termed "wrong lever mania."
Three control levers in the automobile caused confusion. There was the one "to steer with," the one "to go fast with," and the third "to stop short." And just when the driver is called upon to act quickly, he pulls the wrong lever.
This "wrong lever mania," declared the physician, is what caused Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, at Newport, to drive over a stone wall, up a flight of steps and through the stained glass window of the music room of a friend.
Attacked by the same bug, Alfred Vanderbilt found himself going backward down a cliff into the sea, and another society leader ran headlong into a glass greenhouse.

Automobile drivers were much less in good standing with the public—the walking public—than they are today. In fact, criticisms went as far as threatening suppression of the automobile. A typical editorial criticism read:
"If drivers of automobiles are to be allowed the free use of the streets, they will have to be more considerate of others' rights and more observant of the rules of the road than some of them are at present. Otherwise there is danger of a public demand for their suppression."

Even in those early days, the fuel problem hit the motorist hardest. A unique solution was offered by a Chicago inventor, who announced that he would soon have in operation an automobile propelled by liquid air!
His was only one of several proposals to use liquid air as a motor fuel. They failed then, but perhaps engineers of to-day are reviving the idea in their quest for a gasoline substitute.

The automobile was recognized at its early stages as an aid to the church. That's why Rev. A. S. Parsons, of Oakland, Cal., had a gospel automobile built for himself and hit the trail for revival services.

* * *

Kansas City's grades caused considerable delay in the inauguration of the automobile there. They couldn't climb 'em, and what was worse, once on top, they were hard to control coming down.
Formation of a local auto manufacturing firm broke the ice there.

It was a hard start the automobile got. But it soon established itself through recognition of influential organizations. The U. S. postoffice department was among the first to accept the auto in the country's transportation system. Chicago celebrated when two "self-propelled motor vehicles" were brought to carry the mails.
And in Philadelphia, the authorities at Fairmount park began taking note of the autos entering the park grounds. In one month, 23 years ago, the authorities reported 85 automobiles entered the park.
And "not a single accident occurred to or on account of any of these vehicles."

They claim it was smoke which overcame a fireman when 75 Bryn Mawr girls marched out in night clothes.

Sallow, muddy, roughened or blotched complexions are usually due to constipation.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Want Ad Tips by John T. Bartlett

FACTS ABOUT SCARCITY.

If your article is scarce, hard to obtain, mention of the scarcity in your want ad and it will help you to sell quickly. A short, diminishing supply in a commodity has a peculiar power to make average people wish to acquire it. You see a demonstration of this in the keen competition among buyers at a store sale, when the quantity of a certain article offered at a bargain price is definitely limited.

Study the following want ads:

"Last shipment of the season of genuine elk teeth; guaranteed; 29 in lot; only one to customer. From past experience, I predict these will not last three days, and if you wish to buy, phone me at once. J. S. Capelle, the jeweler."

"One vacancy for permanent room at Y.M.C.A. Apply 8 o'clock tonight."

"One front office, H. & S Building, $70. Applicants must give bank references."

"Strawberry plants at half price. To all customers, this week only, I will sell best varieties strawberry plants at half regular prices. Belding, Horticulturist, Stonewood."

All of these want ads, it can confidently be expected, will pull well. Certainly, desire for the H. & S. Building office will be stimulated because it is an "exclusive" building, offices are difficult to obtain; more will want to room at the "Y" because demand is very keen for rooms there; desire for genuine elk teeth will be sharpened under the conditions described. Nor can there be any doubt that strawberry plants will sell quickly because the number offered at a bargain price is limited.

There is no purpose in suggesting scarcity in a want ad when such doesn't exist. It is not square, in the first place; and in the second place, the want advertiser is using space idly which, giving correct information, might make a sale. When actually there is scarcity, keen demand, it is usually good advertising to indicate them in the want ad. Readers will step lively in response.

We Have Your Copy Of An Interesting Book On Internal Baths. It Is Free

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell always claimed his life was saved by Internal Bathing.

And that after it made him well, it kept him 100% well and efficient for many years.

This is not hard to believe when Physicians agree that most human ills are caused by accumulated waste in the lower intestine and no medicine has ever been found to keep it free from these poisons.

Dr. Tyrrell's book tells why and how this has been the means of freeing over a million of enlightened men and women, many right here in town, from "that tired feeling" as well as the more serious illnesses which follow if the pernicious poisons are not cleansed out.

Pure warm water, scientifically administered, will take these poisons out and keep them out.

Ask to-day for this book—"Why Man of To-day is Only 50% efficient"—Remember it is free to you.

"A Plea For Unity"

The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, D.D., the famous London preacher, delivered an address a few years ago, at Manchester, to the National Free Church Council of Britain on the subject of the "Essential Unity of the Church," part of which is here given. This address is of special interest just now for two reasons, first in view of the coming action of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at its coming meeting in June on the question of Church Union, and, second in view of the visit of Dr. Morgan to our city next September, arrangements for which are now under way. Some idea of Dr. Morgan's style may be gathered from the following words. He said then in part: "The duty is that of clear vision, and resolute obedience to all which that vision implies. We need, in order to clear vision to return from ecclesiastical discussion to Biblical revelation. To see the church as she is revealed in these Scriptures is to see something infinitely greater than Episcopalianism, Presbyterianism, Congregationalism, and to see indeed that which not only may, but does, include them all, and also many souls not included in either system. The vision will not make me less a Congregationalist, but so much more a Churchman as to be able to discuss systems without bitterness and to recognize the Churchman of all who share the one Life through the one faith in the one Lord. It is not by any means enough to see the vision. We must yield to its light and we must give diligence to this; and this means that we must zealously cultivate the true temper of lowliness and meekness, and actively practise the graces which grow out of such temper, those namely of long suffering and forbearance in love. All this is so self-evident that one is almost ashamed to state it. Yet here is the place of our most terrible failure in the past. Blurred visions of the Church have resulted in all things of bitterness, aloofness, distance, within her borders, which have prevented her fulfilment of the true vocation for which she is prepared, and to which she is called by the infinite grace of God.

The first effects of the vision observed, that is, seen and obeyed, will be a passion or personal worthiness and a glad recognition of the worthiness of others. The supreme concern of true churchmanship is that personal life may be in harmony with the truth, and so contribute to the perfecting of the church unto the fulfilment of its high and holy calling. Each individual church member, walking in the light, mastered by love, subdued by grace, and sustained by truth, is hastening the coming of the Day of God by fulfilling his or her true place in the body of the Spirit. "Unto each one of us was the grace given. . . until we all attain unto the unity of faith."

When this is truly the concern of the individual soul, it will follow so surely as moon follows dawn, that the heart will be mastered by a new sense of the worthiness of all who share the like precious faith, however widely they may differ in their convictions concerning ecclesiastical polity or interpretations of truth. There will be an overwhelming sense of the communism of our life. The chief sacredness of communion is not so much that we share a common life, though that is a potent factor in the realization of our unity, but that the common life we share is the life of Christ Himself. How can I think slightingly of or separate myself from, any soul who is made a sharer of that sacred life by the Holy Spirit, in answer to a confiding trust in the One Lord? How is it possible that any child of the One God and Father can hold in contempt, or withdraw from actual fellowship with other of His children, when over all He rules, through all He works, in all He dwells! It is unthinkable and impossible, and wherever it is so, it is because the unity of the Spirit is not seen, or, worse is wilfully disobeyed in its claims There will also be a keen sense of the preciousness of the varied experiences of the saints. That apprehension of the Lord which I do not share experimentally may yet be of a priceless value. For its understanding I may have no capacity. But the world is needing the revelatiotn of God, and it should be to me a wonder and a joy that what I cannot fully appreciate is yet having its expression and exercising its power through others. One sees Him as the Saviour of individual men; another, as the One Master in a true social order; yet another has the vision of Him as the Preserver of childhood; and still another finds in Him the Teacher of the ultimate philosophy. Is any of these wrong? None will dare to say so. Then let each be true to the measure of his own apprehension, while rejoicing in those of his comrades in the faith which do not make the same appeal to him.

Let but this vision of the spiritual unity of the Church master us and we soon shall relegate to their secondary and proper place all questions of ecclesiastical polity, ritual, and human opinions. I do not say that these things are unimportant. I do say that they are secondary, and that the distance between the first things, and all that follows, is so vast that it is to our eternal shame that we allow these to divide us in our testimony to the world.

Let but this vision be observed, and we shall fulfill our calling in every age, and in every place, and through us God may be seen and known in His exceeding Grace and many coloured wisdom by men individually and by nations and races.

The hour is almost electric with opportunity and need. There is the most urgent need for the re-publishing of the central verities. The essential relation between God and the human soul needs to be made real to the seared conscience of the age. The facts of the absolute holiness and unfathonable grace of the Divine heart must be proclaimed afresh and with prevailing power. The application of these verities must be made to the new conditions emerging from the appaling conflict of these past years Justice and Mercy, Light and Love, Grace and Truth heed new exposition and enforcement.

All this is the real work of the Church. What dire disaster if we fail. Let us then cease seeking for uniformity, or attempting to compel unanimity and let us give diligence to observe the unity of the Spirit that we may indeed walk worthily of our vocation."

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Relieved Her of Headaches

Headache seems to be habitual with many people, and some, if any, are seldom free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief.

In all cases of headache the treatment should be directed to the removal of the cause, and with the cause removed the headaches will vanish.

It is impossible to find a better remedy for headaches of every description than can equal B. B. B., acting as it does on every organ of the system.

Mrs. Douglas Riseborough, 280 McKenzie St., Sarnia, Ont., writes: "Having suffered from severe headaches for a considerable length of time I decided to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and found that it helped me wonderfully. It relieved the headaches, and I noticed a decided improvement in my health."

Burdock Blood Bitters is a remedy that has been on the market for the past forty-four years, so you don't experiment with some new and untried medicine. It is put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Father of Rev. S. T. Tucker Passes Away — Home - Made Cooking Sales—Personal Mention

MILLBROOK, May 5. — The ladies of Grace Presbyterian church held a successful sale of homemade bread, buns, cakes, pies, etc., in Mr. W. E. Ball's store, on Saturday afternoon, the appetizing wares selling rapidly. Mrs. James H. Paul, Mrs. G. S. Gervan, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. W. T. Deyell, and others were in charge. It is probable that such sales for the summer months, will be held the evenings, as a larger number of people are in town then than in the afternoons, and everybody's convenience will be better suited by such an arrangement.

Rev. Tucker Bereaved.

Rev. S. T. Tucker received the sad news on Thursday that his father, the late Rev. William Tucker, had passed away at his home in Toronto that morning, following an extended illness. The funeral will take place today.

Services Withdarwn.

Owing to Rev. Mr. Tucker's absence and the late day in the week when he was obliged to leave for the city to attend his father's funeral, the services, both morning and evening, will be withdrawn in the Methodist church on Sunday, May 6, the Sunday school being the only gathering for the day. The sacrament service, which was to have been held at 10.30 a.m., will be postponed for one week. It was found impossible to secure a supply for the preaching services on such short notice. Rev. J. Wilks, who is usually available, whose sermons are greatly apreciated, is not yet in suppficiently good health to attempt any pulpit work.

News Paragraphs.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kells motored down from the city on Tuesday to attend the funeral of his cousin, the late Thomas Kells Brown, which took place at Bethany upon arrival of the 9.35 C.P.R. train from Peterboro. Deceased was a well known gardener, who resided in Otonahee, and the funeral service at the family residence was in charge of Rev. J. F. Chapman, and was held at 8 p.m. on Monday evening. Mrs. Harris, who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Kells, from Toronto, was the guest of the Misses Mary and Annie Kells.

Mr. R. Doak of the Bank of Toronto, Colborne, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Doak, over the week-end.

Mr. W. H. Collins, manager of the Bank of Commerce, Kitchener, was the guest of his mother, Mrs. T. B. Collins, over the week-end.

Mr. F. Pendrie was a business visitor to Peterboro on Thursday.

The Motor Car Problems
(By Backfire)

Clutch Leather

Motor Editor: (1) As I am about to install a new clutch leather on my car, would like to know which side of the leather I should use next the surface of the flywheel—the smooth side or the rough side?

(2) Since changing the tires on my car from 30x3½ to 31x4, my speedometer will not register correctly and I would like to know where I could purchase a gear to work with the 31x4 tires?—H. M.

Answer—I advise putting the rough side of the clutch leather out. Some differ with me in this, but I have had the best reports on doing in this way. Be sure to apply neatsfoot oil to the leather before putting it in and then once in awhile after.

(2) You can secure a proper gear for your speedometer to take care of the oversize tires by writing to the branch house or supply house for it.

Radiator Coated

Motor Editor: I have a 1917 model, 490 Chevrolet, the radiator of which is coated with sediment caused from the continued use of hard water. This has affected the circulation to such an extent that I cannot keep my motor cool. It looks like a case of remove the sediment in the cooling system or buy a new radiator. Will you kindly tell me if there is anything with which I can clean out the cooling system? The motor otherwise is all in good condition. —M. N, H.

Answer—If you could get your car near a steam line of any kind, put a good strong solution of borax and water in the radiator and then take off the lower connection and run the steam through, you would get rid of a lot of sediment. If you cannot do this, then take off the radiator and plug the filler cap. Turn the radiator upside down and fill with the solution and leave it for an hour. Then open the filler cap and run a stream of water from a hose through the radiator backward, that is run it in the bottom and out of the top.

Cylinders Pump Oil

Motor Editor: Two cylinders of a McLaughlin-Buick D-45 pump oil. Would you advise having the cylinders rebored or just new rings put on?

What will waterproof an English Burbank gray top?Motorist.

Answer—Unless the cylinders are scored I do not advise reboring. If they are not scored, fit oversize pistons and rings. This will no doubt remedy your trouble.

To waterproof a Burbank top take half a pound of beeswax to one pint of linseed oil and melt down and apply with a brush. If it is very bad use two coats.

Removing Carbon

Motor Editor: I have a model A-22 Durant. By removing the spark plugs and pouring about one tablespoon of coal oil in each hole, would that remove all the carbon from valves? Would it have the same results as if the valves were ground in? This applies to a car that has been idle for some time.—J. A. H.

Answer—Removing the carbon does not make the valves hold any better unless there is carbon under the valves. Kerosene cuts the carbon to a certain extent, but a better way is to take equal parts of kerosene and wood alcohol, mix thoroughly and put a good tablespoonful in each cylinder, about once a month. If your compressions weak have the valves ground.

TELL OF THE HEALTH DODDS' KIDNEY PILLS BRING.

They Made a New Woman of Madame Duchesne, Who Suffered With Weakness and Heart Trouble.

St. Jerome, Que., May 4.—(Special).—"I could hardly believe I had found relief." Those are the words of Madame Duchesne, of this place. They are words that have been used again and again by women in all parts of Canada who have suffered, and have found relief.

"For three years I have not been able to do much," Mde. Duchesne continues. "I had nothing but pain to talk about. I was interested in nothing and felt so ill and weak. Since taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I have really recovered. I feel so much better in my head and heart, that I can now do my work, knit and feel very cheerful."

All Mde. Duchesne's troubles came from diseased kidneys. They speedily ceased when she commenced to use the one sure help for diseased kidneys—Dodd's Kidney Pills.

MORTGAGING

More long-term bonds were issued by American states and municipalities, the first month of this year, than in any previous January. The total for the one month was over 89 million dollars, which was at a rate of more than a billion dollars a year.

Again we call your attention to the dangerous fact that the Spending Menace in our government is greater in the states and their sub-divisions than at Uncle Sam's headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Very easy to mortgage the future Very hard to pay off the mortgage.

GOLD

Gold continues to flow into India, at the rate of more than three million dollars a week. In the last 57 years India has imported nearly three and a half billion dollars worth of gold and silver.

What becomes of this precious metal, is one of the great mysteries of world finance. Much of it is hidden—buried. If it were put to work, circulating from hand to hand in the form of credit, India would have less poverty. A lot of us have the same form of insanity—fighting to get gold for itself alone, rather than the good the gold might do. Just why people try to accumulate more wealth than they need, is a psychological riddle.

SCENIC SPLENDOR OF WESTERN ROUTE OPENED THIS YEAR

Completion of Banff-Windermere Road Grade Supplies Missing Link in Chain Beauty Spots.

OPENS UP ROCKIES.

That it is unsurpassed in natural beauty is the claim that has been made for the scenic splendor of the Canadian Rocky Mountain district. Yet up to last autumn motor touring in the Canadian Rockies was made almost utterly impossible by a roadless area in the heart of the mountains which stopped all traffic. The building of the Banff-Windermere highway by the Canadian National Parks Branch of the Department of the Interior has supplied the missing link, placed the Canadian Rockies on one of America's greatest tourist highways, and opened the way for a great and immediate increase in international motor travel, says Natural Resources, the publication of the Department of the Interior, in an article on motor travel through the Rockies.

This road affords a direct and first-class motor highway from the town of Banff in Banff National Park, Alberta, southwesterly over the continental divide to the Windermere district in the upper valley of the Columbia River.

From the latter locality there is direct access by motor roads to southeastern British Columbia, to the national parks of the United States, and to the large tourist centres of the Pacific Coast. The rapidly increasing motor traffic to Banff and the Canadian national parks has thus been provided with a through route east and west of an interprovincial character, and one that has more potentialities from a tourist traffic viewpoint than any other western road completed in recent years.

The grandeur and beauty of the scenery of the section of the Rocky Mountains through which the road winds can scarcely be surpassed, particularly in the neighborhood of the Sinclair canyon, where the road passes between towering walls of red rock. Game of many kinds is plentiful, and sheep, goat, moose, elk and even bear are so numerous and now so fearless of man that they are often to be seen feeding within camera shot of the moving motor.

Crosses Two Passes

The engineering features of the road get their interest from its location in the heart of the Rocky Mountains, its construction through 73 miles of virgin mountain and forest country, and from the fact that it crosses two mountain passes.

The general route of the road is southwesterly from Banff, following in succession the valleys of four mountain streams, namely, those of the Bow, Vermilion and Kootenay Rivers and Sinclair Creek. It crosses the main range of the Rocky Mountains via the Vermilion Pass, which was explored by Sir James Hector in 1858, when with the Palliser expedition, seeking a route through the Rockies for the Canadian Pacific Railway. A western range of the Rockies, namely, the Brisco Range, is crossed by the Sinclair Pass. In the Vermilion Pass the road reaches an altitude of 5,660 feet, and in the Sinclair Pass an altitude of 4,950 feet. On its westerly course in reaching these two passes it climbs a total of 2,626 feet and descends a total of 4,205 feet. Despite this considerable rise and fall in elevation, the grades obtained are remarkably low, the maximum being 400 feet of 9 per cent., with an average grade of 3 per cent.

Mileage in B. C.

The total length of the road is 93 miles, of which the 30 miles lying in Rocky Mountains Park had been constructed by the National Parks Branch several years previously. The Province of British Columbia had also built ten miles of road in that Province. Construction of the uncompleted 53 miles in British Columbia was begun by the Canadian National Parks Branch in the fall of 1919, under an agreement with the Province that called for the completion of the road by January, 1924. The uncompleted mileage comprised chiefly the middle section of the road between the two summits. No railroad lines were available for transportation, and all equipment had to be hauled to the location of the work from the east or west end of the road. The average haul from each end was 35 miles, which included the passing over of one of the mountain summits. This transportation problem was successfully met by the use of six motor trucks which hauled all supplies during the summer months. These trucks averaged about 100 miles per day, which run very often included two return trips over either the Sinclair or Vermilion pass.

16-Foot Wheelway

Due to the location of the work, favorable conditions for grading operations prevailed for only four months each year. A high rate of progress had consequently to be maintained during the working season. In order to utilise all the summer months on grading work, and to lessen the danger of fire in the heavily timbered country traversed right of way clearing was done in the winter months.

In 1921, 26½ miles of new road were graded and the completion of 16½ miles of grading this year saw the work completed in September, 1922, a year and a half sooner than required by the terms of the agreement.

A standard width of road providing a 16-foot clear wheelway was adopted which, with an allowance for ditching, gives a 20-foot base in cuts. All curves are superelevated and given extra width.

It is expected that the road will be officially opened for traffic on or about July 1, 1923.

TALKS RELIGION TO THE FELLOW IN THE BARBER CHAIR

CHARLES AULT

EVANSVILLE, Ind., May 4.—"Shave? Yes, sir! The hair's a little long, too. We'd best trim it while you're in the chair."

The clippers begin to sing. Then —"I'd like to call your attention to the gospel meeting now in progress. Every man should give a thought to his soul. Our Saviour died that man might have eternal life. You owe it to yourself to get right with your master.

"Been driving, haven't you? Hair's a little dirty. How about a shampoo?

"I hope I'll see you among those at the meeting tonight. You see—"

A monologue like that can be heard daily in an Evansville barber shop. Charles Ault, student-minister-barber delivers it.

The gospel, thinks Ault, can be preached just as well to the accompaniment of electric clippers as to that of the church organ.

Ault came here from an Indianapolis barber shop to enter Evansville College four years ago. To earn his way, he took a part-time job as a barber.

Instead of talking to his patrons of Jess Willard's comeback or the latest news in baseball, he preaches religion—and he gets away with it.

He's the most popular barber in the shop!

Ault's now a senior in college. And three years ago he became pastor of the Epworth Methodist Church in a rich farming community eight miles from here.

Good Combination

Preaching, studying and barbering make a good combination, Ault says.

"By barbering I can earn money to pay for my schooling and living and at the same time I get the opportunity to talk religion to the fellow who gets a shave and a haircut," Ault says.

Ault had been in college only a short time when war was declared. He joined the army and served the duration of the war.

After his discharge he got a job as barber at Indianapolis.

Before leaving Indianapolis he married.

Today he holds high honors at his school. His son, born two years ago, is the first child ever born to an Evansville College student.

At present the Rev. Ault is conducting a revival meeting and each night he doffs his white barber coat early in order that he may hurry home to don his black ministerial frock.

GASSED OVERSEAS SHELL SHOCKED AND RHEUMATISM

Mr. F. M. Biaquiere, Morinville, Alta., writes: "After three years service overseas I returned to Canada almost a complete wreck. I had been gassed and was suffering from shell shock and rheumatism, and was so nervous I could not sleep at night. I tried many medicines and doctors, but none of them did me any good for any length of time. I got so bad in the fall of 1919, my hands were so shaky I could scarcely hold anything, and it seemed as if I had a steel band pressing on my head. The least excitement would almost drive me into fits, and my whole system seemed to be in disorder. I had cramps in my legs nearly every night, and hot and cold chills running up and down my back nearly all the time. One day I decided to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and after I had taken six boxes I began to feel better. I kept on using them and after a while I was completely relieved."

MAKE HABIT OF TESTING BRAKE ON AUTO DAILY

Many Accidents Are Due to Faulty Functioning, and Much Care in Adjustment Necessary.

SOME POINTERS.

More automobile accidents are due to failure of brakes to function quickly and efficiently than to the collapse of any other mechanical unit of the car. This does not necessarily mean that brake failure is a prolific cause of accidents. The greater proportion of mishaps are to be ascribed to errors of human judgment, not necessarily the motorist's judgment of course, to skidding, inadequate traffic regulations, etc.; but brake failure has a prominent place among those contributory causes of accident which are most easily eliminated.

Daily inspection of brakes is a simple way of overcoming the danger constituted by their failure to operate efficiently. Before proceeding half a block from his garage the motorist should throw out the clutch and apply the brakes. If possible, he should select a dry spot for making this service test and if the brakes do not operate properly he should take the car no further until the defect has been remedied.

Frequently inefficient brake operation is due to amateur work in installing brake lining. None but an experienced mechanic should do this work. The lining must be properly stretched, so that it can not wrinkle, the rivets should be properly countersunk, so that they will not score the brake drum and interfere with the proper gripping of the lining. A good lining, and good brake lining is easily obtained in any part of the Dominion, will need but infrequent replacement, and that replacement is not an expensive job. But in order that the best service be secured, some care must be given to this lining. Every sixty days the rear wheels should be removed and the brake lining should be washed with kerosene. This removes any oil or grease that may have found its way into the brake housing and restores the "bite" of the brakes.

Squealing of brakes is due to glazing of the brake lining or to improper adjustment. If the lining is glazed it may be roughened up with a file. Squealing may also be due to wearing down of the lining to the rivets. In this event the rivets may sometimes be sunk still further in the lining; but it is better, when the rivets begin to scrape the drum, to renew the lining.

Clean Brake Mechanism

The brake mechanism should be cleaned and oiled at least once a month. Systematic brake inspection should be a habit. The loss of a cotter pin may easily lead to a serious accident. When a lock washer is removed do not put it back, but use a new washer.

The brakes must be kept properly adjusted. They should not drag nor should they be too loose. Different adjustments are made according to the type of brake used. On the shaft brake there is a nut on the brake band which can be adjusted to make the brake neither too tight nor too loose. The brake rod may be turned either to right or to left to make it the proper length for the efficient use of the brake. On the axle or wheel drum brake where an equalizer is used the brakes should be set when the engine is not operating and the equalizer should be adjusted until it parallels the axle. On the external type of wheel drum brake, tighten or loosen the adjusting nuts on the brake band, and equalize the length of the brake rods. On the internal type of wheel drum brake it is necessary to remove the rear wheels. The cam plates should then be adjusted, also the nuts, and the brake rods should be equalized.

After the brakes have been adjusted so that they are neither too tight nor too loose, they should be tested every thousand miles, or once a month, to make sure that the braking power is equally divided between the two rear wheels. This may be done by jacking up the wheels and applying the brake far enough so that it is just possible to turn one wheel by hand. Adjust the brake on the other wheel so that the same amount of energy is required to turn that wheel by hand.

Proper application of brakes is essential. When coming to a stop on a straightaway, shut off the gas throttle and leave the clutch engaged until just before you come to a stop. This method of stopping is very desirable in wet weather, as it minimizes the tendency to skid.

ADD MOTOR TAX TO COST OF GASOLINE

HALIFAX, N. S., May 5 (Canadian Press).—Automobile owners and dealers, smarting under the extremely high fees payable to the Provincial Government for licenses, are talking of trying to get the application of the tax altered to permit of what they consider a more equitable distribution, namely, to have the tax added to the price of gasoline. This system is in use successfully in some of the States of the Union. By its method the car user who does not do a great deal of motoring, would not have to pay as much as his neighbor who may use his car every day of the year.

Under the Nova Scotia system the license charge is based on horsepower on cars costing over a certain figure, with a flat rate for those whose original cost was under the set figure. The man whose car does not cover a thousand miles of road a year pays just as much as the man with the same type of car who drives ten thousand miles a year, which does not strike the small user as quite equitable, since the license money is to be applied to road construction.

If the suggested form of license collecting were in vogue, the motorist would pay according to the amount of road he "burned up." He would pay a little more per gallon for his gas and this additional cost would go to the government in lieu of an annual license fee.

At the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Motor League, held in Halifax recently, the matter was suggested to members of the Provincial Government and was discussed with interest, but no definite policy was expressed. It has been pointed out that with this system in operation the government would benefit also from visiting motorists who use the roads at will and would probably not object to contributing something to their upkeep.

MANY SIDES TO POLITICAL WAR IN MERRY JUNE

TORONTO, May 5 (Canadian Press).—For the sixteenth time since Confederation, the electors of Ontario will during the last week in June, select a new Legislature. For the second time women will take part in making that selection. What will the answer be? That is the question which is troubling a lot of members of the Fifteenth Legislature of Ontario, as they leave Queen's Park for their homes at the prorogation.

The month of June is becoming increasingly popular as a month for elections. Away back in 1894, June was the month, then again in 1902, in 1908 and in 1914. June is a convenient month for the farmers and any month is all right for the city voters.

Leaders of each of the groups proffers absolute confidence of victory, but the careful observers who love to forecast such events, are exceedingly doubtful at this distance. They are met by two outstanding difficulties. One is that there are really four parties—Farmers, Labor, Liberals and Conservatives. The other is that there is no outstanding differences of policy among them. The dividing lines are uncertain and indistinct.

When it is all simmered down the Drury Government goes to the country on its record as one good enough to merit a renewal of the people's confidence, while the Conservatives will make the opposite claim—that the U.F.O.-Labor Coalition should be turned out for the way it has handled things since it took over the reins of power. The Liberals will probably not be so critical of the administration but will urge that the party system would give a better management of affairs, and that the Liberal party, since it includes people of all occupations, would be able to present a stronger ministry than a group with which a large portion, particularly the professional classes, are not extensively identified. Labor will probably endorse a straight Labor platform, and those friendly to the present Coalition will claim that the present government has gone farther to meet the wish of Labor than any previous regime.

Now all this will furnish the basis for a lot of campaigning, but it is difficult to reach any conclusion as to which group will be most successful in convincing the electors.

Next to the question of past performances as a whole, the prohibition enforcement will furnish the big argument. It is bound to be an issue, and may develop into the all-absorbing issue. The Farmer candidates intend to see to it that it is an issue. To the claim of some Opposition members in the Legislature this session, that the Temperance question should be kept out of politics, government supporters came back with stout assertions that the temperance question was already in politics, and that the people would decide this election largely, if not wholly, on how the Government had administered the O.T.A.

Where do the parties stand on prohibition enforcement? The Government says, "look at our record. We stand for strict enforcement of the act." The Conservatives say: "The Conservatives put the Ontario Temperance Act on the statute book. Our party's record on the temperance question, when in power, was always a straightforward one, that merits the confidence of the electors as to its enforcement." The Liberals say, "Advanced temperance measures have for generations been one of the main planks in the Liberal platform, and Liberal leaders have been foremost in advocating strict enforcement."

Most of the Labor candidates are expected to line up with the Government in this issue.

Of course, there will be a number of candidates who will not agree exactly with their leaders on this temperance issue, and as the campaign progresses this will doubtless become apparent, more particularly among the Liberals and Conservatives.

Then there will be the timber question. It will be a very contentious one. The Government candidates will point to the Timber Enquiry and the million dollars it collected from the Shevlin-Clarke Company, as a condemnation of the management of timber limits by the Hearst Government, and more particularly by Hon. Howard Ferguson as Minister of Lands and Forests. The Conservatives will counter this by denying the wisdom of the decision and would also argue that members of the Government have agreed that the fault was in the system of handling timber limits, under the former Government, not so much the particular minister, and that the present government has failed to change the system. They will claim that the sale of limits to the Backus interests was a worse mistake than any the Conservatives made. The Government will retort that the Backus deal was in the best interests of the province and the Liberals will insist that neither of the other two parties have any cause for pride as to timber sales, that both have shown an absence of business methods.

Road building will be another battleground, with the Government pointing with pride to the accomplishments and the opposition groups askance at the "terrible extravagance."

The radials and the Hydro-Electric development question have been so much debated that there is expected to be a few new angles brought out. The government will claim to be the real true friend of public ownership by insisting on efficiency and caution in its development, while its opponents will accuse it of being out to kill hydro and hydro-radials.

The Government will be held responsible by its critics for the high taxes. "Lavish wastefulness," the opponents will say. The Government will defend itself by pointing to what has been accomplished with the money spent and how fairly it has nursed the revenue.

So it will be a merry battle in the merry month of June, with lots of outdoor meetings, lots of picnics, thousands of speeches—eloquent and otherwise—all to decide who will look after the business of Old Man Ontario.

The U.F.O. claims that one effect of the Farmers' movement has been to encourage the farmers to take a deeper interest in politics. It is said the average man in the country has a better perspective on questions affecting the Government than do the electors in the city.

DRILL ENGLISH INTO SCHOLARS

New System in Nova Scotia Has Revolutionized Teaching of Correct Speech.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 5 (By Canadian Press).—Nova Scotia, long regarded as a "well of English, pure and undefiled," is about to have its waters ruffled by a spirit in the person of Rosamond M. de Wolfe Archibald, a member of the staff of Acadia Seminary at Wolfville, in a drive for better English.

Miss Archibald has a brand new system of teaching the spoken word.—her own invention by the way,—and is credited with having revolutionized the speaking of English in the common schools of the town in which she lives. Invited by the Canadian Press to explain her method, Miss Archibald submitted the following statement:

"Were you ever challenged by a German student to better the common speech of your people? Did one of them ever call your race "a race of slovenly speakers?" Did the thought of the economic waste of education in general that fails to make the splendid man of the "cross roads" equal his scientific peers in the spoken word, ever keep you awake nights? That is exactly what happened to me.

"With years of preparation back of me, and boundless enthusiasm, I began to teach English to Canadians, following up my own preachment of "Canada First." I used every method I knew with the usual results—nobody was speaking correctly outside my class room.

"One day, during the war, light dawned. I realized the swift change from a raw recruit to a finished soldier that a month of Military drill produced. Then I saw that amazing folly in our methods of teaching correct speech. I reasoned: Did I learn that 5 x 3 equals 9 by seeing that 3 x 3 is not 10? Did I learn first the reason why 7 x 9 equals 63, or simply that 7 x 9 equals 63? Why, then, continue teaching English speech by such methods? In a trice I had cast off all the inefficient methods of the past. I called my pupils to their feet, to stand at attention, to salute the flag, and to recite in concert a few correct sentences, drill fashion! How they responded! Then I sent them forth to correct errors, copying down corrections only (get my point?) of all mistakes detected at home, in school, in public speaking. The effect on their speech was magical. In a week of practice we had accomplished what a lifetime of theory has often failed in accomplishing.

"Then we put on weekly "drives" during the term, awarding small prizes for "points" in correction. We insisted on courtesy, the lack of which, on the part of any contestant, caused his immediate disqualification.

"As a result, today, parents are playing the game of corrections with their children and, incidentally, benefiting by it. Public speakers throughout the Maritime Provinces, especially, are aware of Note Books for Correction in their audiences. The child links up his language with his flag which for centuries has been dyed in the blood of our race for the preservation of our Mother tongue. He is made to feel that it is just as treasonable to make a mistake in his speech as to disonor that flag. He catches a vision of greatness in language never before realized. His motto is:

"To Think Clearly and to Speak the King's English."

"Nova Scotia is about to launch a Better English Week Drive, May 25—June 1. Leading newspapers are giving it prominence. Teachers are flocking to the standard eager to adopt a method so simple, attractive, and philosophically sound. Educationists, including eminent psychologists, are approving of it.

"The fervid thanks recorded in letters flooding my mail box, leads me to believe that I have found something to give my people whom I delight to serve. I believe we may safely look forward to a National better English Week for Canada. By the way, my home town, Wolfville, Nova Scotia, intends to win in the competition!"

CIRCUS WAS REPEATED AT "Y" LAST EVENING

The Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium Circus was repeated last evening to a fair-sized audience. The good showing of the boys, especially in their work on the parallel bars and the flying rings, evoked much applause. The "elephant," by the Intermediate and Senior School, was an added attraction to the programme. The smaller boys scored in the games and lantern drill, while the tumbling was one of the most interesting portions of a snappy programme. Oliver Dickson, as a clown, did some good work in last night's show.

STORIES OF GREAT HUMORISTS

Abraham Lincoln, the Jesting Lawyer.

Humor is close allied to tears. This old saying has nowhere been better exemplified than in the personality of Abraham Lincoln. He was a man of sorrows, was subject to moods of depression, and in his White House years carried a frightful load of responsibility, but from his young manhood to the last day of his life laughter was his safety valve. And like one of Shakespeare's best-loved characters, he was a cause for laughter in others. He enjoyed nothing better than cheering other people up, and for this purpose assiduously collected droll stories or threw his own observations of life into the form of witty sayings. Both in his twenty years of law practice, when he was one of the leaders of the Illinois bar, and later, when he was President, he was a master hand at pointing an argument, confusing an opponent or hitting off a political situation by means of a pertinent story, a story nearly always drawn from homely surroundings or concerning familiar scenes or characters. His fun was invariably racy of the soil, and, because of this quality, Lincoln will always be ranked as one of the most original of American humorists.

It is only one professional man in a hundred that can indulge a native propensity for jokes and funny stories and continue to be regarded as worthy of respectful attention when he chooses to be serious. But Lincoln was that hundredth man. It must be admitted, however, that it would be more difficult for a leading lawyer of the present day to essay such a role. Between 1840 and 1860, when Lincoln was travelling on circuit through Illinois, conditions were somewhat primitive; judges and lawyers had to live together in taverns in the various towns where the court was held; they were thrown together at meal times and in the evenings, and had to amuse themselves in some fashion. In court and out of it, therefore, dignity was somewhat at a discount, and easy familiarity was the rule. From 1848 on, as long as Lincoln travelled it, Judge David Davis presided over the eighth circuit of Illinois and his honor was extremely fond of the tall lawyer and his stories. One of Lincoln's biographers tells us that in the evenings the judge always had his circle of friends in his room at the hotel after supper and if Lincoln was not there on time he always kept saying, "Where's Lincoln? Why don't Lincoln come?" After the inimitable Abe had put in an appearance, the judge would insist on having story after story, and if anyone interrupted he would exclaim petulantly, "Mr. Lincoln's talking." Even in court the judge hated to allow one of Lincoln's stories to escape him. Lincoln would often whisper yarns to his neighbors in the court room and if he kept up this practice too long, the judge would rap vigorously for order, exclaiming, "Come, come, Mr. Lincoln, I can't stand this! There is no use trying to carry on two courts; I must adjourn mine, or you yours and I think you will have to be the one." But as soon as Lincoln had desisted and the group of listeners around him had moved away, the judge would call one of them and ask, "What was it that Lincoln was telling you?"

In her "Life of Lincoln," Miss Ida Tarbell recounts this story told by one of the clerks of the court in Lincoln's day. "Davis fined me five dollars one day. Lincoln had just come in, and leaning over my desk had told me a story so irresistibly funny that I broke out in a loud laugh. The judge called me to order in haste, saying, "This must be stopped. Mr. Lincoln, you are constantly disturbing the court with your stories." Then to me, 'You may fine yourself five dollars for your disturbance.' I apologized, but told the judge that the story was worth the money. In a few minutes the judge called to me, 'What was that story Lincoln told you?' he asked. I told him, and he laughed aloud in spite of himself. 'Remit your fine,' he ordered."

In conducting a case Lincoln was not a speaker but a talker. In addressing a jury he was plain, sensible, and candid, indulging in no oratory, and leading the twelve good men and true to believe that they and not he were trying the case. From his knowledge of the working of the mind of the average human being he was able to put the facts of the case in the most telling way and always depended upon homely stories and illustrations to back up his arguments.

Judge H. W. Beckwith, a lawyer who saw Lincoln in action in those years, tells what is probably the best example of Abe's skill in this direction. "A man, by vile words," says Judge Beck with, "first provoked and then made a bodily attack upon another. The latter in defending himself gave the other mugs the worst of the encounter. The aggressor, to get even, had the one who thrashed him tried in our circuit court upon a charge of an assault and battery. Mr. Lincoln defended and told the jury that his client, was in the fix of a man who, in going along the highway with a pitchfork on his shoulder, was attacked by a fierce dog which ran out at him from a farmer's door-yard. In parrying off the dog with the fork, its prongs stuck into the brute and killed him.

"'What made you kill my dog?' said the farmer.

"'What made him try to bite me?'

"'But why did you not go at him with the other end of the pitchfork?'

"'Why did he not come after me with his other end?' At this Mr. Lincoln whirled about in his long arms an imaginary dog and pushed its tail end toward the jury. This was the defensive plea of 'son assault demesne'—loosely, that 'the other fellow brought on the fight,'—quickly told, and in a way the dullest mind would grasp and retain."

President Lincoln once told Chauncey Depew that one of the best things he ever originated in his pleading in Illinois courts was this impromptu piece of sarcasm. He was trying a case where he appeared for a prisoner charged with aggravated assault and battery. The complainant had told a horrible story of the attack, which his appearance fully justified, when the district attorney handed the witness over to Lincoln for cross-examination. Lincoln said he had no testimony, and unless he could break down the complainant's story he saw no way out. He had come to the conclusion that the witness was a bumptious man, who rather prided himself upon his smartness in repartee, and so, after looking at him for some minutes, he enquired "Well, my friend, what ground did you and my client here fight over?" The fellow answered, "About six acres." "Well," said Lincoln, "don't you think this is an almighty small crop of fight to gather from such a big piece of ground?" The jury laughed, the court and district attorney and complainant all joined in, and the case was laughed out of court.

Lincoln was not above taking a rise out of an opposing lawyer. On one occasion he was arrayed against a certain Judge Logan. "Gentlemen," began Lincoln in his address to the jury, "you must be careful and not permit yourselves to be overborne by the eloquence of the counsel for the defence. Judge Logan, I know, is an effective lawyer; I have met him too often to doubt that. But shrewd and careful though he be, still he is sometimes wrong. Since this trial began I have discovered that, with all his caution and fastidiousness, he hasn't knowledge enough to put his shirt on right. When the jurors turned their attention to the unharrassed Logan they saw that he was wearing his shirt with the pleated bosom behind. Their laughter was loud and long, and Logan was so much an object of good-natured mirth that every once in a while during the later stages of the trial, when he was trying to put his case before the jury, a sudden snort of laughter from one of the twelve would remind all of them, and the court besides, that the lawyer's shirt needed to be reversed. Lincoln would probably have won the case anyway, but his joke on the poor Logan made assurance double sure.

SPRING BRINGS USUAL CROP OF RUMORS OF WAR

Europe Has Same Clouds Hovering Every Year in Spring and Summer.

By CHAS. McCANN

LONDON, May 5 (United Press).—Rumors of impending wars and predictions of certain war between France and Germany are flying thick around London and Europe generally.

The familiar "war clouds in the Near East" have blown over until the Lausanne conference eaches a decision or a break.

Now they are being billed on newspaper first pages as "war clouds over Europe."

It is the most popular semi-intellectual form of indoor sport in European capitals in the springtime, the threshing out of the next war. Perhaps its greatest lure is in the fact that the iceman's guess is just as good as the Puritanian minister's early morning hint to his valet that the situation is very tense.

Poland has called three hundred thousand men to the colors. No one knows what Russia is doing. Greece has an army on the Mariza River in Western Thrace, ready to attack the Turks if the Lausanne conference fails. There are frequent rumors of trouble in Rumania. Serbia and Italy are not yet on good terms. France and Belgian have an invading army of over 100,000 men on German soil.

No one knows when and if war may break out. If the raw-beef schools have a feeling that there won't be any war this summer, responsible statesmen have the same feeling that there may be.

Spring War Talk

The only bright thought is that in Europe, springtime is the season for new wars. Talk of war in autumn is like talking of baseball in November. There are few spots in Europe where a regular war could be launched with any degree of eclat after September. It is in the gentle spring that the war talk begins to get animated.

Spring means sowing of seeds, and summer means crops! War and a new crop go together in crowded Europe. There can be crops without war, even if not without war talk; but there are no pre-arranged wars in Europe without an accompanying crop.

Only six European countries are immune from war talk at present—Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and Portugal. Spain is cleaning up a little war of her own in Morocco.

The situation in the Ruhr has focused a real attention on the possibility of a Franco-German war. Every chancellory in Europe is nervous over the possibility that some incident might cause Germany to fight back at France, and start again the world war that broke out in 1914.

A volley by French soldiers into a crowd of workmen as at Essen recently; a few pistols or bombs or rifles in the hands of the workmen—and statesmen all over Europe might have to decide with which side they would fight.

Rumor has it now that Germany is not as nearly disarmed as she seems; that the efficient German civil aviation force could soon be made a military one; that the greatest industrial country in the world, with a population of 60,000,000 cannot be crushed and will not forever consent to be invaded by a nation of 40,000,000, at most.

Another European War

And it is pointed out that war between France and Germany would mean another European war. Great Britain would have to get in. Italy and Serbia, the rumorers also point out, would go in on the Franco-British side. Poland would be isolated, and would have to prepare against a possible Soviet attack. Roumania would be involved against Russia.

And it is declared that Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey would combine against the Allies, with Greece, the remaining Balkan country, on the Franco-British side.

The Baltic countries, Finland, Latvia, Esthonia and Lithuania, are usually dismissed with a wave of the hand and assigned to one side or the other. Czecho-Slovakia and Austria are the unknown quantities; the former because her currency is the most stable of the war babies, and she is working hard, the latter because her currency is the least stable and she is prostrated.

There is an encouraging feature. There are always war clouds over Europe in spring and summer. They are black-lined, but it is the lining that is exposed. The silver outside is that few Europeans at present want to fight; that there is no money lying around loose with which to finance a war of any size, and that taxes in most European countries are nearly as high as they were in the dark days of 1917-1918, which means that they cannot go any higher.

HOW TO DRESS TO PLEASE MEN

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, May 5.—Opinion has it that women dress to please men. If this be true, many women certainly make a mess of their attempt. Men are simple creatures, after all, and most of them do not know an exquisite gown from a cheap one. There is but one thing which catches their childish eyes—femininity in dress. They like colors and dainty effects which are entirely foreign to their own sombre apparel.

How many times we see some brainless, little doll dressed in ribbons and feminine fool-de-rol holding the attention of a staid business man. Her gown is one that would perhaps be censured by the discriminating eyes of her sex, but the man sees only its color and feminine attractiveness. His heart-strings are made of lace and the girl who holds them in her dainty hands shuns everything masculine in her attire and plays up to her womanly instincts.

Manish Girl Taboo

It isn't often that the girl in mannish attire is sought after by the male sex, yet many girls go even so far as to wear stiff collars and cuffs and mannish ties with their tailored suits. Needless to say, they have about as much chance with the average man as a man with a lace-edged handkerchief would have with a woman. Suits that are made of mannish tweeds and cut on masculine lines do not attract the average man, nor do sports shoes, which are made so similar to his own. If all women wore sports shoes and woollen stockings there would be few "ankle gazers" about, for the minute a woman ceases to be feminine in her attire she ceases to be a mystery to men.

Clothes need not be expensive to attract men, for men haven't the slightest idea of what clothes cost. They will, however, know whether your collar is made of stiff linen or of dainty lace and they will know whether the blue of your hat is the exact shade of your eyes. It is always the feminine touch that appeals to them. Clothes that are absolutely foreign to those men wear are certain to attract their attention.

Daintiness Necessary

Bizarre effects in dress appeal to certain men, but these men are not those who could be inveigled into mowing their own lawns and drying the supper dishes for the gingham-aproned wife, so it is unwise to play up to them.

It is easy enough for the woman of means to assume daintiness in her dress. The business girl finds the task more tedious as she is forced to wear sensible, business-like clothing, but it is especially important for the girl who works side by side with men to hold a "robe of femininity" about her lest she lose her feminine entity altogether. This does not mean that the business girl should go to work in chiffons and bright colors, but she mustn't sacrifice her feminine attractiveness by wearing too severely-cut clothing. There are always dainty collars and trimmings by which she can modify the somberness of a dark business dress. There should always be some concession made to girlish charm in her attire.

Though gallant men passed with the lace kerchiefs and fans of our grandmothers' days, the spirit of the gallant lies dormant in every man and needs but the touch of feminine vanities of dress to revive it.

NEW YORK, May 5 (Special to The Examiner). — Price movements gave evidence of a decided falling off in bearish aggressiveness, selling pressure was conspicuous for its absence and the action of the whole market suggested that the professionals working on the side of the decline had been impressed by the vigorous character of the rally in late dealings. Consolidated Gas experienced an opening dip as a result of the efforts to force a last minute adoption of the $1.00 Gas Bill by the State Legislature, but this initial recession was subsequently regained, and other industrial leaders maintained a rallying tendency all through the session. A North American Association

—the model, all over the World

IT IS NOT a mere boast to say that the publications of the United States and Canada are the most progressive and farthest advanced of any country in the world.

Eight years ago—in co-operation with advertisers and advertising agents—the leading publishers assisted in organizing the association which places the buying of advertising space on a Basis of Certainty.

The Audit Bureau of Circulations has pioneered the way from old-fashioned, haphazard methods to the modern method of buying space with the publisher's books open to the advertiser. Through this work a remarkably efficient system for auditing publications has been built up and today is applied to practically all the leading newspapers, magazines, farm papers, and trade papers of the United States and Canada.

That this system is economically sound and fills a real need in business, is shown by the fact that other countries have patterned their associations after the A.B.C.

England, France and Holland have taken steps to build up Auditing Bureaus that will give the advertiser and the publisher the same opportunity to meet on common business ground that they have in America.

Publishers of this continent willingly co-operate with the A.B.C. because they believe that in furnishing audited circulation figures to the advertisers they are co-operating in a way that will be mutually helpful.

The EXAMINER is a member of the A. B. C. and would be pleased to submit a copy of the latest circulation report

Makes the Other Woman Bosom Friend

By ROY GIBBONS.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Here's one of those stories featuring "the other woman" that's all mixed up and not according to reel life.

Because it's taken from real life, the plot has been batted out in reverse order.

Mrs. Rose Vanderloan, as the wife, is quite fond of the woman to whom her erring husband paid court. In fact she's so fond of her that both women live together.

Neither wants the husband of one and the sweetheart of the other punished for his alleged philanderings, which now have him lodged in jail on a technical charge until the judge can piece the strange domestic puzzle together.

Vanderloan married Rose five years ago and is the father of her baby, Betty, 3.

Seeks Adventure.

Several months ago he left his family in St. Paul and started forth for adventure and work at his trade of locomotive engineering.

On the way south he met Elina, to whom he told nothing about his wife.

The two got to be quite chummy and were getting along nicely until one day, when dining, they ran into Mrs. Vanderloan, who had come to Chicago and was working as a waitress.

"You're a nice one," said the wife to her husband after she had taken the couple's order for ham and eggs. "Where have you been all this time? I suppose you know I've started suit for divorce?"

"Against whom?" spoke up Elina, who began to get interested.

"Him," said Rose, pointing to her spouse.

Elina fainted. And Vanderloan, in the riot that ensued, took to his heels.

The sudden shock proved quite an ordeal to the "other woman." She remained ill for quite a time. Rose, the wife, nursed her back to health.

Cares for Babe.

Then Rose's baby, Betty, took ill, and Elina took care of the child.

Meanwhile real life and not reel life had been moving the plot along. The wife was not running around with a gun. The other woman, Elina, was not wearing swank clothes or pulling her own or anybody else's hair.

Then, just as the censors were about to yell cut with both women moving out of the scene to a place of retreat which they planned to share together and bar all men, who should move into the camera for a closeup but Vanderloan himself.

That's how the police came to get him. He's in jail now and both women want to get him out.

"I could never marry him, now that I've met his wife," says Elina. "Why she's my best friend and I love her baby so."

"And I don't want him punished either," says the wife.

Vanderloan will know his fate next month.

Roberts Makes Great Success in Character Role as "Grumpy."

By JAMES W. DEAN.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Age will be served as well as youth in the movies. For many years Theodore Roberts has yielded the honor of his name in electric lights to slick-haired heroes and frizzled-haired flappers while the public has acclaimed him the actual star of many pictures.

In "Grumpy" Roberts has his first legitimate opportunity to make the picture all his own. And what a picture he makes of it! Grumpy, as Roberts plays the role, is probably the most clearly etched character the screen has even seen.

Any of our foremost character actors could have made the figure of the irascible old criminal lawyer an interesting one, but I doubt if any other actor of the screen could have made it as vital, as unforgetjable as Roberts has.

Also I doubt if Roberts would have been as effective under any other director as he was under William DeMille. William DeMille is the only director in the business, as far as I know, who believes that a player may have judgment and perception as sound and keen as his own. It is evident in "Grumpy" that Roberts' interpretation was unhampered by the director.

Clara Beranger's scenario of the play retains all its sprightly humor, if, indeed, it does not enlarge upon it.

Henry Sinclair Drago wrote a novel based upon the movie, "Suzanna," starring Mabel Normand The novel was continuous action from cover to cover and seemed to bear the imprint of screen technique. The photoplay is a distinct disappointment. It hasn't half the action of the novel and its characters are not so clearly established. One of the most interesting characters of the book, the bandit, is omitted. Evidently the picture was ruined in the cutting room.

* * *

Douglas MacLean is becoming one of the leading funsters of the screen. Heretofore he has been ineffective because he tried to be funny every moment he was upon the screen. In "Bellboy 13" he brings his wit to bear on certain incidents, giving humorous emphasis to individual episodes. Thus he, consciously or unconsciously, is patterning after Chaplin, Lloyd, Keaton, Hamilton and Turpin. Our comics are probably our best screen actors because of the significance they give to slight situations.

* * *

Continental movie makers have queer ideas of sex attraction in women. Thus the heroine of "The Queen of Sin" has fatted calves, an expansive bosom and a thick skull. The lure of woman seems to be a quantitative matter. The title of this picture is entirely misleading; it contains no queen and no sin, even though it is based on the story of Sodom and Gomorrah.

* * *

Hugo Riesenfeld is kind enough to say that composers of modern ragtime "unconsciously" borrow themes from the classics. For demonstration he had his Rivoli orchestra couple up the following tunes: Chopin's "Fantasie Impromptu" and "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," the waltz from Gounod's "Faust" and "Broadway Rose," Puccini's "La Tosca" and "Avalon," the aria of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" and "The Vamp."

HELD A RECEPTION AT MURRAY STREET

Rev. C. W. Rose, B.A., D.D., Welcomed to New Ministry.

A reception of members and friends of the Murray Street Baptist Church was held last evening in the Sunday School-rooms, for the purpose of welcoming and meeting the new pastor, Rev. C. W. Rose, B.A., D.D. Between two hundred and fifty and three hundred of the members of the congregation and various societies of the church attended. Dr. W. D. Scott acted as chairman, opening the meeting with a brief address.

An address of welcome on behalf of the church was given by A. J. Madill, who also extended the greetings of the Peterborough Baptist Association, of which Mr. Madill is moderator. Mr. Joseph Wearing, superintendent of the Sunday School, spoke on behalf of his department; Rev. Robt. Pogue brought the good wishes of the Ministerial Association, and Rev. W. E. Morrow, of Park Street Baptist Church, and Rev. Mr. Edgar, of Gilmour Memorial, echoed on behalf of their congregations the various speeches of welcome extended the pastor by his new charge.

Dr. Rose, in an impressive brief acknowledgment, reiterated his desire to further the work of the church in its various departments, and to work in co-operation with all community enterprises tending toward the advancement of the Kingdom.

The clerk of the church, A. J. Raddon, read a letter received from the First Baptist Church of Amherst, N.S., of which Dr. Rose was pastor, and another from an ex-president of the Maritime Baptist Convention, congratulating Murray Street congregation on their acquisition of a minister who was described in most complimentary terms, an efficient and able pastor, of high Christian character and attainments. The following letter was also read from the secretary of the United Baptist Convention of the Maritime Provinces of Canada, of which Dr. Rose was president before removing to Peterborough:

St. John N.B., April 21, 1923.

At the special meeting of the Maritime United Baptist Convention, held in Moncton on April 11, he following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved that this Convention place on record its appreciation of the work and worth of Rev. C. W. Rose, D.D., president of Convention, soon to leave the bounds of the Convention for service elsewhere.

Dr. Rose has given to the churches of which he was pastor efficient and noble service, and to his brethren associated with him a fellowship of rare brotherliness and good-will.

To the various boards and committees of which he was a member—the Eastern Section of the Foreign Mission Board, the Board of Governors of Acadia University, the Annuity Board, the Five-Year Programme Committee—he has brought sane judgment and whole-hearted devotion.

The Convention assembled here, therefore, begs to assure Dr. Rose of its appreciation and good-will as he now severs connection with us, and to commend him to the Murray Street Baptist Church of Peterborough, Ont., as one of our best loved and most trusted pastors and Christian leaders.

(Moved by Dr. J. H. MacDonald, seconded by Dr. W. C. Goucher, and carried unanimously).

S. S. Poole,
Secretary, Convention.

The evening closed with dainty refreshments, served by the ladies of the church. A very enjoyable musical programme consisted of vocal solos rendered by Miss Lillian Eastwood and Dr. Jethro Graham, and a piano duet by the Misses Elcome.

MOTORISTS ACCLAIM REDUCTION IN PRICE

Gasoline Down to 34 and 35 Cents a Gallon Here.

Motorists will acclaim the downward move in the price of gasoline which greets the opening of the automobile season. Dealers throughout the city have reduced the price in the last few days, in line with a reduction common in Ontario.

Some kinds of gasoline sell now for 34 cents a gallon while others are 35 cents. In Ottawa the price is even lower, being 33 cents.

This reduction in the retail price of gasoline is made possible by the lower price of crude oil. The wholesale price has also been reduced two cents an imperial gallon. The price of refined oil has been lowered by one cent an imperial gallon.

GRAND JURY SYSTEM IN MANITOBA ABOLISHED

WINNIPEG, May 5. Canadian Press. — The grand jury system in Manitoba will be abolished. Attorney Craig's decision for throwing it into the discard on the ground that the system had outlived its usefulness, and that a preliminary review of the magistrate's decision was a farce, was carried without a division in the Legislature yesterday afternoon.

PAY LAST ACCOUNT FOR BRIDGE WORK

The Finance Committee Passed Bill From the Russell-Townsend Company for $1289.

Mark Street Methodist Church Board's offer to fit up their property at the corner of Hunter and Mark Street for use as a public park, providing the Council exempted it rfom taxation, was dealt with by the Finance Committee last night, and City Clerk Armstrong was instructed to reply that the statutes prevented the acceptance of this proposal.

One idea that was put forth was that the property might be rented from the Church Board for the amount of the taxes, but this expedient had also to be rejected.

An account from C. R. Widdifield, former City Solicitor, in connection with the two actions against the city for damages included counsel fees of $100.00, which the Committee questioned. It was said that he had prepared these cases while in the employ of the city.

The bill was approved without further discussion.

A "mopping-up" account from the Russell-Townsend Company for $1,289.97 also passed under the Committee's scrutiny, and it, too, was recommended to the Council for payment on the understanding that the company would give the cl a clear receipt showing that this was their last charge under the contract for the construction of the Hunter Street Bridge.

TRANSPORTATION FUEL CANADA'S ONLY PROBLEM

OTTAWA, May 5. — (Canadian Press).—"There is no fuel problem in Canada, but there is problem of securing transportation for fuel which already lies in Alberta to points throughout the Dominion." Such was contention advanced by Howard Stutchbury, trade commissioner for Alberta, who addressed Kiwanis Club here yesterday. Mr. Stutchbury declared that there was enough fuel in Alberta to supply all Canada, but question was one of transportation. Between now and next August he asserted, there would be about forty thousand box cars side-tracked in west for grain movement, and he said that efforts were being made to obtain use of cars.

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont. —"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLIGAN, Sydenham, Ontario.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother. c

CAMPAIGN OPENS FOR ALL PARTIES

Conventions in Many Centres—Laborities Lunch With Governor

TORONTO, May 5. — (Canadian Press). — The Provincial election campaign begins in earnest to-day. Premier Drury speaks at Milton at a nomination meeting there this afternoon, and there is another U.F.O. convention at Owen Sound. Conservatives will have several conventions this afternoon, including one at London for East Middlesex, another at Guelph for South Wellington, and a third at Owen Sound for North Grey. Hon. Howard Ferguson, Conservative leader, is scheduled to speak at Welland on Tuesday. Wellington Hay, Liberal leader, is to speak at a party convention at Woodstock this afternoon and there are also Liberal conventions to-day at Dundas for North Wentworth and in East York.

The Independent Labor Party is holding a "get-together" convention in St. Catharines this afternoon. Perhaps the most discussed event in Labor circles to-day, however, is the luncheon to-day at Government House, when Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt will have as his guests about fifty prominent Labor leaders from Toronto and other Ontario centres. The Provincial campaign so far has been more or less spasmodic because of the absence from their ridings of the members of the Legislature. Up to the final sitting the situation in Queen's Park was so strained and uncertain that each party kept almost its entire voting strength on the job, giving little opportunity for such electioneering at points any considerable distance from Toronto. However, with this off their minds, the political leaders and their lieutenants are spreading out over the province.

WETS REJOICE IN ONE STATE

NEW YORK, May 5 (Canadian Press) — With the ending of the 146th session of the New York State Legislature shortly after two o'clock this afternoon, the news was flashed from Albany which brought rejoicing in the camp of the local "wets"

The Assembly in its dying moments passed the Bill repealing the Mullan-Gage Law, and it now goes to Governor Smith for signature, and it is the general expectation that it will receive his approval.

Thus New York will become the first State in the Union to rescind the legislation supplementary to the Volstead Act, and in effect, place the enforcement of that Act up to the Federal Government.

The Mullan-Gage Law was the State replica of the Volstead Law, and was made incumbent upon all police officials to enforce the Federal law

The State police will no longer operate under the mandate of the State law to stop bootlegging at the border running along the highways in the north country.

The sheriffs and municipal police will have no authority from the State to enforce the Volstead Act. They will not be permitted to enter the saloons or homes to gather evidence and only a handful of Federal officers in this State will be available to check the traffic in liquor.

There was widespread rejoicing in New York City this morning as a result of the action of the Legislature, which, the "wets" state, goes further toward breaking down the Volstead Act in the eastern section of the United States than anything that has happened since its passing.

Police officials would not discuss their position this morning.

The "wets' base their assumption that Governor Smith will sign the Repeal Bill on the fact that he was elected on the beer and wine platform.

The "dry" forces, while deploring the passing of the Mullan-Gage Law, declare that every effort will re made to keep the lid on New York through the Federal Act.

HERE'S A JOB FOR A HERMIT!

THE SACRAMENTO HERMIT'S CABIN.

By A. H. FREDERICK.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., May 5.—Add to the list of municipal calamities a departed hermit and an empty hermitage.

For that's the problem that has the city dads of Sacramento sitting up nights talking ways and means.

And it gives an opportunity to some volunteer hermit to ward off the blow of a curtailed tourist trade, a true calamity.

It all came about because the "Hermit" of Echo Lake" had to die right when his reputation and drawing power were at their height. Also his stories, which grew and grew until they had reached stupendous proportions.

He Just Came.

The hermit was not a municipal project, in the first place. He just came, only he knew from where, and settled himself 90 miles northeast of here in a home-made cabin on the old "gold trail" overlooking Echo Lake, in the Sierra Nevada range.

Rumor said he sought solace in the mountains for a disappointment in love. But he that as it might, he soon became an objective for auto tourists.

They travelled miles to hear his stories and home-made philosophy and to see his cabin, built from fallen branches and papered with labels from cans.

But now he is dead, no one has taken his place, and the call has gone out for a successor.

Among the inducements offered applicants are:

An echo—which, of course, is a necessity to any true and authentic hermit.

A one-room house, with unobstructed light and air, and a magnificent view.

Furniture consisting of one bed, one table and a box pantry.

Excellent fishing.

An already established reputation, Which leaves practically nothing for the applicant to furnish except a blasted life.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply.

CLIMATE, THE DICTATOR

The climate must be the dictator as to when the baby can be safely taken out after birth. In very warm climates the baby may safely have its first airing two weeks after birth. In cold climates six weeks is much safer. Don't make the mistake of a young mother whom I saw recently who was proudly exhibiting her three weeks old infant to some admiring friends, the baby wrapped only in a thin flannel covering and exposed, when the covering was removed, to all the bleak blasts of a chilly, blowy March day. When the baby mysteriously develops the sniffles she will with difficulty be made to believe that its outing was at fault.

Don't carry the baby. Make him comfortable in a roomy carriage, put plenty of warm coverings beneath him so that the wind won't have a chance from that angle, and cover him with soft, not heavy but warm blankets or comforts. If the day is very chilly put a hot water bottle at the foot of the carriage. Remember that a baby is easily chilled. Cold, fresh air will do him good if he is kept warm enough to stand it. He can't run around and exercise to keep his circulation brisk so we must take care that he is warmed by plenty of clothes and covers. Especially is this warning necessary in the spring when climates are changeable and to the parents the air may seem balmy and warm.

The mother need not feel that outings mean the baby must be laboriously walked back and forth for an hour. The air will do him as much good if he is put on the porch to sleep, protected from draughts, and well covered—and you will find his daily nap increased in length when taken on the porch, the air having a soporific effect.

PARIS SAYS GERMANY AIMING AT AIR WAR

By JOHN O'BRIEN

PARIS, May 5 (United Press).—Ten thousand 40 horsepower motors, capable of being transformed in a few hours into aviation motors of 400 horsepower, to equip a gigantic fleet of bombing planes will be in use in Germany within a few months, according to an air expert who has just made a trip through that country.

This will constitute the greatest menace to France that has been organized across the Rhine since war days. The motors were ostensibly constructed for automobiles of a new Mercedes type, several of which are actually circulating now in Berlin.

The allied control commission has, of course, technically the power to put a stop to such activities, but on more than one occasion the German art of camouflage has been too much for the experts. It is known that Germany is building immense numbers of so-called commercial airplanes. They are made in series in different factories, each of which furnishes only a prescribed part. The pilots are being trained in Russia.

"The new motor," declared a French manufacturer to whom a detailed plan was submitted, "possesses all the particular details which make possible its transformation into an aviation motor. By changing the gear and the direction of the gasoline supply they could be applied to bombing planes in not more that twenty-four hours."

A few hours after a declaration of war, or before the world was aware of Germany's bellicose intentions, such a fleet could be dropping thousands of tons of explosives on Brussels, Paris and London. Once the decision to break the peace of the world arrived to the German government would only have to commandeer the automobiles carrying the motors and organize the war air fleet.

It is not only in aviation that Germany is reported to be secretly preparing for "The New Day." Admiral Degouy, of the French navy, who has been traveling extensively in Germany, announced the other day that the old naval construction factory at Friedrichsort, near the Kiel Canal, is turning out thousands of "automobile torpedoes" and a new type of floating mine which will make the next war on the sea more terrible that the worst excesses of submarine warfare.

THE MARKING OF LAMBS

BENEFITS OF SYSTEM CLEARLY AND PRACTICALLY TOLD

Australian Sheep Branding Fluid Recommended — A Numbering System Suggested — About Seed Corn — Pigs Profitable When Cared For.

The last few years the raising of sheep has been one of the most profitable branches of live stock farming, the amount of profit depending to a great extent on the success at lambing time and immediately afterwards. Difficulty is frequently experienced in giving the necessary care to individual lambs because they are not easily recognized. In a large flock many lambs look alike, and mothers frequently disown or fail to care properly for their own lambs.

Australian Sheep Branding Fluid Recommended

In order that needy lambs may be easily recognized and their mothers found, a convenient system of marking is needed. For marking purposes Australian sheep branding fluid is best. It can be obtained in different colors from firms who handle sheep supplies, such as the Canadian Cooperative Wool Growers. This fluid does not injure the wool, and shows a distinct mark for several weeks, even when exposed to the weather. It may be applied with a small stick or, better still, an ordinary machine oiling can, and should be rubbed in so that it will not spread.

A Good System of Numbering Suggested

In marking, a system of numbering is adopted. All male lambs are given an even number as 2, 4, 6, etc., all female lambs an odd number as 1, 3, 5, etc. The lamb's number is made on its back with fairly large figures, and the mother is also marked on the back with the same number as her lamb or lambs. If she has two lambs, a ewe number 5 and a ram number 8, she will have the figures 5 and 8 placed so that seen from behind one will be above the other or nearer the head than the other, to show 5 and 8 rather than 58. These numbers are best put on a few hours after the lambs are born.

Benefits of System Described

Some of the advantages of a system such as this have been found to be: One quickly gets to know the individual lambs by their numbers and their development is watched with interest; good mothers and poor mothers are known by their lambs and how they care for and feed them. This quality is often overlooked in sheep but is most important. For a ewe losing a single lamb a needy twin can easily be found to take its place and properly guarded till fully adopted. Lambs needing help for any reason are easily found and ewes recognized that can spare a feed for them. When two or more are in charge of the flock, it is an easy matter for the one to point out to the other what lambs need attention. By the adoption of this system of marking a complete "Record of Performance" at lambing time is easy to keep, and one will be better able to cull out the undesirable ewes and their offspring, if any, keeping only those that prove good breeders and good mothers.—C. W. Laidlaw, Demonstration Farm, New Liskeard.

ABOUT SEED CORN

In districts where corn growing is an assured success the greatest cause of low yields is poor seed. This should not be so. The use of poor seed is unprofitable and causes the loss of large sums of money each year, not only in loss of crop, but in loss of labor and use of tools in tilling acres that have but a thin or less than 100 per cent stand of crop. With corn planted, 42x42, there are 3,556 hills per acre if no losses occur through headlands. Using four seeds per hill, there would be 14,224 plants if all seed grew and developed strong plants. If each plant gave an eight-ounce ear, the yield would be 104 bushels per acre. If only one plant in each hill gave an eight-ounce ear, the yield would be 26 bushels per acre. Now the work and expense of interest on investment, fertilizing the land, ploughing, planting, and cultivating would be the same for a perfect stand as for a twenty-five per cent or a thirty-three per cent crop. Good seed is, therefore, the first insurance for a 100 per cent stand in the corn field.—L. Stevenson.

Is farm life worth while? Not if it is one continual round of drudgery, 365 days in the year, without conveniences or any playtime. Nor, for that matter, is life carried on that way anywhere of much value. Conveniences, a garden, flowers, playtime, and some time given to neighbors, make life more worth while.

If farm operating equipment must be left outdoors for any length of time, it is a good idea to protect it from contact with the ground. Run it up on some boards.

MINSTRELS AND LADIES SPEND HAPPY EVENING

A banquet was given last night by the A.S.K. Bible Class of Knox Church to those who helped in the recent Minstrel Show and to the ladies of the Volunteer Bible Class.

The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all the guests. The programme was impromptu, and a big feature was the community singing under the leadership of the genial John Smith.

Among those who contributed to the programme were James Turnbull Bob Hendry and A. Trussler.

Vern Morphet manager and leader of the Minstrels announced that the show will be put on soon in aid of the lacrosse club.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING

VALUABLES

After making her will, Mrs. Isabella Fowler put it "safely" away in a bureau drawer in her home at Oaining, N. Y. After 20 years, she dies. Her husband finds that rats had chewed the will into tatters. Luckily the probate clerk is able to piece it together so the estate can be administered as Mrs. Fowler desired.

For all your valuables you should have three kinds of protection—against rats, fire and theft. A safe deposit box in the bank is best. If you insist on keeping them at home, use a tin can and line it with asbestos. Most of us are too careless withour valuables unless they're in cash. Where are your insurance policies, will, etc.?

KLAN

The Ku Klux Klan now has a membership of 1,450,000, says Dr. Ernest Crandall, director of lectures for New York City's Board of Education. He claims Connecticut, with 45,000 Klansmen, leads the northern states.

The editorial moral to be drawn from this depends "which side of the fence you're on." But a Klan membership of 1,450,000 surely has been a windfall for the textile industry.

RUBBER

The English controlling the bulk of the world's supply of raw rubber, are said to be planning to pay off part of their debt to us by jacking up the price. Meantime Uncle Sam—who has one eye open when he sleeps, despite the folks with bad livers—is investigating possibilities of producing much rubber in our territories, especially the Philippines.

The relief will come by synthetic (artificial) rubber. Our rubber manufacturers already know how to make it. Only reason it hasn't been put on the market it costs more than the rubber taken from tropical trees. A cheaper process will be found by chemists, when the price of natural crude rubber passes a certain height.

Durst Made Two and Ken Williams Got His Sixth—Philadelphia Trimmed New York in Ten Innings

CLEVELAND, May 5 (Canadian Press). — Four home runs featured yesterday's game between St. Louis and Cleveland, which the Browns won 9 to 5. Ken. Williams made his sixth circuit drive of the season in the seventh inning. Durst, who followed, also put the ball over the right field fence, duplicating his feat of the previous inning.

In the first inning Speaker hit the first homer of the season on the local grounds.

Durst broke into the game when McManus was banished in the fourth inning for arguing with Umpire Hildebrand when the latter called him out at the plate. It appeared in the press box that McManus had struck at the umpire, but Hildebrand denied this. Score:

Ladies' Softball to Meet Wednesday.

A meeting of the Ladies' Softball League will be held Wednesday evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 8 o'clock. As the schedule will be arranged at this meeting it is important that representatives should be present from all teams wishing to enter the league. It is hoped to get the games under way in the very near future, but to do so it is necessary that the various representatives co-operate with the officers in the preliminary work which is necessary.

Ex-Mayor W. H. Bradburn has donated a cup for the winner of the series, and every effort will be made this year to prevent any misunderstanding in the award of the trophy.

Two Fast Teams For To-Night's Game.

The Williams Piano Company softball team, which will be here this evening from Oshawa to meet the C. G. E. team, are bringing with them a reputation for a fast team. Their star pitcher is credited with a twenty-one strike-out game, which is no mean feat in either hard or soft ball. The team carried everything before it in the Oshawa Town League and won the championship without a defeat.

The C. G. E. club will have a strong team on the diamond, as it will be picked from the players of both the Tool Room and the Engineers teams. There are some remarkably good players on these teams, and an all-star nine of surprising speed can be chosen from among their ranks.

Primeau, rss; Rose, p; Dugan, 1b; Nelson, c; Langley, lss; McElroy, 2b; Frost 3b, McCarney rf; Jackson, lf; A. Williams.

GIBBONS LOGICAL MATCH FOR CHAMP

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, May 5.— Jack Dempsey, it is safe to assume will defend his title once, and perhaps twice, this season in big outdoor shows. Tommy Gibbons probably will be the first opponent for the champion. He should be beyond all doubt.

Gibbons is unquestionably the class of the field that is seeking a chance to oppose Dempsey for the heavyweight championship. Harry Wills is past his prime, Lusis Firpo has not reached his prime, and the other contenders are all second-raters, including the highly press-agented Floyd Johnson and the antique Jess Willard.

Firpo, for the present, is out of the question, as Tom Gibbons would massacre him if they ever met. Wills is vastly over-rated. He has made any number of bad showings against such mediocres as Sam Langford, Bill Tate and Clem Johnson.

Gibbons, on the other hand, has had only one bad fight and in that he lost a decision to Harry Greb. But no one seems able to do anything with the fouling, acrobatic Greb.

The St. Paul challenger's list of knockout victims is one of the longest any heavyweight ever acquired, and it contains the names of many set-ups. So does Dempsey's. In criticizing Gibbons for an apparent desire to take on easy things, run over and figure how many good men Dempsey has beaten!

Tex Rickard vouches fo rthe statement that Gibbons had to take on third and fourth-raters because the good heavyweights and the trial horses refused to consider a bout with him.

"I have been trying to get a match for Gibbons in the Garden for two years, and I can't talk any kind of business to any of the heavyweights," Rickard said recently.

Gibbons has been getting nothing but the "run-arounds" from a certain element in New York that seems to have some kind of a magnetic influence on the wheel that is directing the game here.

First he got a $15,000 match with grossly over-rated and over-advertised Floyd Johnson. As soon as Johnson's manager realized what a terrible blunder he had made in accepting Gibbons, he ran Johnson out of the match.

Gibbons didn't have a comeback, as he was told that Jess Willard would be a better card for Johnson and that the show was being run off for sweet charity.

The "powers" then said that Gibbons could fight Jack McAuliffe in the Garden, and the same ones who started to steam up McAuliffe as a great prospect suddenly and strangely changed their tune and declared that the public ought to be protected against another set-up killing by Gibbons.

Bill Muldoon, the chairman of the commission, then announced that McAuliffe could not fight Gibbons and at the same time McAuliffe got the "flu."

Wise critics figure that when Dempsey is defeated, unless it happens when he is gone physically, he will go down before a small, fast-punching, speedy boxing opponent who can hit with both hands.

Tommy Gibbons is all of that, and if anyone in the ring is good enough to beat Dempsey, it is Tom Gibbons.

He should have his chance by all means.

Italians Protest Against Bull Fight.

ROME, May 5—(Canadian Press) The convention of Italian women, in session here, has registered a protest against the first bull fight to occur in Italy, which is to be staged in Rome Sunday. The women denounce the promoters for introducing into Italy "such a cruel, inhuman sport."

Despite this protest and the many other criticisms that have been voiced, a large audience is expected to witness the fight.

TWO—If a base runner fails to touch a base, does the umpire pay any attention to the failure, unless an appeal is made?

THREE—What bases must be occupied and how many out for the infield fly to be effective?

FOUR—What must be done when a batter hits out of order to penalize the mistake?

FIVE—Has the catcher the right to block off the base runner at the plate?

Answers

ONE—He certainly can if he holds his base until the ball is caught.

TWO—The umpire pays no attention to such an error unless the mistake is observed by the team in the field and an appeal is made.

THREE—First and second, or first, second and third must be occupied and less than two out.

FOUR—The attention of the umpire must be called by the team in the field before a ball is pitched to a succeeding batsman.

Renault to Meet Fulton on May 12.

NEW YORK, May 5.—(Canadian Press.) — Fred Fulton, Minnesota plasterer, and Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, yesterday were matched by Promoter Tex Rickard, for a 10-round contest on the Milk Fund card at the Yankee Stadium, May 12 ,as a preliminary to the Firpo-McAuliffe and Johnson-Willard bouts.

Fulton gained prestige recently by his excellent showing against Floyd Johnson in a 12-round bout at Jersey City, awarded to the latter on points, while Renault was named some time ago by the New York Sttae Athletic Commission as a substitute in case any of the principals in the two main bouts of the Milk Fund show were unable to appear.

The Renault-Fulton go, together with a six-round match between Jim Herman, of Omaha, and Al. Reich of Newark, N.J., also announced yesterday, will replace the original preliminaries slated for the Yankee Stadium.

Semi-Finals in the Softball To-Night.

One of the best softball games of the schedule will be played at the Armouries this evening when the Firemen and Gunners clash for the semi-final game. This game is the play-off of the tie game which these two fast teams indulged in earlier in the schedule, and its final outcome will have a big bearing on the winning of the club section honors.

In the event of a victory for the Gunners, they will move up on even terms with the Belmonts for first place, and a play-off will be necessary. This will take the form of a sudden-death game on Monday evening. If the Smoke Eaters win it will mean the elimination of the Gunners from the race and will automatically put the Belmonts into undisputed possession of first place, in which event no play-off will be necessary.

If the Gunners and Belmonts have to play off, the winners will meet the winners of the industrial section for the league honors on Wednesday and Friday evenings, and if a third game is necessary it will be played on Saturday. If the Gunners are defeated and the Belmonts win the club section honors without a play-off, the inter-section play-offs will take place on Monday and Wednesday evenings, with the third game on Friday evening if it should be necessary.

The Woollens have already won first place in the industrial section, having gone through their schedule without a defeat. They have had an exceptionally strong team in the field, which was, however, weakened by the loss of their star battery. This loss has since been made good, and they will have a team in the play-off that will be fully as good as that which went through the schedule.

DEMPSEY TO GET $300,000 TO FIGHT

Final Arrangements Were Made Last Evening For Championship Battle in Shelby on July 4.

CHICAGO, May 5 (Canadian Press). — Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will receive $300,000 for risking his title against Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul challenger, in a fifteen-round contest to a decision at Shelby, Mont., on 4th July, while Gibbons will gamble with the promoters for his share of the receipts.

This was revealed last night when all obstacles for the match were overcome to the satisfaction of Jack Kearns, manager of the champion. Kearns will receive $100,000 in cash to-day as a first instalment of the $300000 guarantee and will attach his signature to the articles closing the match.

Under the terms of the contract Dempsey will receive the second $100,000 on 15th June, and will receive the final $100,000 on 2nd July, 48 hours before going into the ring.

Gibbons will not receive a penny of the receipts until the $300,000 is in the box office. He will receive 50 per cent. of all money over this amount until the $600,000 mark is reached. After this figure is reached the challenger will receive 25 per cent. of all over $600,000, and also will be given 25 per cent. of the moving picture rights, in addition to $2,500 for training expenses.

Dempsey has been allowed $10,000 to cover his training expenses.

The only angle preventing the signing of articles yesterday was the releasing of the first instalment of money deposited in a Chicago bank by the Montana promoters.

Loy Molumby, representing the promoters, was in long distance telephone conversation with bankers in Great Falls, Montana, who agreed to release the money to-day, provided Kearns arranged for $100,000 bond guaranteeing Dempsey's appearance in the ring on 4th July.

Kearns was negotiating for this bond last night.

Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons, aranged to post a $25,000 forfeit guaranteeing Gibbons' fulfillment of the contract.

The referee situation, which caused a deadlock that threatened to be serious, was adjusted to the satisfaction of Kane, who protested Kearns' selection of Jimmy Daugherty of Philadelphia. A compromise was reached, whereby Kearns agreed to name another referee in addition to Daugherty.

During the long hours of wrangling over the referee question, Mike Collins, matchmaker for the promoters, was kept on the run between the fourteenth and eighteenth floors of the hotel in which the conference was held, because neither Kearns nor Kane would speak to each other.

For reasons best known to themselves they have not been on speaking terms for three or four days.

HEAVY WHEAT CROPS FORECAST FOR ENGLAND

LONDON, May 5.— The popular noion that England is played out as a wheat producing country is all wrong according to Professor Biffen of Cambridge University. His admerers here say that he knows more about wheat than anybody in this country, and some maintain that he is the greatest authority on the subject in the world.

He addressed the Bedfordshire Chamber of Agriculture on wheat the other day. He told its members that 'in a very short time English wheat growing is going to come into its own." There would then, he said, be money made out of wheat raised by British farmers despite the vast crops of wheat grown in other parts of the globe.

In America, he said, the population was growing more rapidly than the wheat area, and in course of time there would no longer be a huge surplus to send to this country or anywhere else.

"England," declared Prof. Biffen, "is easily the best wheat producing country in the world with its average of 32 bushels to the acre, whereas the average for the world is only a trifle over 12 bushels to the acre."

ENGLAND BOASTS GREATEST STADIUM

Great Arena at Wembley Will Seat Over 126,000 Spectators.

LONDON, May 5.—(Associated Press)—England boasts the finest sports arena in the world. It is the great new stadium at Wembley which opened recently with the final for the English football cup. It accomodates 126,500 spectators, which is almost twice the capacity of the famous Greek stadium at Athens, and is considerably larger than either Yale or Harvard bowls. This huge arena is literally a stadium in the Greek and Roman sense of the term, an oblong without corners.

The site was cut out of a hillside of an old golf course. The turf is exceptionally fine, being suited not only for football but also for baseball, cricket and lawn tennis. On first view it suggests a modern version of the Colosseum of Rome, with vistas of a cleaner sport activity than that ancient shambles afforded.

The stadium is only 15 minutes from London. It will be the scene of American-British lawn tennis matches and national cricket and football games. A large lake within the enclosure will be used for international swimming contests.

Battling Siki Has Bought a Horse.

By JOHN O'BRIEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, May 5.—Siki, the irresponsible and insuppressible Senegalese battler, who has just spent an involuntary month in the capital of the Irish "irregulars," has brought back from "rebel Cork" enough of the spirit of revolt to overturn half a dozen Boxing Federations. He started off by firing Brouhliet, the manager who accompanied him to Dublin for his fight with Mike McTigue, and is now calling loudly for another, who will be his thirteenth in the space of two or three years.

Perhaps he doesn't think he has got enough publicity out of his eccentricities of behaviour in boulevard cafes and other places, or perhaps he is just "The Playboy of the Boxing World," but in any case he appeared in front of his favorite carousing place, the Chope du Negre, just off the boulevard Montmartre, straddling a donkey. Traffic is impossible in the street where the cafe is located when the Senegalese appears.

Siki has bought a horse, too. With his dogs, monkeys, parrots and the two new additions to his menagerie he probably feels at home in his native jungles. The horse is not a racer. Siki explained his purchase by saying he is afraid of riding in an automobile.

"I don't want to get killed like the Japanese chief," he said. "I'm going to travel on horseback hereafter."

Up at the Moulin Rouge the order has been given that if Siki seeks admission he must tie his mount to a lamppost.

ENGLISH WOMEN MAKE EXCELLENT ENGINEERS

LONDON, May 3.—American women who find dressmaking, office work, school teaching and similar pursuits prossic or unsatisfying may take a leaf from the book of their English sisters, who are rapidly taking to engineering, medicine, law and similar professional occupations which heretofore have been confined to men. Many English universities and schools have thrown open their engineering courses to women on exactly the same terms as to men, and the number of applicants far exceeds the capacity of the class-rooms.

The phenomenal success achieved by Miss Victoria Drummond, a young English woman, as a marine engineer, has inspired new interest in the possibilities of engineering for the educated woman. Women's engineering societies are springing up in the larger manufacturing and industrial centers, and one of the largest employers of labor in England said recently that no capable woman need fear lack of employment in this branch when she has successfully completed her training.

Miss Drummond, who is a granddaughter of the late Lord Amherst of Hackney, is now chief engineer on a large ocean steamer, and soon will apply for a license as a sea captain. But in spite of her success, English educators do not advise women to specialize in marine engineering with its peculiarly reseve demands upon the physique and general health. Rather they are urged to choose the electrical branch of the profession. For not only does this work impose less physical strain than any other form of engineering, these educational authorities say, but the employer are, as a rule, far less conservative in their ideas and far more willing to give women their opportunity.

The women's engineering course includes applied mathematics, mechanics, drawing and design, magnetism and electricity, pattern-making, the working of iron and steel, foundry work, electrical measurements, strength of materials and theory of structures. Upon completion of her training, the woman finds many openings in draughtsmanship, X-ray work, automobiles, patent inventions, electric power stations, and auxiliary work. Many women are today carrying on small engineering businesses in England on their own account with considerable success.

AN ACHIEVEMENT IN BREAD BAKING

Have Perfected Bread that is 100 Per Cent. Whole Wheat.

A notewothy achievement in baking i sthe perfection by Mackey's Bread, Limited, of a whole wheat bread that is 100 per cent. whole wheat, and entirely free from molasses and sugar.

This loaf was perfected after long experiments with a specially milled flour by the Mackey bakeries in Ottawa, Brantford, Windsor, Sarnia, Kingston, Peterborough and Cobourg, and the company is justly proud of its latest product, as most previous attempts at making a whole wheat loaf had been successful only with a formula which was little more than 70 per cent. whole wheat. Furthermore this loaf is as palatable as the best white bread, light and fine in texture.

The company is running a series of advertisements containing valuable and interesting information as to the value of whole wheat bread as a health food, the first of which appears in this issue.

"ROBIN HOOD."

While delving back eight hundred years into history to get all the facts obtainable for the making of Douglas Fairbanks' new production, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," which is coming to the Capitol Theatre next Monday for one week, under a United Artists release, the research experts found many most interesting facts. Among them was the derivation of the term "skinful."

In those olden days when Richard, the Lion-Hearted, sat upon England's throne, he was noted for the sumptuous banquets he held in the great banquet hall of the picturesque old castle that stood on top of a hill frowning down upon the town of Nottingham.

At these feasts it was the custom to serve each guest with a sheep's skin filled with rare old wine. In pouring the wine it was necessary to hold it under the arm much as the Scots hold their bagpipes today. The neck of the sheep was used as the mouth of this unique decanter. If, when the feast was over, any wine was found to be left in any of the skins, the owner would in all likelihood be the recipient of a severe rebuke from the king.

Thus it was, that in the "good old days," when one had partaken not wisely but too well of the amber fluid he was jokingly referred to as having had "a skinful of liquor."

Another custom that has come down from this period is that of "bottoms up" where everyone must drain his glass or he considered a piker. Back in the Twelfth Century it was the order of the day after a tournament had been held, or when a high noble was entertained, to present to the victor of the tournament, or the royal guest, a hypocras. The hypocras was a golden beadle with a capacity of about one quart. This was filled with rare wine, watered and spiced. It was considered a great breach of etiquette if the recipient of the goblet did not finish the contents in one swallow.

These incidents are two of many depicted in the scenes of "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," but, of course, it was necessary to use colored water instead of the real thing.

A MUSICIAN'S TRIBUTE TO PETERBORO PLAYER

Last evening's Toronto Telegram has the following remarks about the performance of Miss Agnes Logan during the last week at the Ontario Musical Competition Festival:

"Commenting upon the pianoforte playing of Miss Agnes Logan of Peterborough, who took first place in the open class, Mr. Granville Bantock, (one of the adjudicators from England), confessed that the young lady had been the unconscious means of reminding him of one of the greatest musical experiences of his life. In addition to the beauty of her performance, her poise at the pianoforte took him bac kto the day he heard Rubenstein play the very same piece—a Chopin Barcarolle.

"There must be something great in a young player who could remind me of one of the greatest musical experiences in my life," he said. He asked her to play the second number, Debussy's 'Reflections in water,' and sat on the platform whilst she played At the conclusion of her performance, he shook her hand warmly and thanked for her playing'"

"Miss Agnes Logan, Peterboro, is a talented young musician. In addition to her successful solo work last night she has taken the honors of the festival in open sight reading, quick study, and accompaniment at sight. She should be a happy young lady too, for her art has impressed one of Britain's greatest musicians, and so done something for Canada as well."

On Monday, a civic reception led by Mayor Taylor, and participated in by several local societies, will be given Miss Logan on her arrival home on the noon train.

APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE HEARD CHOIR CONCERT

Female Voice Choir Gave an Excellent Programme Last Evening in Aid of Well Babies' Clinic.

A very appreciative audience encored every number of the programme offered by the Female Voice Choir last evening in the G.W.V.A. hall, in aid of the Well Babies' Clinic. The ladies, in their old-fashioned costumes, and assisting soloists, were accorded a general response to their pleasing numbers.

The selections by the Choir included several of their repertoire of old-time melodies, with solos taken by Mesdames Scholey, Kitney, McKinstry, Robinson, Singleton, Patterson, Rathbone, McFarlane, Porter. Mrs. Singleton was particularly good in her rendition of "Mignonette."

Vocal solos which were much enjoyed were given by Mrs. E. Kitney, the Misses Minnie Allen, Florence Harrison, Ruby Quartermaine, by W. McKinley, in Harry Lauder impersonations, W. E. Massey-Cooke, J. Anderson and H. Flowers.

A dainty, double dance number by small pupils of Miss May Perry was received with applause. The small lassies appeared as country swains in blue overalls and white blouses, their sweethearts as gingham-clad maidens, with sunbonnets. The graceful little figures appeared twice in charming dances. Those taking part were Helen Ross, Olive O'Connell, Margafet Lockington, Josephine Lynch, Kathleen Cooney, Bernardine Snyder and Mary Westbye. Miss Margaret Widdess acted as accomapnist for the dances.

A clever small musician, Master Harold McFarlane, played "Meditation" so well on the piano that he was compelled to return for another excellently-rendered selection.

Miss Margaret Flowers gave accompaniments for the evening, her usual intelligent rendering, and Mrs. Walter Hughes acted as stage manager.

A hearty vote of thanks from the Board of Directors of the Well Babies' Clinic was voiced by its president, Mrs. James Kendry, and seconded by Mrs. A. Mowat. Mrs. R. Bugg, leader of the choir, who acted as chairman during the evening, made a suitable acknowledgment.

Recovery From Asthma is no longer the exception. A few years ago temporary relief and a dismal outlook for the future was about all the sufferer from Asthma could obtain. All this has now changed because is accomplishing remarkable results in cases of Asthma. Asthma is due to an abnormal condition of the bronchial tubes, and this abnormality exists because the tubes are not receiving the nerve force which is necessary to keep them healthy and able to do their proper work. If you are suffering from Asthma, do not hesitate to investigate the merits of Chiropractic. Others have been benefited by it. There is also hope for you.

PORECLAIN EMPLOYEES MADE A PRESENTATION

On Friday the employees of the Porcelain department of the C.G.E. gathered together to bid farewell to Miss Anna Moncrief, who is leaving on Sunday for Windsor. A suitable gift of silver ware was presented by Miss Irene Collins and Miss Margar et Fraser read the following address

Miss Anna E. Moncrief,

Dear Anna: During the lapse of the past few days we have learned that you are leaving us and we take this opportunity to try to express our heartfelt wishes for your success in this undertaking. But on such an occasion words are inadequate in conveying the real sentiment which we are at present experiencing, the thought of your going from our midst perhaps forever.

Five years seems a very long time to look ahead but on turning back the pages of memory, we find, it seems only day since you first became one of the "clique in the corner." During those years you have in your quiet way portrayed the real meaning of a true friend.

With this object in view we ask you to accept this gift of silverware as a token of our gratitude for the many kind acts you have done us in the past, and we hope that you shall always look on your fellow-employees of this Department as your friends ,especially in the time of need.

Signed on behalf of the employees of the Porcelain Department of the C.G.E. Company.

USED MORE SEASONING

(By T. E. SHAPLEIGH)

The people of ancient days used more seasoning in their food preparations than we do, and some of their seasonings are not appealing to our sense of taste—asafoetida, for instance. The supposition is that, because they had no refrigeration, meats spoiled readily and some of the very highly flavored ingredients were added to cover up the taste.

But let us consider some of the seasonings besides salt and pepper, which the house wife should have on her shelves, and thus add much variety, as to flavor, in her daily menus. First of all vegetables comes the onion, and its relations, the shallot, garlic, chives and leeks.

There is nothing which so improves some salads, meats and sauces as garlic. But it must be used with discretion, and that means one of the several sections found in a garlic. One of these sections, which should be peeled, cut into halves and rubbed over the bowl in which a salad is served will give just that unusual and delicious flavor so often lacking.

Celery comes next, perhaps, and the root, stalk, tender leaves and seed are all used for seasoning. The celery root, or "knob celery," is used in soups and salads or when creamed as a vegetable

Parsley Useful

Then comes parsley, which should be used quite as much as a seasoning as for a garnish. When parsley is plentiful in the summer it may be dried and kept for winter use. If dipped in boiling water and then in cold water before drying the color is retained.

The leaf of the laurel or bay tree is an excellent aromatic seasoning, but if used too plentifully overpowers the other flavors. For the ordinary amount of meat or sauces a "bit" of bay leaf is sufficient and by "bit" is meant a small piece not more than a quarter of an inch long.

Whole pepper, or peppercorns, are much better to use in cooking than ground pepper. From three or four to half a teaspoon is the usual quantity to be used. A slight flavor of nutmeg in cream soups or chicken dishes is best obtained by cooking a "blade" of whole mace in the stock, or scalding it with the milk. A "blade" of mace is not much larger than a "pin," about one inch long.

Whole cloves, never more than one or two, are an improvement to tomato sauce and soup. It should be remembered that these spices ought to be cooked only for a short time in the sauce or with the meat, as too long a cooking will develop a strong flavor.

Fried Onions

Frying onion in the fat before adding the liquid gives a much better flavor to a sauce or gravy.

The hard thing about starting anything is finishing it.

Did you know the spring poetry for magazines must be in by March?

BRITISH LABOR TO HELP OUT RUSSIA

LONDON, May 5. — (Canadian Press). — The Independent Labor Party is organizing this week a movement among the workers of Britain to prevent the Government from breaking off relations with Russia, including the cancellation of trade agreement. Since it was recently stated in the House of Commons that the question of Russian relations was under consideration, resorts of an impending breach have been strengthened, and this Labor group has announced that it is prepared to invoke, if necessary, "direct action" by workers to forestall such a step.

The Bailey Herald, Labor's organ, says to-day that there is a good reason to believe that the Government has decided to send a stern note to Moscow, complaining of Russia's treatment on priests and the seizure of British trawlers on the Murman coast, and tons of communications to the British agent at Moscow.
